FIVE OF COMMITTEE CONDEMN BALLINGER

Call Him Unfaithful Trustee of People's Interests and Demand His Retirement.

LESS THAN QUORUM PRESENT

Two Regulars Withdraw from Meeting—Four Democrats and Madison, Insurgent, Voted for Resolutions.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—Resolutions condemning Secretary of the Interior Ballinger as "not a faithful trustee of the people's interests" and declaring that he should no longer be retained in the Cabinet were adopted to-day at a meeting of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee, at which only six of the twelve members were present. Five of those present voted for the adoption of the resolution, which was offered by Representative E. H. Madison of Kansas, insurgent Republican, as a substitute for one presented by Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, Democrat, of Florida.

Representatives James and Graham and other Democratic members maintain that the action is binding despite the fact that Senator Nelson, Republican, Chairman of the committee, had stated in the meeting that there was no quorum. During the session no member had raised the point of no quorum, and Representative James contends that the adoption of the resolution has the effect of expressing the views of a majority.

When the committee met eight members were present, constituting a quorum, but before the vote on the Madison resolution was reached Senator George Sutherland, Republican, of Utah, and Representative Samuel W. McCall, Republican, of Massachusetts, withdrew. Chairman Nelson remained, but took no part in the voting.

The Republicans assert that the withdrawal of Messrs. Sutherland and McCall broke the quorum. In this view Representative Madison joins. He said to-night:

"Final action has not been taken. No report has been adopted, and a majority can reverse to-day's action if it sees fit."

Another leading Republican Senator said: "It is well known that when a quorum is not present no business can be transacted except to adjourn." Incidentally he characterized the action to-day as "party politics of the grossest kind."

The resolution adopted to-day is believed to be along the line of the minority report which is being prepared for presentation, possibly at an adjourned meeting on Friday. The members at the meeting to-day decided that their report should be made public at the session here, along with the majority findings, and given to the public immediately. Representative Madison is preparing an independent minority report, which, it is said, will sustain the course of Gifford Pinchot.

Eight Present at Beginning.

When the committee met the following members were present:

Republicans—Senator Nelson of Minnesota, Chairman; Senator Sutherland of Utah, Representative McCall of Massachusetts, and Representative Madison of Kansas, insurgent.

Democrats—Senators Fletcher of Florida and Purcell of North Dakota and Representatives James of Kentucky and Graham of Illinois.

Chairman Nelson, in opening the session, said he had received word that Representative Denby of Michigan, (Rep.) who had been detained by the primaries, would reach Minneapolis to-morrow morning; also, that Representative Olmsted of Pennsylvania, Republican, would be here Friday. It was suggested in view of the fact that these two members were on their way, that it was only fair to them that a recess should be taken until Friday morning in order to permit them to participate in the deliberations of the committee. Senator Fletcher, however, offfered the following resolution:

> Resolved, That from the weight of evidence submitted to the committee we find as follows:
>
> First—That Richard A. Ballinger, as Secretary of the Interior, has been unfaithful and inefficient in the discharge of his official duties;
>
> Second—That he is unfit for the very responsible position he holds;
>
> Third—That the vast amount of public property under his control and the larger public interests are not safe in his hands.
>
> Resolved further, That the public good demands his prompt removal from said office.
>
> Be it further resolved, That a report to Congress be prepared setting forth the grounds and reasons, as shown by the evidence, for this finding and recommendation, including other matters referred to this committee, and that the same be submitted to this committee on Friday next at 10 o'clock A. M.

Mr. Madison offered this substitute for Mr. Fletcher's resolution:

> Resolved, That the findings of the committee be as follows and a report based thereon be prepared and reported to Congress:
>
> First—That the charges made by L. R. Glavis against Secretary Ballinger should be sustained; that in the matter of the disposition of the Cunningham coal lands Mr. Ballinger was not a faithful trustee of the interests of the people and did not perform his duty in such a manner as to properly protect such interests;
>
> Second—That the charges made by Mr. Pinchot should be sustained; that Mr. Ballinger's course in the administration of the Department of the Interior has been characterized by a lack of fidelity to the public interests; that this has been shown in his treatment of the Cunningham coal claims, the restoration of the water power sites to entry without intention to re-withdraw, and in his administration of the reclamation service, the latter resulting in unnecessary humiliation to the Director and tending toward the disintegration of the service. He has not shown himself to be that character of friend to the policy of conservation of our natural resources that the man should be who occupies the important post of Secretary of the Interior in our Government, and he should no longer be retained in that office.

Madison Demands Publicity.

Mr. Fletcher's resolution and Mr. Madison's substitute were laid aside for the time being, and the following resolution was offered by Mr. Madison:

> Resolved, That it is the sense of those present that the report or reports that may be formulated at this sitting of the committee shall, on the adjournment of the committee, be made public.

Mr. James offered the following amendment to the foregoing:

> That it is the sense of those present that a report or reports shall be made at this session of the committee upon the questions submitted by the resolution under which we are acting.

A vote was taken on the amendment offered by Mr. James and resulted as follows: Yeas—Senators Fletcher and Purcell and Representatives Madison, James, and Graham, total five. In view of the absence of Messrs. Olmsted and Derby, Senators Nelson and Sutherland and Representative McCall declined to vote, stating that they did not deem it fair to those gentlemen to proceed until their arrival.

It was suggested by Mr. James and

SARATOGA FOR GAYNOR.

Democrats of Ulster Also Indorse Mayor for Gubernatorial Nomination.

BALLSTON, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Mayor Gaynor was indorsed for Governor to-day by the Democrats of Saratoga County in convention here.

Because of the fight for leadership between John H. Burke, the present leader, and James D. McNulty, the village President, the convention was in an uproar for three hours. Harsh words were spoken and some of the delegates almost came to blows. Burke retained the leadership by a vote of 53 to 45.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Sept. 7.—The Democrats of Ulster County in convention today instructed its delegates to the State Convention to vote for Mayor Gaynor for Governor. George W. Washburn of Kingston was nominated for the Assembly from the First District of Ulster County.

NORWICH, N. Y., Sept. 7.—At the Democratic County Convention held here to-day Elliott D. Truman was nominated for the Assembly and Vernon D. Stratton for District Attorney.

The only fight in the convention was over State Committeeman, which resulted in Stephen Ryan, the present committeeman, defeating W. H. Sullivan by a good majority.

TEST WELLMAN AIRSHIP.

Provisions Taken Aboard—Start Now Expected About Sept. 20.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 7.—In a series of exhaustive tests to-day, under the direction of Melvin Vaniman, chief engineer of the Wellman transatlantic expedition, slender steel stays, by which the car of the dirigible airship America is attached to the huge gas bag, were subjected to a strain of 220,000 pounds to the square inch without signs of breakage.

When the tests were completed Mr. Wellman and his crew declared their readiness to intrust their lives to the big air cruiser as soon as she is ready to begin the dash for Europe. So far as possible Murray Simon, executive officer of the liner Oceanic, who is to be navigator of the America, will follow the same latitude and longitude that govern the big ships on the outward course.

The lifeboat to be swung beneath the cage of the big dirigible was provisioned to-day with enough tinned and canned meats, ship's biscuit and other supplies to last six men for thirty days, in case the America meets disaster on the high seas. Mr. Wellman now expects to get away somewhere about Sept. 20.

Thousands of persons watch the chief engineer, Vaniman, and his three mechanicians putting the finishing touches to the huge air cruiser. Mr. Wellman spends ten hours of every day in the balloon shed, and works indefatigably.

"This is to be the crowning exploit of my life," he said to-night. "I am willing to sacrifice my life, if necessary, in the interest of science, but I am confident we shall succeed, and that in a few years, at the most, aerial ships will be crossing the Atlantic on a regular schedule."

SLAIN MAN NOT FEDERICO.

Head of Family Killed in Calabria Was a Peasant Named Rogolini.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 7.—The municipal and judicial authorities positively affirm that the man who was murdered with his wife and six children in the village of Pellaro, near Reggio, Calabria, cannot be the former policeman Amando Federico. The murdered man has been definitely identified as Giuseppe Rogolini, aged 45, a peasant.

Rogolini was in America when the earthquake of December, 1908, devastated his home region. He hurried back and found his family safe. This, together with the atrocity of the crime, aroused the suspicion that he was a victim of the American Black Hand, but evidence in support of the belief is completely lacking.

Rogolini was never a policeman. He was employed as a country overseer. He was too ill-educated for the police force.

FAMOUS ST. BERNARD KILLED.

Barry, Who Saved Many Lives, the Victim of an Avalanche.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 7.—The renowned St. Bernard dog Barry III., who saved many lives on the Grand St. Bernard Pass, has lost his life in an avalanche after assisting in the rescue of two storm-bound travelers.

Barry last Sunday night guided Father Clavendier to two persons who had lost their way in a storm and who were safely brought to the hospice. Then Barry disappeared. As he often passed hours in the pass, coming to the Hospice only when help was required, no notice of his absence was taken until Monday morning, when a search was organized, and the dog was found in the débris of an avalanche.

Barry III. is supposed to have been a direct descendant of one of the three famous St. Barnards to whom this breed of dogs owes its continued existence.

The monks of St. Bernard's Hospice had been breeding the dogs almost ever since St. Bernard founded the institution in the tenth century. In the middle of the nineteenth century an avalanche swept away the kennels in which the dogs were kept, and only three were saved. Their names were Pluto, Pallas, and Barry. The last-named animal, which is said to have been Barry III.'s ancestor, was orange-tawny in color, with white legs, stomach, and collar, and a white blaze down the face. He had the reputation of having saved the lives of forty travelers. When he died his skin was preserved and stuffed, and it is still on exhibition in the Berne Museum.

Early Trial for Gaynor's Assailant.

Prosecutor Garven of Hudson County has asked Mayor Gaynor's physicians to send him a certificate showing that the Mayor is out of danger. He says he will prepare to take up the case against James J. Gallagher, who shot the Mayor, with the September Grand Jury on Sept. 20 and ask for an indictment. Thereafter he will move for a speedy trial of the case.

GAYNOR HIMSELF AGAIN IN TEN DAYS

Despite Contrary Reports, the Mayor Expects to Take Up Current Affairs by That Time.

IS STILL A LITTLE WEAK

Change in His Facial Expression Due to the Alteration of His Beard Since the Shooting.

Mayor Gaynor is rapidly getting well. Several conflicting reports have reached the city in the last few days concerning his condition. Some have had it that he was walking six miles or so every day and was practically a well man. Others have had it that he was a broken man, with strength returning slowly at best.

He has walked six miles since going to St. James for his convalescence. He did so on one cool day last week, and seemed to enjoy it. And he walked four miles on Monday morning when it was very hot. It came near hurting him seriously, and he has not fully recovered yet from the overstrain. But to all appearances he is making fine progress toward recovery. Mrs. Gaynor thinks so, and her chief trouble just now seems to be to keep him from using his voice too much in entertaining those who, with the kindest feelings in the world, come to see him.

To a TIMES reporter who talked with him at his St. James home yesterday the Mayor appeared to be in excellent condition, excepting that he has not regained his normal strength, or recovered wholly from the nervous shock caused by the shooting.

He has, in fact, changed some in appearance, though this is perhaps because since the shooting his beard has taken a different shape. Normally, the Mayor wears his beard trimmed close to the sides, giving it and his side face a straight-up-and-down appearance. Since his illness, however, his whiskers have grown out full on each side except under the jaw, where the wound is, changing the appearance of face perhaps more than one would imagine, a detail which would disappear after fifteen minutes in a barber's chair.

But Mayor Gaynor looks brown and ruddy, and this description of him is not overdrawn. His cheeks are full—fuller, members of his family say, than before he was shot. The Mayor, by the way, does not refer to himself as having been "shot." To those with whom he has spoken of his injury, and they are not many, he says "when I was hurt."

He takes plenty of exercise, spending much of the time out of doors or on the veranda of his Summer home. Besides the long walk last week, he trudged the four miles in the heat of Monday morning. He doesn't lay the ill-effects of that walk to the exercise, but to the oppressive heat. Yesterday, for the second time in a week, he drove down in his auto to Port Jefferson, where he boarded a yacht for several hours' sail on the Sound. To both wind and sun is attributed the tan of his face.

When he appeared yesterday morning to enter his car only one difference between him and the dignified, self-contained man so familiar to those who foregather daily about the City Hall was apparent. In spite of his six miles' walking record he seemed, in that short distance, a trifle uncertain on his feet. There is a step down from the hall to the porch. He was quite cautious when he took this. In somewhat the same way he negotiated the steps from the porch to the automobile.

This was evidently due to his not having got his strength back. His family recognize this, and are not in the least troubled about it. When Mayor Gaynor is in normal health he takes much exercise, particularly walking, but since his confinement, involving several weeks in bed, his muscles have become soft. Even this apparent weakness or lack of confidence almost wholly disappears, however, when he is seen trudging along the dusty St. James roads. While there is hardly the old-time swing with which he used to "eat up" the miles until almost any one who dared to accompany him was left behind, he makes steady progress.

He was dressed yesterday morning like the farmer he calls himself when out at St. James. His pepper-and-salt business suit looked as if it had seen much wear and better days. He wore a soft tan shirt, with narrow, turned-down collar made on it, with a necktie in it which probably his son, Rufus, would have scorned. Altogether, he appeared "truly rural," a Cincinnatus off for an outing.

But the Mayor is not talking politics. He does not want to talk politics or business until he recovers, and the subject was not brought up in his presence. He disregards the demand for him for the Governorship. He himself said he wanted to get well, and was making that and nothing else his business at present. He was trying to do just as little talking as possible. The doctors have told him that his vocal cords ought to have from four to six weeks' rest, and he is trying his best to obey them. He has not read a newspaper since he was "hurt," and it will probably be ten days or more before he will begin to dabble in every-day matters.

There have been many reports about the Mayor's voice. In spite of his doctors' admonitions he must have spoken several hundred words in the presence of THE TIMES reporter. There was no lisp or apparent difficulty, as has been reported, in his enunciation of words beginning with an "s." His voice is low. He has, as far as his friends recall, always been low spoken. But his enunciation yesterday was as clear and his speech as unhesitating as that of any man in normal condition. Mrs. Gaynor remarked after the Mayor had sped away that there was no truth in the reports regarding his inability to speak plainly except for the short period in which his throat was swollen.

Mayor Gaynor wears no bandage over the wound in his throat, not even so much as a bit of absorbent cotton and plaster. The wound is apparently entirely healed and the appearance normal, except that spangled out from the place where the bullet entered the flesh are star-shaped points which appear dark blue.

Mrs. Gaynor said after the Mayor had gone that he was sticking closely to his old friends among his books. Epictetus, the Letters of Junius, and all the rest of them, some which he has made the people, at least, hear about since he became Mayor, were kept handy for him and were his constant companions to the exclusion of all newspapers or magazines which could suggest present-day problems and make him think of present things. His mind never seemed more active, Mrs. Gaynor said. He gets up at the regular time; never misses a meal at the table with the family, and at night sleeps well, when the nights are cool.

He sees more callers than is good for him, Mrs. Gaynor thinks. When the neighbors come in she always has to caution him about keeping quiet and letting the visitors do the talking. In a majority of cases she fears he forgets and chimes in to the possible overstrain of his voice.

He himself says it will be ten days before he begins to read the newspapers, and he seems to relish the idea that the period is short.

Chairman John A. Dix of the Democratic State Committee, just back from a tour of the State in the interest of party harmony, said yesterday that he had found considerable sentiment favoring the nomination of Mayor Gaynor for Governor. This sentiment, he said, was particularly marked along the Southern tier.

"The northern counties seem to favor Edward M. Shepard of Brooklyn," continued Mr. Dix. "Congressman James S. Havens has quite a following in the western section of the State, while Cayuga is backing the candidacy of Thomas M. Osborn of Auburn."

BLAZING TUG SENT SEAWARD CREWLESS

All Hands Abandon Her After Heading Her Down the Bay Under Steam.

FORT SEARCHLIGHTS ON HER

Burns to the Water's Edge and Is Supposed to Have Sunk—Thousands See the Spectacle.

With the searchlights of Fort Wadsworth and Fort Hamilton trained on her and following her as she drifted slowly under a small head of steam out to sea, the tugboat Lillian Moir, one of a fleet owned by a transportation company of Seventy-seventh Street and Broadway, went blazing out toward the Narrows last night, while crowds of Staten Island residents and members of the Atlantic Yacht Club and others living at Sea Gate lined the shores as interested spectators.

Her captain and crew of four men, who were taking her from Manhattan to the brickyard of the Frank D. Creamer Company, at West Seventeenth Street and Neptune Avenue, Coney Island, for a barge of cement, found her suddenly afire as they were entering the mouth of Coney Island Creek, and, after vain attempts to extinguish the flames, fearing that she might run into and set afire some of the many yachts, motor launches, and rowboats moored there, turned her head out to sea, lashed her wheel, and sent her outbound under her own steam. Then they themselves put out in a small rowboat they had aboard, and landed safely at the brickyard dock.

Abandoned, the tugboat steamed slowly out in the bay, a lurid halo of flame slowly spreading around and over her until it enveloped bow and stern. The searchlights on the two forts picked her out and kept her in a glare of light as she moved slowly past other tugboats and craft in the bay.

No call of fire was sent in, and no boat put out to save the blazing tug. For an hour and a half, until 10 o'clock, thousands of persons on either shore watched the blazing derelict, which presently grew to be merely a mass of floating flame on the dark surface of the bay. Then, gradually, the blaze died down, nearer and nearer the water's edge, and was soon lapped up altogether. The searchlights of the two forts tried in vain to locate the burned-out hulk, but could not find it, and finally abandoned it as sunk.

CREMATORIES ON LINERS.

Suggestion Made by the International Congress on Cremation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—A Brussels dispatch says that the International Congress on Cremation, now being held there, to-day voted a resolution in favor of the establishment on every ocean liner of a crematorium, so as to obviate the burial at sea of persons who die in the course of a voyage.

The suggestion that the dead should be cremated at sea instead of consigned to the ocean in the old-fashioned way failed to disturb representatives of the big steamship lines last night.

"Who is going to do this interesting thing?" inquired Julius P. Meyer, agent of the Hamburg-American Line. "I never heard of the International Cremation Congress. I guess we'll have something to say about it before crematories are established on our liners. We are willing to keep right up in the van of progress and give our patrons all the conveniences going, but how would it look if we advertised something like this: 'Up-to-date crematories aboard. Bodies disposed of with neatness and dispatch. If you want to be cremated, patronize us.' I guess most people would prefer the old-fashioned way.

"Seriously, the proposition is ridiculous. In the first place bodies are no longer buried at sea. Every large steamship carries a number of hermetically sealed caskets for use in the emergency of a passenger dying. The bodies are placed in these caskets and brought to the nearest port. There is no longer any use for the old custom of burial at sea. It only occurs under unusual circumstances. Of course, when a steerage passenger dies the body is sent to the bottom of the ocean if the person's friends do not desire it brought to port, but even in these cases I do not see how cremation would help."

"Perfectly nonsensical," declared Charles P. Sumner, agent of the Cunard Line, who added:

"We bring our dead bodies to port. I do not know about other lines, but so far as the Cunard Line is concerned we want no cremation."

$17,500,000 FOR EXPOSITION.

By Senate's Action San Francisco Will Have This Sum for Panama Exhibition

Special to The New York Times.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 7.—With but two votes in the negative, both cast by Democrats from rural districts, the Constitutional amendments providing for a special State tax levy of $5,000,000 for the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco in 1915 passed the Senate this afternoon. Following this action the second amendment, permitting the City of San Francisco to incur a bonded indebtedness for an equal amount, was passed, only one vote being in the negative.

Both measures were then transmitted to the Assembly. The upper house adjourned until to-morrow, when it is expected the lower house will dispose of both amendments and that they will be signed by the Governor.

This action makes it certain that San Francisco will have for exposition purposes not less than $17,500,000, all raised by San Francisco and the State. In addition to this sum various counties will provide special exhibits, the total cost of which will run to at least $2,000,000 more without a dollar of Federal money.

GREAT PENNA. TUNNEL IN OPERATION TO-DAY

Regular Passenger Traffic to Long Island Began at 3:41 This Morning.

HUGE STATION THROWN OPEN

Time of Commuters' Travel Cut in Half and Outlying Towns Rejoice —Jamaica Celebrates Most.

The Pennsylvania Railroad tunnel system beneath two rivers and Manhattan Island, to connect New Jersey and Long Island with New York by continuous trackage, was opened early this morning so far as the section from Manhattan to Long Island City is concerned. The tunnel from New Jersey to this borough is complete now, and will be opened later.

The big terminal in Seventh Avenue, between Thirty-first and Thirty-third Streets, was thrown open in part to the public at 3 o'clock, that part of it not devoted to the Long Island Railroad still remaining closed. The Long Island entrance is in Thirty-third Street. Here fifty uniformed men were on duty, including the stationmaster, his aids, baggage men, and porters. A Sergeant and seven policemen from Traffic Squad C were on hand to look out for the crowds that were expected.

The crowds, however, did not make an early appearance. Sometime after midnight there were only about twenty persons in the neighborhood of the station. Some of these, however, said that they were anxious to take the first train out of the new station.

The new time table of the Long Island which became effective this morning prevented the fulfillment of this desire, for it provided for the departure of a two-car baggage train at 3:36 o'clock. The first passenger train only drew out at 3:41. Both trains were destined for Winfield Junction where they connect with trains for Babylon, Hempstead, Whitestone Landing, and Port Washington. The first train chiefly carried newspapers.

The passenger train, in charge of Motorman W. Fields and Conductor L. Fader, with Collector H. J. Heinsohn and Trainman J. R. May, left on Track 19. It was followed an hour later by a train from Track 18, whose destination was Far Rockaway.

At 4:30 o'clock the first train to enter the new terminal arrived from Jamaica, L. I., on a schedule that called for a twenty-minute trip between the terminals.

How the Time Is Cut.

From 4:41 o'clock onward, the new schedule for Long Island trains in and out of the new terminal became effective. A total of about 140 trains a day will be handled at the new terminal from to-day until the Pennsylvania trains are brought in from the New Jersey side. This will be about Oct. 15, officials of the Pennsylvania say.

The first train out, while carrying passengers, was largely a newspaper train, being loaded with morning papers for distant parts of Long Island. It appeared under the road schedule as No. 1,702.

A comparison of the old and new Long Island Railroad schedules gives an idea of the saving in time for those living on Long Island who come to Manhattan. Until to-day it took forty-four minutes to come from Jamaica to Manhattan. To-day it will take just nineteen minutes. The fifty minutes period from Hollis to Manhattan is cut squarely in half. On the main division of the road, by which such points as Mineola, Garden City, Hicksville, Farmingdale, and Greenport are reached, from twenty-four to forty-two minutes are saved each way.

The saving on each of the other divisions, with the exception of the North Side Division, is quite as great. In the case of the North Side lines the gain is from eighteen to twenty-three minutes, three minutes being allowed apparently for the transfer at Winfield of steam and electric locomotives. The North Side Division is electrified at present only as far as Winfield, and it will probably be six or eight months more before the double tracking and electrification of the line are complete. A quicker schedule is then expected.

Here is a comparison made from the old and the new time cards showing the effect of the new terminal as a time-saver from Long Island points:

JOSEPH C. SIBLEY INDICTED.

Charged, with Four Others, with Conspiracy to Bribe Voters.

WARREN, Penn., Sept. 7.—The special Grand Jury which since last Monday has been investigating charges against former Congressman Joseph C. Sibley and four codefendants, in connection with Sibley's nomination as the Republican candidate for Congress at the June primaries, returned true bills to-night against each of the defendants. All are charged with conspiracy to bribe, debauch, and corrupt voters of Warren County.

Besides Mr. Sibley, who is ill at his home in Franklin, the defendants are Frank H. Taylor, his private secretary; George B. Munn, David M. Howard, and C. D. Crandall, the last three of this county. Of the $17,800 which Sibley's election expense account shows he spent in Warren County, Crandall, it is charged, received $13,800 and Howard $4,000 for expenditures. Money that Munn used, it is charged, was received through Crandall.

Secrecy is maintained regarding the testimony taken by the Grand Jury, but it is understood that between thirty and forty witnesses were examined. The cases against the five men are scheduled for trial to-morrow, but it is expected that on account of Mr. Sibley's illness there will be a motion for a continuance.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 7.—The city has served notice that it will institute immediately no less than 100 suits against the Pittsburg Street Railways Company to compel it to observe the new ordinance prohibiting the overcrowding of cars.

A fine of $10,000 is possible if the city wins.

In the future there will be no midnight weddings for runaways, as marriage licenses will be issued only in regular office hours.

POSTAL CLERKS PROTEST.

Old Roosevelt Order Forbidding Agitation for More Pay the Ground.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Members of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks in annual convention to-day passed resolutions denouncing an Executive order issued by President Roosevelt in 1902.

This order prohibited Post Office clerks under civil service from soliciting increase of salaries or betterment of comfort, or from giving to members of Congress information regarding their work, unless permission was first given by the Postal Department.

DEAD PAINTER HAD RICHES.

Frank Nichols, Who Fell While Working, Was a Disguised Sociologist.

STERLING, Col., Sept. 7.—That Frank Nichols of Momence, Ill., one of a number of painters at work on the Burlington roundhouse here, was not the humble craftsman he pretended to be, but a wealthy man, studying sociological problems, came to light yesterday through a search of his effects after he had been killed by a fall from a ladder on which he was working.

Among his possessions were deeds to valuable Chicago real estate, mining property in the Dakotas, and stock in various railroads aggregating over $50,000 in value. Nichols had been a member of the painting crew for several months.

EX-CONGRESSMAN KILLED.

Auto Overturns on George Warren Weymouth—Two Companions Hurt.

BINGHAM, Me., Sept. 7.—Pinned beneath the wreckage of a big touring car when it turned turtle at the foot of a steep hill three miles outside of Bingham to-day, former Congressman George Warren Weymouth of Fair Haven, Mass., was instantly killed. Two of his three companions, Perley R. Glass and F. A. Dinsmore of Boston, the former prominent in machine manufacturing and financial circles, were seriously and perhaps fatally injured. The fourth member of the party, J. J. Landers of this town, who was operating the machine, escaped without injury.

Mr. Weymouth and his party came here a few days ago on a business trip. the accident was caused when the machine got beyond control going downhill.

Mr. Weymouth was 60 years old, and represented the Fourth Massachusetts district in the Fifty-fifth Congress as a Republican. He was general manager of the American Tack Company, in which the late Henry H. Rogers was interested; was President of the American Shoe Findings Company of Grafton, Mass.; director of the Boylston Manufacturing Company of Boston; director of the Fitchburg and Leominster Street Railway Company, and of the Orswell and Nockedge Mills of Fitchburg. He is survived by a widow.

NO MARRIAGE, SAYS ELKINS.

Tired of Denying Rumors as to Daughter's Romance with the Duke.

ELKINS, West Va., Sept. 7.—Emphatic denial was made to-day by Senator Stephen B. Elkins of the rumors that he is preparing to go to Paris or that his daughter, Katherine Elkins, will marry the Duke of the Abruzzi in February, or at any other time, or that his family is to be presented to the Italian Court.

With some impatience he declared that he had denied rumors until he was worn out, and that he would like to have it accepted as a fact that there was no contemplated union between his daughter and the Italian Duke.

"All these things were denied two years ago, and there is no more truth in the rumors now than there was two years ago," said Senator Elkins.

The sole purpose, he said, of the European trip of Mrs. Elkins and Miss Katherine Elkins was for the benefit of their health. They have been going abroad each Summer for a number of years. Since the adjournment of Congress Senator Elkins has been resting at his Summer home here, to which he retired after his arduous labors in the management of the Railroad bill in the Senate.

BEDELL UNDER FIRE IN GRAFT INQUIRY

IT SEEMS SHY OF MARGINS

Cole, Former Treasurer of State Railway Association, Says Campaign Contributions Caused a Deficit.

It was pretty clearly demonstrated at the initial hearing before the legislative graft investigation committee, which was held yesterday in the Aldermanic Chamber at the City Hall, first, that close personal relations, involving financial transactions, existed between men largely interested in public service corporations in different parts of the State and legislators who formed the keystone of the "system" in the Legislature in the days of the Black Horse Cavalry. The testimony at the first hearing also indicated that the defunct brokerage house of Ellingwood & Cunningham, in which G. Tracy Rogers, the traction lobbyist, was a special partner, was a clearing house for the kind of legislative "retainers" which were popular in those days.

It was through an article printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES on April 13 that attention was first called to the names of influential legislators appearing on the books of this brokerage firm. M. Linn Bruce, chief counsel of the committee, who has gone over the books thoroughly, regards it as more than a coincidence that all those names were of Republican members.

On the presumption that possibly party lines held evenly in the secret operations of the Black Horse Cavalry, a still hunt for a corresponding Democratic central exchange to that of Ellingwood & Cunningham has been carried on by Mr. Bruce and his associates, and it was more than intimated yesterday that some such place had been uncovered.

A somewhat interesting feature of the hearing was the emphatic refusal entered on behalf of the brokerage firm of J. S. Bache & Co. to obey a subpoena issued by the committee calling for the production of its books from the year 1899 to date.

Nearly the entire time yesterday was given to an examination of the books of Ellingwood & Cunningham, and the activities at the Capitol and elsewhere of G. Tracy Rogers, the special partner. Only one legislative account was examined—that of Louis Bedell, who in the years from 1900 to 1905 was Chairman of the Assembly Railroad Committee as well as of the powerful Rules Committee of the lower house. Mr. Bedell represented one of the districts of Orange County in the Assembly, and was known at Albany as "Odell's man."

Learning Something About Bedell.

The books contained entries showing that H. H. Vreeland, at that time President of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company; Henry A. Robinson, general solicitor for that company, and G. Tracy Rogers, the legislative representative at Albany of the leading traction concerns in this State, had supplied credits enabling Mr. Bedell to make a flying investment in New York Electric Transportation stock at a time when, on his motion, a bill was rushed through the lower house. The New York Electric Transportation Company was a holding concern for the reorganized Fifth Avenue stage line, which received an extraordinary franchise through the bill mentioned.

Mr. Bedell, who attended the hearing under a subpoena when Mr. Bruce was delving into his old speculation account, said after the hearing had adjourned:

"I never received a cent from either Mr. Vreeland or Mr. Robinson for any purpose whatever. I did receive some advances from Mr. Rogers, and I do not know how he raised the money."

John Auen, Jr., of 518 East 137th Street, a young man, testified that he was bookkeeper in the employ of John W. McKinnon, head of the shareholders' committee that took charge of the affairs of the New Amsterdam National Bank when that institution went into voluntary liquidation in 1908. The subpoena for this witness called for the reproduction of the ledger containing the account of H. H. Vreeland with the bank from Jan. 1 to May 24, 1900. Mr. Auen testified that all the books of the bank were in the vaults of the Commercial Safe Deposit Company, but that this particular book happened to be missing.

"Strange, indeed," commented Mr. Bruce, "that the one book we want should be lost. Now, you go back and look for that ledger and get Mr. McKinnon to help you and return at 2 o'clock, and get Mr. McKinnon to come, too."

G. Tracy Rogers Testifies.

G. Tracy Rogers, a small, squat man with florid complexion, black hair, and a stubby black mustache, both turning gray, was called, and just as Chairman Merritt was preparing to administer the oath, Mr. Stanchfield came to the front and asked that his appearance as counsel for the witness and for ex-Senator Goodsell be entered.

"Under the resolution only persons against whom formal charges have been lodged may be represented by counsel; we will note your presence, but not your appearance," said Mr. Merritt.

Mr. Rogers was then sworn. He said he was a resident of Binghamton, and that he was interested in a great many public-service corporations in Binghamton, Buffalo, Elmira, and elsewhere, in most instances as President, in others as Director. The list would have made an exceptional showing in any corporation directory, and when he was through reciting his connections he said, apologetically:

"I may have skipped some companies, there are so many of them; and I have so much to keep in my memory."

"You have been connected with the Street Railway Association of the State of New York?" asked Mr. Bruce.

"I have," said the witness. "I believe I was elected Vice-President of the association in Rochester in 1893 or 1894. The next year I was made its President. I remained in that position until 1904."

Mr. Rogers said that as President of the association it was his duty to watch legislation at Albany and to appear before committees to make arguments for or against bills affecting the street railway interests throughout the State.

He Knew the Leading Members.

"There was such a mass of legislation, some of which was beneficial to the companies, but most of which was inimical to our interests," explained the witness. "We wanted very little affirmative legislation, but we were anxious to see defeated a lot of legislation which would have made it impossible for us to operate our roads with any profit."

Q.—In discharge of your duties you did appear at Albany in the years from 1900 to 1905? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—You appeared before committees and you talked to members? A.—My work was chiefly before committees.

Q.—You were acquainted with H. H. Vreeland, President of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, and with Henry A. Robinson, its general solicitor? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—While at Albany, you were acquainted with leading members of the Senate and Assembly, I take it? A.—With leading members, yes.

Q.—You were a special partner of the firm of Ellingwood & Cunningham? A.—I was, from 1899 to 1905. I retired some weeks before the firm assigned in February, 1905.

Q.—Can you tell me something about this account, "James T. Rogers, Special," between January, 1902, and April, 1902? James T. Rogers was an Assemblyman from Broome who was floor leader in the lower house at that period. A.—I hardly ever looked in the books. I cannot tell you anything about it.

Q.—Do you recall an account, Rogers & R.? A.—I do.

Q.—Who was "R"? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Wasn't it Robinson, the general solicitor? A.—Yes, I think that's right.

Q.—Do you recall the account of Rogers & G.? A.—Yes; "G." was Senator Green of Binghamton.

Q.—Remember an account of Rogers & J.? A.—I really don't remember who "J." was. I had so many accounts.

Q.—Did you have an account "Rogers, Bedell & Green"? A.—Yes. I believe, though, that the account was "Rogers, Bedell, Green & Cunningham."

Q.—Do you remember any customers you introduced to the firm? I suppose as a special partner you were anxious to get business for the firm? A.—Naturally. As a special partner I had nothing else to do. I remember that I brought in Senators Malby, Raines, and Goodsell, and Assemblyman Bedell—when, I cannot say.

Thinks Well Before Answering.

When Mr. Bruce asked if Mr. Rogers was not aware of the introduction on March 15, 1900, of the New York Transportation (Fifth Avenue Stage) bill by Gen. Goodsell, the witness asked permission to confer with his counsel. After a whispered conversation with Mr. Stanchfield he returned to the witness chair and testified that he did not at the time.

"The first time I ever heard the name of the company was when I received a telegram from Assemblyman James T. Rogers asking me to buy 100 shares of the stock for him," said the witness. "I did so and put up $500 for margins out of my own pocket."

"Search your memory carefully," cautioned Mr. Bruce. "Were you not aware of the introduction of that bill on March 16?"

"I have just told you I never knew anything about that company or that bill," said the witness. "I never paid any attention to measures that did not affect the street railways in the entire State. I knew nothing about the bill at all."

"But you do recall that you bought the stock for Rogers on April 19. Did you not know then that the bill was pending before the Governor?"

"I only remember that Rogers wired me he had a tip to buy that stock."

Telegram to Contradict Him.

Q.—Did you not buy 400 shares for Speaker Nixon on March 22, or prior to the time when you say you got your first knowledge that such a company existed? A.—I cannot recall.

Q.—Can you remember whether you communicated with the Speaker on the subject, by word of mouth, by telephone, or by letter? A.—No.

Q.—Did you telegraph him? A.—I may have telegraphed.

Mr. Bruce then produced the telegraph copy book of the brokerage firm, in which he showed the witness sent this telegram to Speaker Nixon on March 22:

> Imperative, nothing be done at all until late next week. T.

"Did you send that?" asked the counsel.

"If I did I cannot recall it. I cannot understand what it means. It is not my handwriting," said the witness.

"Do I understand you to say that this was not sent at your direction and with your knowledge?" asked Mr. Bruce.

"If I am to answer this," said Mr. Rogers with some vehemence, "I will say that I had nothing to do with it, and I was not interested in the bill in any form, shape, or manner."

Bache Disobeys Subpoena.

Mr. Rogers was excused with the understanding that he is to be recalled later, and a recess was taken. Leopold Bache, who testified that he was a banker and broker connected with the firm of J. S. Bache & Co. of 42 Broadway, was asked if he had been served with a subpoena calling for the production of books to show the accounts of his firm from 1899 up to the present time, and replied in the affirmative. He said the books were in the custody of the firm, but that he had not brought them.

"Why didn't you bring them?" asked Mr. Bruce.

"My counsel, Henry Wollman, told me the subpoena was not binding."

"Don't you know it is both a misdemeanor and contempt of the Legislature not to produce any evidence demanded by a legislative committee?" asked Mr. Bruce.

Mr. Wollman got up and said it was not a misdemeanor to disobey an illegal subpoena. He maintained that the committee had the right only to call for specified accounts material to their investigation.

William W. Cole, Secretary and Treasurer of the State Railway Association from 1903 to 1906 was the next witness. He said he was a member of the engineering firm of Dodge & Day of Philadelphia. Formerly he lived in Elmira.

Mr. Bruce drew from the witness the admission that he had sent from the funds of the association on June 26, 1903, $7,500, on July 10 $2,500, and on July 24 $10,000 to Alexander S. Hackley, who was connected with Ellingwood & Cunningham. Letters from Hackley acknowledging the receipt of these amounts were introduced in evidence.

Mr. Cole was asked if he knew why this money had been transferred to New York and replied that he believed it was for the purpose of supplying a deficit that had existed at the time he took hold, and which had been met by special contributions from the members.

Money Voted by Committee.

"How did this deficit come about?" asked Mr. Bruce.

"I think as a result of campaign contributions made by the association to both parties; this, though, is presumption on my part based on what I heard from members of the Executive Committee."

"What members—tell us how we could ascertain the truth about this?" asked Mr. Bruce.

"I cannot recall," said the witness. "Possibly from Mr. Rogers."

"Mr. Rogers. He seemed to be the whole thing."

"No, I don't think so. He had nothing to do with standardization of accounts, equipment operations, or any such things."

The witness said that he understood the money sent was for the purpose of meeting some outstanding obligations contracted by Mr. Rogers. Mr. Bruce enjoined the witness to search his memory and tell what these obligations were. Mr. Cole said he never knew, except that the payments had been provided for at a meeting of the Executive Committee held in Utica early in 1903 or late in 1902.

"Was this meeting held after the Legislature had convened?" asked Mr. Bruce.

"I am not positive as to that," was the reply.

"Was Mr. Rogers present at that meeting?"

"I don't think so," said the witness.

"Don't you know that Mr. Rogers stated plainly at the time that the money was to liquidate obligations to certain members of the Legislature?"

"Not in my presence, nor in my hearing, or to my knowledge."

No Margins From Bedel.

George Carpenter, a bookkeeper, who now is employed by the firm of Simmons & Slade of 5 Nassau Street, but who was a bookkeeper in the employ of Ellingwood & Cunningham until the firm went out of business, was confronted with several huge ledgers which he identified as part of the Ellingwood & Cunningham books in 1900.

Mr. Carpenter was shown the account of Louis Bedell, who first had been asked to rise so that the clerk could identify him. Through his testimony it was shown that this account was opened in May 31, 1899. Prior to this Mr. Bedell had been in a joint account with Rogers and in one account known as the "Manhattan Pool." As the result of losses incurred in connection with these accounts it was shown by the books that on April 9, 1900, Mr. Bedell owed the firm $7,775.

On April 11 and 17, 1900, the books showed that Bedell had ordered the purchase of 100 and 200 shares respectively of the New York Transportation stock at 11⅝ and 11⅞ a share, the latter amount for the 200 shares.

"It does not appear that any margin was deposited," suggested Mr. Bruce.

The witness said that such was his understanding of the entries, and Bedell was indebted to the firm.

Q.—On April 17 Mr. Bedell is credited with $2,775? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Does it appear whether this was paid in cash or check? A.—No.

Q.—Do you know where the money came from? A.—No, Sir.

Vreeland Check for Bedell.

The firm's checkbook for this period was then produced and there appeared a check from H. H. Vreeland for $3,000, of which $2,375 was noted as credit for Mr. Bedell, $300 for Senator Lou Goodsell, and $325 to G. T. Rogers.

"This means that the $3,000 was distributed between Bedell, Goodsell, and Rogers in amounts as stated?" asked Mr. Bruce.

"I don't know," said the witness. "That's what the entries seem to indicate."

On April 25 Bedell bought 100 shares of New York Transportation stock, worth $1,300. On the same date he is credited with $125 from G. Tracy Rogers. On May 1, 1901, the books showed that the "special account of L. Bedell" had again been credited with $3,500, the proceeds of a check from Henry A. Robinson, Solicitor General of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company. The checkbook contained the notation "margin" opposite this amount. The check was drawn on the Morton Trust Company.

The committee will meet again at 11 o'clock this morning.

WESTERN TRIP PLEASES TAFT

Back at Beverly, Mute About Vermont and Insurgent Gains.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 7.—President Taft arrived in Beverly by automobile from Boston at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, and in a short time was busy at the cottage with his accumulated mail. His ride all day on the trip home from St. Paul was enlivened by few incidents. On the whole the President is well pleased with the results of his four days' excursion into the Northwest.

At Pittsfield, Mass., Senator Crane met him, and the President asked him to ride a while with him. The Senator proceeded as far as Chester, where he caught a train returning westward. At Boston his first stop was at the Touraine Hotel, where he called to inquire after Solicitor General Lloyd W. Bowers of the Department of Justice, who is ill there. He is glad to be back in Beverly, where he now plans to remain until about Sept. 21, when he leaves for Washington.

During his journey from St. Paul the President heard many expressions commending his conservation address. His friends, who urged him to accept the invitation of the Conservation Congress, are convinced that he acted wisely in going there, and that the policy he outlined for the utilization of the natural resources on the public domain will gain him friends. Those who traveled with the President say visitors to the congress from the intermountain States report that his Administration is growing in popularity with the people of that section.

There has been no forecast yet of the President's programme for the next two weeks before he starts for Washington. He will probably soon take up the preparation of his address to be delivered before the New York League of Republican Clubs late this month.

No comment was made by him to-day about the several insurgent victories yesterday nor about the result in Vermont.

You Can Really Interpret Music
Only With the Pianola Piano

To produce music and to really interpret it
—To let your feelings express themselves—to let your emotions have their own way with the melody
—This is the keenest, most inspiring pleasure that music affords.

Every musician knows this wonderful pleasure. And every music lover who is not a musician can experience this same delight, if in choosing a player piano, he selects

The Pianola Piano

For the Pianola Piano is the only instrument of this type that actually gives one a mastery over the music.

With the Metrostyle, the Themodist, the Sustaining Pedal Device and its many other remarkable features, this instrument gives to the novice the musical powers of an artist.

No ordinary pianist can even approach the beautiful playing that the Pianola Piano makes easy.

And no other player piano can possibly produce such music.

The shadings and modulations, the phrasing, the accenting of certain notes or passages, the gentle or sudden changes of tempo—all the brilliant effects, all the expressiveness of touch that characterize a virtuoso's rendition — all of this is possible to you if you own a Pianola Piano.

And these remarkable inventions that make all this possible cannot, and are not, duplicated or even approached in any other piano-playing instrument.

PINCHOT IN TEARS AT GREAT OVATION

Responds Huskily When Conservation Congress Madly Cheers Beveridge's Praise.

HILL FOR STATE CONTROL

Declares the National Machine Is Too Slow, Cumbrous, and Costly to Take Charge of Conservation.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 7.—The chief features of the two sessions of the conservation congress to-day were an almost hysterical ovation to Gifford Pinchot and a speech by James J. Hill filled with epigrams directed against the expansion of Federal power at the expense of the States.

It was Senator Beveridge of Indiana who stirred the crowd to the big demonstration for Mr. Pinchot. Applause started at the mere mention of the former Chief Forester's name. It started as a good, honest round of applause. Mrs. Elizabeth G. Grans of New York, who is attending the congress with Mrs. La Follette, wife of the Wisconsin Senator, stood up waving handkerchiefs in both hands. She said afterward that she was so excited that she scarcely realized that there was any one in the hall but herself. Her example was all that the crowd needed. Everybody rose, and it was a full minute before Senator Beveridge could resume. This is what Senator Beveridge said:

> The great policy for the welfare of all the people is now well under way. Let us beware how we hinder or retard it. It is another step in the glorious process of the building of the Nation. Already it has saved the people much that remains of their resources; it must save the people all that remains of their resources. "Honor to whom honor is due"—let us not forget that the man who in thought, deed, and word has championed this vast and historic reform until to-day he is its personification is that courageous, pure, unselfish young American, the President of the National Conservation Commission, Gifford Pinchot. For years he has fearlessly fought and ceaselessly toiled to save and protect for the people the property of the people; and in that Nation-wide battle has been the field officer of the man who first made this mighty movement a permanent and practical policy of American statesmanship, Theodore Roosevelt.

Throughout his address Senator Beveridge argued that the Federal Government was the only power that could properly protect the natural resources from the special interests. He sounded his keynote in the statement that "This is one Nation, not forty-six nations."

Senator Beveridge had no sooner retired than cries of "Pinchot! Pinchot!" rang through the house. He was dragged forward by President Baker. The former forester, tears streaming from his eyes, stood until the burst of cheers had subsided and the spectators were again in their seats. His voice shook as he spoke.

"There are but few moments in a man's life like this," he said. "It is magnificent to hear the principles of conservation of natural resources acclaimed as you have done. I have fought many years for conservation, and conservation has won. I thank you."

Among the other speakers were Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and J. S. Whipple, Forest, Fish, and Game Commissioner of the State of New York.

Members of the State Conservation Commission held a separate meeting tonight at which addresses were made on technical subjects.

Judge Short of California said to-day that a meeting of a Western Conservation Congress would be called in the near future.

"It might be called immediately," Judge Short said, "were it not for the fear that members of this congress might look on it as a hostile move. There is no disposition on our part to bolt this convention. We look upon this congress as having an educational value, and we're going to remain."

Before Gov. Stubbs left for his home in Kansas he said:

"They can't hurt anybody by such a meeting. Let 'em have it."

Resources Best Protected by Those Who Are Directly Concerned.

POINTS FROM MR. HILL'S SPEECH.

The need of the hour is to conserve conservation.

The time is ripe to distinguish between real and fanciful conservation.

The National machine is too big and too distant, slow, cumberous, and costly.

Irrigation would have been more cheaply done if turned over to private enterprise or committed to the several States.

Coal mining must be carried on upon a large scale to be commercially possible.

While we lament the exhaustion of our coal supply, we maintain a tariff that compels us to draw upon it continuously.

What the United States needs is not reckless destruction nor an embargo upon our splendid Western commonwealths by locking up a considerable portion of their available area.

The West believes in forest preservation, practically, and not theoretically.

The use of water within a State is the property of the State and cannot be taken from it.

The worst scandals of the State land misappropriation are insignificant when compared with the record of the National.

The soil is the ultimate employer of all industry and the greater source of all wealth.

In 1908 the excess of American exports over imports was $666,000,000; by 1910 it had fallen to $187,000,000.

Impending misfortune only the conservation of a neglected soil and all the interests connected with it can avert.

Spendthrift men and spendthrift Nation must face at last the same law and the same penalty.

Any conservation movement worthy of the name must place high upon its programme the saving of capital and of credit from the rapacious hands of Socialist as well as monopolist.

A tariff on any raw material forbids the conservation of similar natural resources here.

Whoever attempts to make conservation the bone of personal controversy or the beast of burden to carry any faction into power or popularity is its worst enemy.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 7.—James J. Hill, addressing the Conservation Congress today on "Practical Conservation," said, in part:

"Belief in a comprehensive system of conservation of all resources has now taken possession of the public mind. What remains to be done is that most difficult of all the tasks of statesmanship—the application of an accepted principle and making it conform in all its general outlines to the common good.

"To pack the fact into a single statement, the need of the hour and the end to which this congress should devote itself is to conserve conservation. It has come into that peril which no great truth escapes—the danger that lurks in the house of its friends. It has been used to forward that serious error of policy, the extension of the powers and activities of the National Government at the expense of those of the States. The time is ripe and this occasion is most fitting for distinguishing between real and fanciful conservation, and for establishing a sound relation of means to ends.

"We should first exclude certain activities that come only indirectly under the term 'conservation.' The reclamation service is one. Its work is not preservation, but utilization. The arid lands of this country have been where they now are, the streams have flowed past them uselessly ever since Adam and Eve were in the Garden of Eden. Irrigation was practiced in prehistoric time. What we have to do is to bring modern methods to the aid of one of the oldest agricultural arts. It is mentioned here because its progress illustrates the dangers that beset conservation projects proper.

Government Work Expensive.

"They are dangers inseparable from National control and conduct of affairs. The machine is too big and too distant; its operation is slow, cumbrous, and costly. So slow is it that settlers are waiting in distress for water promised long ago. So faulty has been the adjustment of time and money that Congress had to authorize the issue of $20,000,000 of National obligations to complete projects still hanging in the air. So expensive is it that estimates have been exceeded again and again. The settler has had either to pay more than the cost figure he relied on or seek cheaper land in Canada.

"It cost the Government from 50 per cent more to twice as much as it would private enterprise to put water on the land. Under the Lower Yellowstone project the charge is $42.50 per acre, and $1 per acre annually for maintenance. The Sunnyside project carries a charge of $52 per acre, and 95 cents maintenance. Under the North Platte project the charge is $45 per acre, plus a maintenance charge not announced. These projects, in widely separated localities, entail a land charge prohibitive to the frontier settlers to provide homes for those for whom this work was believed to have been undertaken. The pioneer settler who can pay, even in ten annual installments, from $3,500 to $4,000 for eighty acres of land, in addition to the yearly fee per acre, must have some other resources to aid him.

"The work of irrigation would have been more cheaply done if turned over to private enterprise or committed to the several States within which lie the lands to be reclaimed. This is not a criticism upon any individual. It is merely one more proof of the excessive cost of Government work.

"Toward the conservation of our mineral resources little can be done by Federal action. The output is determined not by the mine owner, but by the consumer. The withdrawal of vast areas of supposed coal lands tends to increase price by restricting the area of possible supply. It is foolish to talk of leasing coal lands in small quantities in order to prevent monopoly. Mining must be carried on upon a large enough scale to be commercially possible. The people of the West see little practical difference between a resource withheld entirely from use and a resource dissipated or exhausted. They understand by conservation the most economical development and best care of resources.

Tariff Causes Drain on Coal.

"The prairie States are more interested than any other in the question of cheap fuel. We do not depend upon Alaska for our future supply. There is abundant coal on the Pacific Coast nearer to our seaports and commercial centres. While we lament the exhaustion of our coal supply, we maintain a tariff that compels us to draw upon it continuously. It would be well to cast out this beam before we worry too much over the conservation mote.

"The iron deposits of Minnesota, the most wonderful in the world, are to-day not only furnishing industry in the Nation with its raw material but are piling up a school fund at home that is the envy of other States and adding more and more every year to the contents of the State's treasury. Minnesota is considering the reduction of her general tax levy by one-half. Would it be better if these lands were to-day held idle and unproductive by the Federal Government, or worked only on leases whose proceeds went into the Federal Treasury and enabled Congress to squander a few more millions in annual appropriations?

"Against some forestry theories the West enters an even stronger plea. What the United States needs is neither reckless destruction nor an embargo upon our splendid Western Commonwealths by locking up a considerable portion of their available area. There were, by the last report of the Forestry Service, over 194,500,000 acres withdrawn from use in our forest reserves on June 30, 1909. Of this, nearly 58 per cent., over 112,000,000 acres, or 175,000 square miles, lies in six Western States. That is an area six-sevenths the size of Germany or France. It is 80 per cent. of the size of the unappropriated and unreserved land in those six States.

"The forest reserves and the lands conveyed by Congressional grants to private interests in Oregon amount to some 50,000 square miles. More than half the area of this great State has been withdrawn by action of the Government in one way or another from cultivation and the enjoyment and profit of the people of the State. Over one-third of Idaho and 27 per cent. of Washington are forest reserves. Colorado is almost as badly off; and not more than 30 per cent. of its forest reserves is covered with merchantable timber, while about 40 per cent. has no timber at all.

"On the Olympic peninsula are lands reported to be withdrawn to conserve our water supply where the annual rainfall amounts to something like seven to ten feet. According to the official report, the cost of administering the Forest Service in 1909 was a little short of $8,000,000, and the receipts were $1,800,000. The deficit on current account alone was over $1,100,000. The total disbursements were over $4,400,000, and the actual deficit $2,600,000. The Forestry Service has over 2,000 employes. In 1909 they planted 611 acres and sowed 1,126 acres more.

"The West believes in forest preservation. But it believes practically and not theoretically. It realizes that a good thing may cost too much, and is not ignorant of the extravagant financial tendency of every Federal department and bureau. It wants all good agricultural land open to the settler, wherever it may be situated. It wants timber resources conservatively utilized, and not wasted or destroyed.

Water Power Should be Used.

"In connection with forestry interests there is just now much question of the conservation of water power sites. The demand is that Federal lands forming such sites should be withdrawn and leased for the profit and at the pleasure of the Federal Government. Against this the whole West rightly protests. The water power differs from the coal deposit in that it is not destroyed by use. It will do its undiminished work as long as the rains fall and the snows melt. Not the resource but the use of it is a proper subject for conservation and regulation. To withdraw these sources of potential wealth from present utilization is to take just so much from the industrial capital of the States in which they are situated.

"The attempted Federal control of water powers is illegal, because the use of the waters within a State is the property of the State, and cannot be taken from it, and that the State may and actually does, in the case of Idaho for example, perfectly safeguard its water powers from monopoly and make them useful without extortion, has been shown conclusively by Senator Borah in a speech in the United States Senate in which this whole subject is admirably covered. Ought the public domain be administered by the Government and disposed of for its profit, or opened to the people and shared with the States? Let experience determine which was the better guardian. The worst scandals of State land misappropriation, and there were many, are insignificant when compared with the record of the Nation.

"There remains an opportunity and a need of conservation transcending in value all others combined. The soil is the ultimate employer of all industry and the greatest source of all wealth. It is the universal banker. Upon the maintenance unimpaired in quantity and quality of the tillable area of the country its whole future is conditioned. A glance at the following table of our exports for the last five years in three great schedules dependent directly upon the soil tells the whole story:

	Breadstuffs.	Meat and Dairy Products.	Cattle, Sheep, and Hogs.
1906	$186,468,901	$210,990,065	$43,516,258
1907	184,120,702	202,392,508	35,617,074
1908	215,260,588	192,802,708	30,235,621
1909	159,929,221	166,521,949	18,556,736
1910	133,191,330	130,632,783	12,456,109

Decline Is Enormous.

"With the exception of the increase in breadstuffs in 1907-8 caused by our desperate need to send something abroad that would bring in money to stay a panic, the decline is constant and enormous. A continuance of similar conditions, and no change in sight, must mean partial food famine and hardship prices in the home market; an annual indebtedness abroad which, having no foodstuffs to spare, we must pay in cash; and financial depression and industrial misfortune because we have drawn too unwisely upon the soil. This impending misfortune only the conservation of a neglected soil and all the interests connected with it can avert.

"The saving feature of the situation is the interest already awakened in agricultural improvement; an interest which it should be the first object of this Congress to deepen and preserve. At our present rate of production and consumption we may cease to be a wheat exporting nation within the next ten or fifteen years, perhaps earlier. Is there any other field where conservation could produce results so immense and so important?

"Any survey of practical conservation would be imperfect if it omitted the almost desperate necessity at this time of conserving capital and credit. Conservation of cash and credit is important to the farmer as it saves or wastes results of his work and his work furnishes the greater part of the Nation's wealth. Our States, including cities and minor civil subdivisions, have run in debt about three-quarters of a billion dollars in the last twelve years. Public expenditure is increasing everywhere. Public economy is a virtue either lost or despised. Any conservation movement worthy of the name must place high upon its programme the saving of capital and credit from the rapacious hands of socialist as well as monopolist. Extravagance is undermining the industry of this country as surely as the barbarians broke down and looted that mighty empire with whose civilization and progress Ferrero repeatedly insists that ours has so much in common.

"We must stand for conservation everywhere; in the tedious as well as in the interesting application; where it cuts into our pleasures and habits and jostles our comfortable, easy-going ways of thought just as firmly as where it is hand in glove with self-interest.

"The tariff in some respects is a great enemy of conservation. Whatever we may think of it as a general industrial policy, every one can see that, by excluding the raw products of other countries, it throws the entire burden of their consumption upon our own resources and thus exhausts them unnecessarily. The tariff on forest products cuts down our own forests, a tariff on coal depletes our mines, a tariff on any raw material forbids the conservation of similar natural resources here.

"This congress announced from the first its purpose to deal with the subject of conservation in a practical spirit. The present condition of the movement, now in the third stage of its development, demands it. We have to apply the conservation principle, as we have eventually to apply every other, to our domestic economics; to work it out in the experience and practice of everyday life. How this may be done can be stated in the form of a few conclusions that raise the word conservation from the name of a more or less vague, diffuse, and disputable theory to that of a practical guide to legislation and administration.

Must Be Kept Out of Politics.

"Conservation is wholly an economic, not in any sense a political principle. The Nation has suffered and still suffers so much from transferring other economic questions to politics that the mistake should not be repeated. Whoever attempts to make conservation the bone of a personal controversy or the beast of burden to carry any faction into power or popularity is its worst enemy.

"'Conservative' is the adjective corresponding to the noun 'conservation.' Any other attitude toward this movement, either radical or reactionary, is treason to its name and to its spirit. It should mean no more and no less than dealing with our resources in a spirit of intelligence, honesty, care for both the present and the future, and ordinary business common sense.

"Conservation does not mean forbidding access to resources that could be made available for present use. It means the freest and largest development of them consistent with the public interest and without waste.

"The determination in each case as to what extent a given resource should be utilized and how far reserved for the future is an intensely practical, individual, and above all it is a local question. It should be carefully considered in all its aspects by both Nation and State, and should finally rest within lines determined by proper legislation, as far as may be under the control of local authority. Experience proves that resources are not only best administered but best protected from marauders by the home people who are most deeply interested, and who are just as honest, just as patriotic, and infinitely better informed on local conditions than the National Government can possibly be. It is clear that every one of the many problems all over the country can be better understood where they are questions of the lives and happiness of those directly interested."

WILSON URGES SAVING SOIL.

Food Production Is Falling Behind Our Growth in Population.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 7.—James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, addressed the Conservation Congress to-day on "Farm Conservation." He said in part:

"Manufactures increased and prospered greatly during the last half century because food was cheaper in our country than in any one with which we competed. Food is cheap no longer. Population has increased faster than production from the soil. A new soil given to all who desired was the basis of our past prosperity. The soils of our older settlements were robbed and neglected in the East and in the South; they had little or no attention. Railways were pushed into the Mississippi Valley, where the glaciated soils were so rich, so easily cultivated, and supposed to be inexhaustible. The Government policy of giving farms to the people has exhausted the supply in the regions where rainfall usually assures good crops. The mountain ranges hold the snow and some valley lands are being irrigated which yield abundantly, but only a small per cent. of land west of the one hundredth meridian is being irrigated. So we have found our limitations. Bread and meat are so dear that employers of labor are under the necessity of increasing compensation that people may live.

"Since the civil war heavy exportations from the farm have paid foreign debts and kept the balance of trade in our favor. Exportations from the farm are steadily falling off, both of meats and breadstuffs. We grow more crops every year, but not enough to feed our increasing population and keep up our exports.

"If our country is to grow and develop, as patriotic people hope, we must conserve the fertility of our soils and the moisture that is precipitated, not only on our farms, but that which falls upon the highlands and now flows idly to the seas in all sections of our country."

The importance of having your child's eyes examined by an oculist before school opens is emphasized by the fact that the City of New York spends thousands of dollars each year to protect the eyes of school children.

Home study during the fall and winter months is usually done under artificial light and is consequently a great strain on the children's eyes.

If your child dislikes study don't conclude that it is just an excuse to avoid it—perhaps it suffers eye distress or headaches after its school work or home study.

We have prescribed resting glasses for children's use during school hours and home study in thousands of cases, where the improvement in the child's progress in school was noticeable almost immediately after glasses were prescribed.

We know that glasses worn in childhood avoid, in many instances, the constant use of glasses in later years.

Bring your child to any of our seven stores and have one of our Physicians examine its eyes without charge or obligation. If our Oculist advises glasses we make them complete for from $2.00 upward. Our reputation and standing are sufficient guarantee that we will not prescribe glasses unless they are absolutely necessary.

ROCK SHOWER HITS FIFTH AVENUE HOMES

Blast from St. Thomas's Church Excavation Drops Stones in Rockefeller's Back Yard.

WINDOWS NEARBY SMASHED

A Big Rock Fell on the Floor in Mrs. Eben Wright's Home—Glassware Shattered All Around.

A shower of stones, some as big as paving blocks, fell on some of the best houses in the neighborhood of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street at 5 o'clock last night after an unusually heavy blast had been set off in an excavation in the rear of St. Thomas's Church, at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street. A big rock rose gracefully in the air and buried itself in the roof of a three-story extension in the rear of the residence of William A. Kissam at 9 West Fifty-third Street. Another was hurled across the street, through a window and into the drawing room of Mrs. Eben Wright on the third floor of 10 West Fifty-third Street. Smaller stones rained down into the back yard of John D. Rockefeller's home at 4 West Fifty-fourth Street.

In the home of Vernon C. Brown of 17 West Fifty-third Street the shock of the blast broke a pane of glass, and glassware was broken and pictures set askew in the homes of E. Parmelee Prentice, 5 West Fifty-third Street; Benjamin Stern, 7 West Fifty-third Street, and William Barbour, 11 West Fifty-third Street.

St. Thomas's Church was badly damaged by fire four years ago, and only a portion, temporarily repaired, has been in use since, pending the erection of a new building. Six weeks ago excavation was begun in the rear of the church. Patrick Reddy, contractor, of 111th Street and Lenox Avenue had the contract for the excavation, Norcross Brothers of 160 Fifth Avenue being the general contractors for the building.

The stone that plunged through Mr. Kissam's tin roof and splintered the planking on which the tin was laid frightened Mrs. Kate Scully, the caretaker, almost out of her wits. She ran to the street, thinking that the house had been blown up, and continued her dash down the avenue till she came upon Policeman Bennet.

Bennet hurried back with her. When he got to the excavation he found that the foreman and all the laborers had gone for the night. He learned that the stone that broke Mrs. Wright's window entered just three minutes after Mrs. Wright's daughter, Miss Leta, and a maid had left the room.

He learned from Nicholas Staunton, caretaker in Mr. Rockefeller's house, that the Oil King's conservatory in the rear of the house had been in the midst of a half bushel of falling small stones, and had not been hit. So far as he could learn the temporary rectory of the church at 3 West Fifty-third Street, which is occupied by the Rev. Dr. Stires when he is in New York, was undamaged, but there was no caretaker in charge, and he could not get in. Dr. Stires is at Lake George.

In none except the Wright home, of the houses affected by the blast, was the family at home, all the others being occupied by caretakers.

"For over a month," said Nicholas Staunton, Mr. Rockefeller's caretaker, "I have not allowed my children to play in the back yard on account of the blasting, and though no damage has been done so far, I am afraid every time a blast is let off that some one will get hurt. There are showers of stones every day."

The police of the East Fifty-first Street Station were hunting most of the evening for the foreman in charge of the blasting, but up to a late hour they had not even learned his name. They promise to do something about it to-day.

POOR'S MANUAL OUT.

Shows Net Railroad Earnings Increased 18.72 Per Cent. in 1909.

The forty-third annual number of Poor's Manual of Railroads is ready for distribution. It is about 25 per cent. larger than the 1909 edition, and is devoted exclusively to statements of railroads, the industrial section having been incorporated this year in a separate volume, which was issued in May.

A feature of the 1910 edition is the large number of analytical tables, so constructed as to offer a test of the financial strength and the operating efficiency of every important system.

The total mileage of steam railroads contained in the work as of Dec. 31, 1909, was 238,356 miles, against 232,046 miles on Dec. 31, 1908, showing an increase of 6,310 miles. The gross earnings for 1909 were $2,513,212,763, as against $2,407,019,810 in 1908, showing an increase of 4.41 per cent., and net earnings were $852,153,280, against $717,802,167 in 1908, an increase of 18.72 per cent.

Stock capital was $8,030,680,963, against $7,641,913,086, an increase of 5.09 per cent., and funded debt was $9,118,103,813, against $8,788,518,045, an increase of 3.75 per cent.

Both passenger and freight revenues, reduced to the mileage basis, showed decreases as compared with 1908. The ton mile revenue was 0.757 cents, against 0.767 cents in 1908, and the passenger mile revenue was 1.934 cents, against 1.964 cents in 1908.

other Democratic members that the absent Republican members had had sufficient notice of the meeting and should have been present. Mr. James said the matters at issue had been under informal consideration for three months, that action was desired, and that further delay was unnecessary.

The resolution of Mr. Madison, as amended by Mr. James, was then voted on and resulted as follows: Yeas—Senators Fletcher and Purcell and Representatives Madison, James, and Graham. Senators Nelson and Sutherland and Representative McCall declined to vote for the same reason stated before.

Mr. McCall moved that the committee take a recess until Friday morning. On this motion the vote stood as follows: Yeas—Senators Nelson and Sutherland and Representatives McCall and Madison, total, 4. Opposed—Senators Purcell and Fletcher and Representatives James and Graham, total, 4. The motion was declared lost by a tie vote.

Madison Resolution Adopted.

Representative Madison's original resolution—in the nature of a substitute for Senator Fletcher's—was then taken up, and, its consideration being insisted upon in the absence of Messrs. Denby and Olmsted, Senator Sutherland and Representative McCall withdrew from the meeting.

A vote was then taken on the substitution of the Madison resolution, resulting as follows: Yeas—Senators Fletcher and Purcell and Representatives Madison, James, and Graham. Total, 5. Present, but not voting, Senator Nelson.

Chairman Nelson called the attention of the committee to the fact that no quorum was present. Mr. James made the point that no member of the committee had made the point of no quorum.

A vote was then taken on the original resolution offered by Senator Fletcher as amended by the substitution of Mr. Madison's resolution. The vote was: Yeas—Senators Fletcher and Purcell and Representatives James, Madison, and Graham. Total, 5. Present but not voting, Senator Nelson.

The Chairman once more reminded the committee that no quorum was present, and Mr. James of Kentucky again made the point that no member of the committee had raised the point of no quorum.

Senator Fletcher then offered the following as a separate resolution.

> Resolved, That a report to the Congress be prepared setting forth the grounds and reasons as shown by the evidence for this finding and recommendation, including other matters referred to this committee, and that the same be submitted to this committee on Friday next at 10 o'clock A. M.

On this motion the vote was as follows: Yeas—Senators Fletcher and Purcell and Representatives Madison, James, and Graham; total, 5. Present but not voting: Senator Nelson.

In order to make the record complete the Chairman further stated that no member of the committee had raised the point of no quorum. A recess was then taken until Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

INSURGENTS ARE PLEASED.

Declare That in Effect the Committee Has Condemned Ballinger.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The news that five members of the joint Congressional committee that investigated the Ballinger-Pinchot affair had voted to-day in support of the charges against the Secretary of the Interior, following upon the evidence of a general landslide all over the country in favor of progressive Republicanism, has given the insurgents tremendous encouragement. They declare that as far as the country is concerned the investigating committee has condemned Mr. Ballinger.

There seems to be a general inclination to doubt that the absence of Senators Root and Flint and Representatives Olmsted and Denby was altogether accidental. Mr. Root, of course, could not have been present at to-day's meeting, having landed in New York only yesterday from Europe. Senator Flint, however, is in California, and Mr. Olmsted is supposed to be in Pennsylvania. It has been known for many weeks that the committee would hold its final sessions in Minneapolis, beginning on Sept. 5, and the insurgents feel that if the regulars had been very anxious to register their approval of Mr. Ballinger they would have found time to get to the meeting.

NO ROOSEVELT AID AGAINST LA FOLLETTE

Colonel in Milwaukee Says Party Must Accept Clear Verdict of the Primaries.

HE VISITS TRADE SCHOOLS

There to Learn, He Says, but Gives Some Advice—Replies to Mayor Seidel—Speaks to Big Crowds.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 7.—Milwaukee has given Col. Roosevelt a day of decidedly different character from most of those he has spent in the last week and a half. The great crowd, with its cheers and enthusiasm, was not met until evening, when he addressed two vast audiences, and dealt with topics much in the public mind and having close relation to the line of public policies which the Colonel has been discussing throughout this trip.

Beginning the day with a tiff with Milwaukee's Socialist Mayor, Emil Seidel, who is a German, Col. Roosevelt for the rest of the day made his own programme as he went. He inspected the city's trade schools, attended two luncheons and a dinner, and took an automobile ride to White Fish Bay before he spoke to-night. Late in the evening he went to his car, to start early in the morning for Freeport, Ill., where he is to speak to-morrow, and for Chicago, which he is to visit later in the day.

Almost immediately upon his arrival here at 8 o'clock this morning Col. Roosevelt made a plain declaration in favor of abiding by the result of the primaries yesterday, in which Senator La Follette won an overwhelming nomination for re-election by the next Legislature, which meets in the coming Winter. There has been a desperate fight here to defeat La Follette, and when it became apparent to his opponents that they could not hope to carry the primaries against him they began resorting to schemes to beat him in the Legislature.

One of these schemes was to secure the nomination of stalwarts, as they call standpatters out here, under pledge to vote in accordance with the result of the primaries, but in the hope that enough of them could be nominated to control the party council which makes up the platform for the campaign. The plan was then to adopt a platform on which La Follette could not possibly stand. If he repudiated it the way would be open, his opponents figured, for a legitimate refusal to elect him to the Senate.

Speaks Out on La Follette.

This is what Col. Roosevelt said about it:

"It has been stated to me since my arrival here that is spite of Senator La Follette's having carried the primaries in fair and open contest, an effort will be made to beat him in the Legislature. I do not for one moment believe this, because any such conduct would be from every point of view an outrage and would be a deliberate violation of good faith. When in Oregon the Democratic candidate for Senator, Gov. Chamberlain, carried the primaries and it was proposed that the Republican Legislature should turn him down, I very strongly and publicly took the position that such an act would be one of bad faith by the Legislature toward the people, and I take the same position here in regard to Senator La Follette."

Col. Roosevelt has had some good times in Milwaukee in days past at the Milwaukee Press Club and at the Deutscher Club. It was at the invitation of the Press Club, sent to him in Africa long ago, that he made the trip this time. The Press Club had prepared a strenuous programme for him, which would have occupied more than two days if it had all been carried out, strenuous as the Colonel is. And it had not included in that arrangement a visit to the German Club and some other things which the Colonel wanted to do, which is why the Colonel made his own programme.

In neither the original nor the revised programme did Mayor Seidel have part. In the first and last edition of The Big Stick, a newspaper devoted exclusively to Col. Roosevelt's affairs, published by the Press Club in honor of the day, there was a letter by Mayor Seidel explaining why he would not serve as a member of the committee to welcome Col. Roosevelt. He considered that some things which the Colonel had written about Socialism were unkind, and said that the Colonel could not expect to be welcomed by him.

Before he had his breakfast Col. Roosevelt issued a reply, telling people that he would prefer to have them read what he had written rather than what the Mayor said about what he had written. The Colonel added that the fact that the city administration was not represented in the ceremonies did not trouble him.

After a breakfast with the Press Club committee at the Hotel Pfister the first thing was the visit to the trade schools. Then came the German Club, luncheon at the hotel, a visit to a resort up the lake a few miles, which included an automobile ride through the most beautiful section of the city, and a meal, variously called dinner, supper, and luncheon, at the Press Club, which included some special high jinks of the kind which has helped to make the club famous.

After dinner the Colonel went out to make his speech. He was scheduled originally to speak in the big new auditorium, but the building would hold only a part of the crowd which waited to hear him, and so another was engaged for an overflow meeting. Col. Roosevelt spoke at the overflow meeting first and then went to the auditorium.

Inspects Trades School.

At the boys' trades school the Colonel spent nearly an hour questioning the instructors and students about their work. "I'm here to learn, not to teach," he said.

"It is important that each man should do a little more than pull his own weight in the world," he said as the boys on the second floor gathered around him. "And it is of vital consequence to him to have him trained so that he can begin early instead of leaving him to be trained in a haphazard way. That is what this school is doing."

Then the Colonel went to the girls' school. Around the walls of the sewing room were exhibits of the work done, from simple aprons to thin, filmy lace-covered, hand-embroidered things, to manufacture which, the Colonel was told, it takes a long course of training.

"I don't think a girl has really been educated unless she can do this work," said the Colonel, as he gazed on the samples held up for his inspection. "Is it your view," he asked of the members of the School Board who were with him, "that the public should provide education so that every boy and girl may be trained to be a self-sustaining unit of the body politic?"

He was told that that was the School Board's idea, and replied:

"By George! I think it is the only plan by which our democracy can grow."

Then Col. Roosevelt said he wanted to go to the Deutscher Club. As he mounted the steps of the clubhouse the Germans sang "Hoch Soll Er Leben."

"I wish I could pose as your invited guest," said the Colonel. "I found out last night that no arrangements had been made for a visit to the Deutscher Club, and I said I was going there, anyway. When I was in Berlin I told the Emperor that I should visit this club again in the near future, and that I would bring his regards."

Emil Von Schleintz, an old friend of Col. Roosevelt, said: "The Germans are glad to have you back here again. This is a German city as you know. We permit the publication of English newspapers here, but otherwise we do not encourage the use of foreign languages."

Eighteen years ago Col. Roosevelt visited the German Club on a night when the proceedings ended at 3 A. M. with a "walk around," participated in by all the men and women there. He promptly recalled that event this morning. A luncheon was spread for him, and the finest wines in the famous cellars of the club opened in his honor.

No such crowds as have marked the last few days turned out here to gaze at the Colonel, but all day there were persons standing in the streets about the hotel waiting for an opportunity to get a glimpse of him.

There was to have been a reception at the hotel in the afternoon, but the Colonel pleaded desire for rest and went to his room after the luncheon, and the public reception was called off. He did meet, however, a few of the prominent men of the city before he went out to White Fish Bay.

Col. Roosevelt's Speeches.

There were some essentials of good citizenship, the Colonel said, at the overflow meeting, upon which all good Americans could unite. They were obedience to law and the suppression of corruption and lawless violence and defiance of law. The American Government, he declared, was bound to be the most successful form of government on the earth.

"Let me tell you, Sir," shouted an auditor as if protesting, but became silent in obedience to the persuasion of his friends.

"I am aware that we need certain changes in the law," continued Col. Roosevelt. "Take for instance our corporations. A corporation is a necessary instrument of modern business. Steam, electricity, and the growth of cities, of communication and the means of transmitting news, all have combined in bringing into effect a new type of business organization. But corporations are necessary. I would protect them absolutely in their rights.

"Remember friends, that it is a very difficult thing to get honest treatment from any one unless you give honest treatment yourself.

"I would not ask the corporations to behave well as a favor. I would tell them that they had to behave well, because if they did not we would make them. The corporation is entitled to its rights. It should be protected in its rights, but it is not entitled to vote, and it is not entitled to own any man in public life or to send any man into public life."

Again, too, Col. Roosevelt advocated a workingman's compensation act.

Most of the Colonel's speech at the Auditorium was in the nature of a talk on good citizenship.

Speaking especially to newspaper men, Col. Roosevelt talked to them of the importance of their work, and declared that in some ways their profession ranked above all others. The editor and publisher and writer honestly and truthfully placing facts before the public, he said, rendered an important public service, and in fact were practically holding public office.

The Colonel then extolled the life work of Horace Rablee of Milwaukee as eminently exemplifying the high character of the ideal newspaper man.

"If a newspaper man is neutral, the performance of his work does neither good nor evil, but if he insists upon being neutral on all moral questions he is filling a position about which you cannot say much in blame and not much in the way of praise," said the Colonel. "He must have high ideals and he must be able to get those ideals adopted by a reasonable proportion of his fellows if his profession is to rank as high as it ought to."

He condemned the position taken by a prominent publisher in New York that the sole object of a newspaper was to give the people what they wanted, so as to build up circulation. A newspaper, he insisted, should tell the truth, and the whole truth, and should carefully refrain from scandalizing the character of good men, although it should be fearless in exposing corruption wherever it might be found. In a Republic like this, he said, it was essential that the people should know the character of their public servants.

"The politician—I am a politician—and the writer for periodicals and the press—again I am one of them—should always bear in mind that the Eighth and Ninth Commandments are equally binding—'Thou shalt not steal' and 'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.'"

The Colonel concluded his address by picturing the American Republic as the hope of the democracy of the world.

For the remainder of the trip he is out to get all the fun he can. The list of formal speeches is ended, and such discussion of policies as he makes now will be inormal and impromptu. There is yet one important speech to be delivered—at the Hamilton Club in Chicago to-morrow night—but he has not written that out. The Colonel is anxious to get back to New York and have a rest before plunging into the complicated New York fight. But he is looking forward to that fight in anticipation of entertainment as well as work.

ROOT OUT OF THE FIGHT.

Senator Decides to Let Roosevelt and the Old Guard Go It Alone.

Senator Root put in his first day in town since his arrival from Europe yesterday in attempting to find out at first hand just how the local Republican situation stands, and while he would not talk of the matter, it was apparent that he won't meddle in the mix-up.

He saw several local leaders, principal among them being Chairman Griscom of the County Committee, at the Hotel Belmont before leaving for his country place up-State. All of them were backward afterward in talking of their conference with the Senator.

It was learned, however, that Mr. Root will not add his influence to either side of the Roosevelt-Sherman controversy, although he may take an active part in the campaign after the convention. He will stay at his country place in all probability until the nominations have been made.

The decision of the Senator to keep out of the present fight came somewhat as a surprise and disappointment to the local Roosevelt faction. They had placed a good deal of confidence in his support in the fight against Chairman Woodruff, William Barnes, Jr., and the rest of the "Old Guard." They took it for granted that he would be only too ready to take up the cudgels against the men who administered a rebuke to him last Winter when he attempted to assume control of the State organization. He was counted as with the Roosevelt faction or any other faction that would be against Woodruff and Barnes.

What happened last Winter is fresh in the minds of all the members of the local organization. After practically announcing at a dinner at the Republican Club one night that he would take over the reins of the State organization, Mr. Root made a trip to the city from Washington during the squable over the apointment of a successor to Surveyor of the Port Clarkson and summoned the local leaders to him. They all came—Woodruff, Barnes, and Wadsworth. The result was disastrous, however, the State Chairman and his friends showing remarkable fighting spirit, and practically telling the Senator to mind his own business.

Hardly any of the local Republicans of importance are of the opinion, however, that this "spanking" is responsible the present controversy, although this opinion was expressed. Another version is that the Senator "has seen a light," or, in other words, believes that the Old Guard will win against Col. Roosevelt and that therefore he does not want to cast his lot with a losing case.

The most frequent opinion expressed, however, involved a bigger reason. So far President Taft has not given any indication of how he stands in the matter, and it is generally believed that he will not do so or take part in the squabble. It is natural that the Senator should follow the Administration, and stand with the President in his example.

Chairman Woodruff and Mr. Barnes were both at State Headquarters yesterday, but had little to say for publication. They did not care to comment on the Congressional developments in New Hampshire or the Vermont election. They were also silent on the elimination of Senator Root from the State situation.

Roosevelt's Popularity Abroad.

Returning yesterday from a trip abroad the Rev. Dr. John Douglas Adam, pastor of the Munn Avenue Presbyterian Church of East Orange, N. J., said he had looked in vain to find the sentiment against Roosevelt supposed to have existed in the British Isles ever since the ex-President made his famous speech about conditions in Egypt. "I am willing to admit," said the minister, "that I have heard many people over here criticise our former President, but I must say that I was greatly surprised with the favorable sentiment over there in both political parties."

Glen Island Rings with Sulzer Cheers.

Congressman William Sulzer and Gen. Daniel E. Sickles were the guests of honor and principal speakers at an outing of the German Independence League yesterday at Glen Island. The outing was attended by large numbers of Sulzer enthusiasts from Westchester County, who applauded the mention of the Congressman as a Gubernatorial candidate.

CITY LEGISLATORS IN A BLACKLIST

Citizens' Union Gives Their Records and Tells Who Should and Should Not Be Retired.

SOME CALLED DANGEROUS

Most of the "Bad Boys" Are Democrats, but a Few Republicans Get in the Class, Too.

The Citizen's Union yesterday made public its annual "good and bad boy" classification of the New York City members of the State Senate. Senators Agnew and Newcomb are placed at the head of the class, with rewards of merit to Senators Brough, Bayne, who represents the district made up of Staten Island and Rockland County, and Travis of Brooklyn. These men are all Republicans.

The black marks are distributed principally among Democrats, although the list of recipients includes two Republicans, Senators Alt and Kissel of Brooklyn. The full list of Senators whose records it is declared "show clearly that they should be retired from legislative office" reads:

Charles Alt, (Rep., Tenth District, Kings;) Barth S. Cronin, (Dem., Fifth District, Kings;) Thomas H. Cullen, (Dem., Third District, Kings;) James J. Frawley, (Dem., Twentieth District, New York;) Thomas F. Grady, (Dem., Fourteenth District, New York;) Thomas C. Harden, (Dem., Seventh District, Kings;) Dennis J. Harte, (Dem., Queens;) John Kissel, (Rep., Ninth District, Kings;) Thomas J. McManus, (Dem., Fifteenth District, New York;) Stephen J. Stilwell, (Dem., Twenty-first District, New York;) Christopher D. Sullivan, (Dem., Eleventh District, New York,) and Timothy D. Sullivan, (Dem.,) Twelfth District, New York.)

The report also says that Senators Caffrey, Schulz, and Wagner "rendered service of a character far above that of other Tammany representatives," and that while, with Senators Burlingame and Gledhill, Republicans of Brooklyn, they are not "reliable representatives," they have "made greatly improved records in the second year of their terms," and consequently no recommendation is made concerning them.

The bill of particulars against some of the more prominent Senators reads:

CAFFREY, WILLIAM J. A., (Dem., Thirteenth District.)—Attentive to legislative duties, but failed to justify fully promise of independence given in first year of his term. Though at times he withstood machine pressure, he more frequently yielded to such pressure and voted on important issues against public interest.

CRONIN, BARTH S., (Dem., Fifth District.)—Machine Senator. Voted against public interest on important issues. Fathered ill-considered and dangerous legislation. His record stamps him as enemy of primary and election reform.

CULLEN, THOMAS H., (Dem., Third District.)—Dangerous type of machine Senator. Continued previous bad record. Promoted bad salary legislation. Following Grady leadership, repeatedly voted against public interest. Enemy of primary and election reform.

FRAWLEY, JAMES J., (Dem., Twentieth District.)—Tammany organization Senator, with consistent record this year of opposition to public interest on important issues. Persistent in advocacy of bad special assessment legislation. His votes indicate opposition to primary and election reform.

GLEDHILL, REUBEN L., (Rep., Fourth District.)—Introduced ill-considered and objectionable legislation, but this year greatly improved his record by usually voting on the side of public interest on important issues. Dodged vote on Hinman-Green Direct Primary bill until it was clear his vote would not carry the measure, then voted for it.

GRADY, THOMAS F., (Dem., Fourteenth District, Minority Leader.)—Democratic leader of a bipartisan coalition which strenuously opposed important reforms. The most dangerous enemy of good government in the Senate, though frequent absences rendered him less effective this year. Uncompromising enemy of primary reform.

HARDEN, THOMAS C., (Dem., Seventh District, Vice Patrick H. McCarren, deceased.)—Elected to serve unexpired term of the late Senator McCarren. Followed machine, voting against public interest on important issues. Made record of opposition to primary and election reform.

HARTE, DENNIS J., (Dem., Second District.)—Devoted energies largely to salary legislation and to objectionable special and anti-home rule bills. Voted in favor of condemnation reform, but usually against public interest on other important issues.

KISSEL, JOHN, (Rep., Ninth District.)—Did not show proper interest in his legislative duties. Voted in favor of condemnation reform, but usually against public interest on other important issues.

McMANUS, THOMAS J., (Dem., Fifteenth District)—Tammany machine Senator who continued his previous bad record. As a legislator is of no value to his district or to the city or State. Introduced mainly ill-considered and unsound legislation, and voted against public interest on important issues. Enemy of primary and election reform.

SCHULZ, GEORGE M. S., (Dem., Twenty-second District)—His proposed legislation and his votes show a mixed record. Introduced much bad special legislation; several times broke away from Grady leadership to support good measures. His votes indicate opposition to primary and election reform.

STILWELL, STEPHEN J., (Dem., Twenty-first District)—Promoted objectionable legislation. Made a mixed record of votes on important issues. On the whole, too unreliable to be a valuable representative. Opponent of primary and election reform.

SULLIVAN, C. D., (Dem., Eleventh District)—Three of his five bills were introduced for the single purpose of providing for an additional interpreter in the City Court. Consistently voted against public interest on important issues. Since his last election to the Legislature has been defeated for a county office. Enemy of primary and election reform.

SULLIVAN, T. D., (Dem., Twelfth District)—His attitude toward his legislative duties well illustrated by his absenting himself from the extra session to attend a prizefight in Nevada. Left his district unrepresented by failing to record himself in votes on nearly all of the important issues presented at the regular session. Did not vote on any primary or election bill.

The report on the local Assemblymen will follow in a few days.

SAYS CHEATERS HAD SYSTEM

Prosecutor Tells Court How Weighers Robbed the Government.

The system by which the Government was robbed of duties by underweighing figs, cheese, macaroni, and other imports was outlined yesterday to United States District Judge Martin by Assistant United States District Attorney F. W. Bird, who, with W. L. Wemple, is assisting Special Attorney Henry L. Stimson in the prosecution of three Government employes for their alleged part in the frauds.

The men on trial are George W. Bedell, chief clerk under James E. Vail when Vail was chief of the Weighing Division of the Custom House; Charles H. Wardell, and Charles D. Drew, Assistant Customs Weighers. John W. O'Brien, an Assistant Weigher, who was jointly indicted with the others, died this week and was buried yesterday just as the trial of his associates was begun.

"The dishonesty was accomplished," declared Mr. Bird, "by chief weighers taking advantage of their position to assign their few dishonest assistants to the work requiring a falsification of records. There were several parties to these frauds, the exporters, who put fraudulent figures on their consular invoices; the importers, who furnished the statement of weights forwarded by the exporters; the head weighers, who picked out crooked assistants, and the assistants who made reports to correspond with the fraudulent figures on the false consular invoices.

"The honest weighers were kept at work on consignments to importers who were not paying for fraudulent weights. Half of the profits were given to be divided between the head weighers and their assistants, the other half went to the importers."

Mr. Bird charged that Bedell had originated the scheme of the conspiracy about 1890. Mr. Stimson also addressed the jury. One of the charges, he said, concerned a payment of $500 to Drew by Thomas Doyle, a former employe of Arbuckle Brothers. Doyle is also under indictment. Stimson said that it was through Bedell that the fraudulent weights on the Havemeyer & Elder pier in Brooklyn and other sugar piers were passed and certified. Bedell is charged with accepting money from Frederick B. Sawyer and James T. Hyland.

SOUL-MATE EARLE RECANTS.

Friend Says He Has Gone to Paris to Win Back His First Wife.

Ferdinand Pinney Earle, the most prominent disciple of the soul sister and affinity faiths in this country for several years, has recanted. He has decided that there is nothing like a good, firmly married first wife and has set out for Paris, meaning to get back, if he can, the French wife he put aside three Summers ago to mate with his first affinity, Julia Kuttner. At least so said Alexander Harvey, editor of Current Literature, last night at his home, 26 South Elliot Place, Brooklyn. Mr. Harvey takes some credit to himself for winning the artist back to the old-time faith in ordinarily wedded wives.

The picturesque home of the artist near Monroe, N. Y., has been closed while its owner goes to France to try to persuade his French wife to return to the house which she left, at his request, to make room for Julia Kuttner, whom he brought there even before his wife sailed away with her son for her father's home in Paris. Earle has already made one attempt to get back his first wife, said Mr. Harvey. But her relatives would not allow him to see her, and when he wrote her a letter all the answer he got was a curt note of refusal from her lawyer.

Earle was first influenced in his affinity faith by Shelley, said Mr. Harvey, and he followed that up with suggestions from Bernard Shaw and H. G. Wells and "other brilliantly eccentric authors." "He decided to banish decency," went on the editor last night. "Led further by the evil influence of neurotics, he decided to put aside Emily Fishbacher. Then, of course, he dropped his first affinity. What was to be expected? So it went on with other affinities.

"I have tried to persuade him from his polygamous notions. Not long ago he told me he had decided to reform. I have never caught him in a lie, and I believe him now. But he may not be able to reform. I think if his first wife comes back to him he will stick; if she doesn't he'll presently be scouring the country again for another soul sister."

MORSE BROKE PRISON RULES.

Banker Was in Solitary Cell Only Two Days, Warden Explains.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 7.—Warden W. H. Moyer of the Atlanta Federal Prison this afternoon issued a statement concerning the punishment inflicted on Charles W. Morse some time ago for breach of discipline. The Warden, who was authorized to make the statement by the Attorney General's office in Washington, says that Morse was confined two days in a solitary cell following his refusal to acquaint the prison officials with the source from which he had received certain money which was found upon him on May 13.

"On the second day of Morse's confinement," the Warden says, "I was on my way to see him when I met Mrs. Morse. Mrs. Morse stated that she had given her husband $15, smuggling it into his coat pocket while he was signing some papers in the office. Morse made a similar confession a short time afterward, except he placed the amount given him by his wife at $5 instead of $15. During my interview with him he finally admitted that he had $46 in all, $15 given him by his wife and $31 which his former partner, W. P. Reed, had slipped to him during a conversation between them in the prison.

"As soon as Morse made his confession he was released from the solitary cell; additional punishment accorded him for violating the rules was a reduction from the first to the second grade, and a reduction from his "good behavior time" of twenty days. He now enjoys the same privileges he did before his troubles. He is in better health now than when he was admitted to this institution, and is preparing an index showing the physical condition of the prisoners when they enter and when they leave."

FAILS TO ESTABLISH HARMONY IN QUEENS

Dix's Announcement That Factions Were at Peace Is Answered by a New Revolt.

ALL-NIGHT CONFERENCE VAIN

County Clerk Marger Says He Will Put Forward a Full Primary Ticket, Supported by Many Leaders.

After an all-night conference between John A. Dix, the new Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and representatives of the warring factions in Queens County the former announced that harmony had been restored, that there would be no unseating of delegates at Rochester this year, and that at the Queens primaries there would be no breaking of heads.

All this Mr. Dix said in a confident tone and when news of the peace agreement reached Tammany Hall and other places where local Democrats congregate he was hailed as a greater peace advocate than the holder of any Nobel prize.

When the returns began to come in it developed that not all of the conferees had acquiesced in the decision of the leaders, practically to divide the convention representations this Fall.

Only a few hours after Dix's announcement, County Clerk Martin Mager issued a statement in which he said he would put forward a complete primary ticket in the borough this Fall, and that he would be joined in his revolt by such leaders as James P. Hicks, the old leader of the First and the only man who ever defeated Joseph Cassidy in his home district primaries; Police Magistrate Connolly, Surrogate Daniel Noble, the present Cassidy leader of the Fourth District, and ex-Alderman John J. Hogan, who was a member of the Cassidy committee in the peace conference. Those who will shortly line up behind these men, it was predicted, will include influential men from both factions, and it was evident last night that the dissatisfaction in the Cassidy camp was no less widespread than in the ranks of the Harvey-Gresser combination.

Cassidy's men maintain that he had no reason to enter into a compromise, having control of three out of the four Assembly districts. They declare that they now have Borough President Gresser "on the run."

The Harvey-Gresser men remember their experience in 1906 and 1908, when after beating Cassidy at the primaries, their delegates were unseated by Tammany. They declare that the opposition to Gresser is bound to lose in its fight for his removal, and that there was no occasion for compromising. Thus both the Cassidy and the Harvey-Gresser combinations may find themselves allied.

Four years ago opposition to Cassidy resulted in the election of "anti" delegates to the State Convention, but their credentials were ignored and their seats were filled by Cassidy men. Two years ago, when Sheriff Herbert S. Harvey and President Gresser laid Cassidy in the dust, their delegates met the same fate. At the primaries last Fall Cassidy recaptured practical control of the borough by defeating the combination in three of the four Assembly districts.

Chairman Dix could not be found last night to comment on the new turn in the Queens situation. He was making preparations for the State Committee dinner to-night at the Hotel Knickerbocker. It was said at the headquarters of the committee the affair would be one of the most successful Democratic gatherings ever held in the State.

Dix will preside and will call for informal talks from half a dozen men. It is expected that 450 men will be present, including members of the Democratic State Committee, County Chairmen, members of the State Senate and Assembly, Mayors, editors, local Assembly district leaders, and practically all of the New York Congressional delegation.

Those who will sit upon the dais will represent every wing and faction of the party in the State. They will include John B. Stanchfield, Charles F. Murphy, William F. Sheehan, Nathan Straus, D. Cady Herrick, William J. Conners, Congressmen Fornes and Harrison, Martin H. Glynn, Mayor Furmann of Buffalo, Thomas F. Carmody, Congressmen Goldfogle and Goulden, Norman E. Mack, John H. McCooey, Martin W. Littleton, Edward M. Shepard, Congressman Havens, Daniel F. Cohalan, Thomas F. Grady, Congressman Sulzer, Augustus Van Wyck, Thomas M. Osborne, and John S. Crosby.

Mr. Dix said he expected the representation from up-State to be very large. He has just completed a tour of the State, in which he has been working for harmony and endeavoring to bring all factions of the party together. When asked about candidates he said: "While I do not wish to commit myself to any one man, I will say that I found a strong sentiment everywhere for Mayor Gaynor. In Cayuga County Thomas M. Osborne is very strong, and Havens is very strong in Monroe. I also found much sentiment for Edward M. Shepard. Any man who is acceptable to the delegates is my candidate."

Mr. Dix announced that he has appointed Edward M. Shepard, William Church Osborn, Richard T. Wilson, John S. Crosby, and Seymour Van Santvoord a committee to draw a tentative draft of the platform to be presented at Rochester. It will be turned over to the Committee on Resolutions to be amended or changed if thought wise.

WAR IN THE 19TH DISTRICT.

Hines-Ahearn Leadership Fight Gets Down to Real Blows.

There is a bitter fight in the Nineteenth Assembly District, where James J. Hines and James Ahearn, the present leader and organization candidate for renomination, are drumming up voters for the primary. The battle came to a climax late on Tuesday night when Hines, resenting an attempt of Ahearn's to start an opposition meeting to his own at 116th Street and Eighth Avenue, ran across the street and, according to witnesses, pummeled Ahearn. Henchmen of each separated them.

Several hours later Dave Sullivan, an ex-prizefighter, and at present a lieutenant of Ahearn, was sitting alone at a table in Degnan's restaurant at the same corner, when suddenly fifteen men, said to have been among those at Hines's meeting, entered the place and attacked him with blackjacks, bottles, and knives. Men and women at nearby tables ran screaming from the place. The head waiter, John Madden, tried to interfere and was badly cut about the hands and face. Sullivan himself sank to the floor with several gashes in his head and a possible fracture of the skull. Then the assailants fled. All of them escaped, and when a policeman reached the place he could do nothing but call an ambulance from the Harlem Hospital.

Since then men on both sides of the leadership fight are talking about further combat and accusing each other of importing "gorillas."

ASKS IF ROOSEVELT CAN BRYANIZE PARTY

Col. Watterson Thinks He Is Really Using the Clothes of the Nebraskan.

THREAT OF A REVOLUTION

Roosevelt's Plans Would Mean Abandonment of the Representative System and Life Tenure.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 7.—Col. Henry Watterson in The Courier-Journal to-morrow morning, under the heading, the Republican Party?" will say:

"Can Theodore Roosevelt 'Bryanize'

"While the belated press of the East, lamely hobbling after The Courier-Journal, is dreaming dreams of Caesarism and seeing visions of the man on horseback, unnoting that

Teddy chortles in his glee,
And hies galumphing home—

"May not a rude Kentuckian, modestly observing that he raised and laid that ghost quite a spell ago, open anew the horn-book of political wisdom and prophecy for the particular instruction of Harper's Weekly, The Evening Post, THE NEW YORK TIMES, and The New York Sun?

"'Tray, Blanche, and Sweetheart,' the Colonel described them the other day, 'yelping at my heels,' a 'repartee' which seems none the less biting because appropriated from the ex-President's distinguished kinsman, the late John Randolph of Roanoke. 'Their abuse,' he added, 'is music to my ear and the breath of life to my nostrils.'

"Warlike nostrils, too, that smell the battle from afar, and care no more for Brutus and Cassius, for 'Tray, Blanche, and Sweetheart'; for lions in Africa and kinglets in Europe. In point of fact, the real, vital question before us is no longer the Mexicanizing of the Republic and the Diazification of Theodore, but this: Shall Roosevelt Bryanize the Republican Party?

"The country has not wholly forgotten the cartoons of a few years ago, which represented the President that was and the President that would like to be as the two dromios; nor yet the epigram of the man from Nebraska that the man from Oyster Bay had stolen his clothes while he was in swimming. Many a truth is spoken in jest, dear old Mother Goose assures us. If we carefully examine and closely analyze the Osawatomie manifesto we shall find that most of it is as good Bryan gospel as the Commoner could himself expound.

Resemblance to Bryan.

"There is in all points a wondrous resemblance between Roosevelt and Bryan. That is why The Courier-Journal loves them so. Close of an age. Southern blood, but Western bred, one tracing back to Virginia, the other to Georgia. Voluminous of speech, fearless of consequences, born preachers, moral philosophers, humanitarians. To hell with political economy—every man his own political economist.

"To hell with the Constitution and the courts of law—he is no leader of men nor worthy the confidence of the plain people who cannot show them a livelier thing or two in government, irradiated by the ethics of the new Nationalism and inspired by the statesmanship of righteousness. 'Be virtuous and you will be happy,' wrote Vance of Carolina, 'but you will not have any fun.' Vance was away off. 'We,' exclaim the Siamese twins of the modern tent show, 'are both virtuous and happy and, behold, we have lots of fun.'

"But a truce to badinage. The course of events forecast in these columns unfolds apace. The events unfold—and none the less surely because not at all slowly—a vista of possibilities yet more fantastic than was originally outlined, though even thus far upon the journey there has been no lack of the spectacular.

"Theodore Roosevelt, at least, does not move in a mysterious way his wonders to perform. From Cairo to Rome, from Rome to Vienna, from Vienna to Paris and Berlin and London—why any of them?—and thence to New York and Denver, Chicago, and Fargo, Kansas City, and Omaha, and lo! finally to St. Paul. Who was it met him 'in a pretty grove,' as Mercutio says, 'just without Ravenna?'

"The Colonel is as open as the day. He leaves no one in doubt as to his intentions. His route is laid, his plans are set, his terms are writ, his very time tables have their exits and their entrances fitted to the prearranged line of travel and triumph. His companions de voyage are e'en Pinchot and Garfield. Their objective point? Well, if Taft does not get out of the way he'll have to, though all of us are agreed that he may serve out the rest of his term.

Life Tenure for Roosevelt.

"We recur to the questions put by the Courier Journal to its esteemed contemporaries six months ago, 'to be considered without levity or passion before we are precipitated by the return of our wandering Ulysses into acrimonious controversy,' to wit: Is our representative Government a failure, and do we want and need in the White House a strong man, who will take the bulls of graft by the horns and rend them; who will hold the limitations of the Constitution and the restraints of the courts of law in abeyance whilst he proceeds to purify our public life; because, in that event, Theodore Roosevelt was made for the job; a resolute and courageous and upright man, of great ability and large experience; only let us make no mistake about the terms of the commission to be issued to him, for the reason that it can only mean life tenure and arbitrary, albeit wise and benevolent power.

"So we said amid much derision and [illegible] discredit. Incredulity was the best [illegible] got for a well-intentioned effort amid a period of calm to bring the country to a realizing sense of the import of the issues inevitable to the coming of the most extraordinary figure who has appeared in the world since Napoleon Bonaparte, already Europe's nominee for President of the United States, presently to become in America the most active force in contemporary affairs. Now that the inevitable has arrived, they that were so glib about the absurdity of The Courier-Journal's thoughts seem actually dazed by the Roosevelt performance. They that laughed most at us now abuse him like a pickpocket, or else fall in line in joyous response to all he says and does. They that were skeptical are dumb.

Points to Insurgent Victories.

"Meanwhile, the work of Bryanizing the Republican Party—for that is the real matter—proceeds consumingly: Burrows goes down in Michigan, La Follette goes up in Wisconsin, and just as sure as the waters at Saratoga flow and Lake George refuses to run dry will the Old Guard troop its colors to the Colonel the 27th of this good month of September. Then, most potent, grave, and reverend seignors, what are you going to do about it?

"The play is up to the Republicans, and only the Republicans. What the Democrats may be able to do when the time comes is problematical. This is decidedly not their funeral.

"The politicians, as a rule, are a cowardly set. Without much regard either to tendencies or consequences they follow what seems to be the multitude. We may regard it as certain that from now onward the Republican file leaders will begin to gather about Roosevelt. With the returns of November, sure to show yet greater Republican losses than those of last Tuesday, the cry for Roosevelt will swell into a roar. The argument will be that he, and he alone, can save the party. He proposes to save it by Bryandizing it. Can he do that?

Men like Barnes and Woodruff cannot step him. They merely bring grist to his mill. The newspapers of New York will have to adopt another line of attack if they expect to stay the tide setting in the West and flowing eastward.

"Ridicule and abuse equally fall from the Colonel's back like water from a duck's back. All things that are great are simple. The Roosevelt scheme first to Bryanize the Republican Party and under cover of the issue of the new nationalism—righteousness in public life and the setting of the man above the machine, the cleansing of the Augean stables and the mending of the lot of the lowly and the poor—to sweep the country, though a daring, is a good scheme of practical politics conceived and brought forth by a man of rare sagacity and splendid executive ability.

Protected Interests Placated.

"If it is to be headed off, the real backbone and muscle of Republicanism, the protective tariff system, must take the field, and who shall say that the man so fertile of invention, so fruitful of resources, so expert and so intrepid in action, has not already given the blood and brains of Republican leadership the assurance that their interests shall be duly cared for when 'Teddy comes marching home'?

"Let us have no more fustianizing about kings, and sceptres, Kaisers and crowns. The distinct proposal submitted by the immediate situation to the voters of the United States involves a radical change—an actual revolution—of our established system of checks and balances, substituting a pure democracy for the present representative form, a centralized power at Washington instead of a series of State sovereignties, with a new Jefferson in the person of Theodore Roosevelt to administer it on lines of religion and humanity, not on lines of political economy, the Constitution, and the law."

MEAD WON BY 17,986.

Tariff Had Little Influence, Opponent Says—La Follette's Big Victory.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 7.—Complete returns on the election of Governor yesterday give John A. Mead, (Rep.,) 35,206; Charles Watson, (Dem.,) 17,220. Mead's plurality, 17,986.

The vote in 1908 was: Prouty, (Rep.,) 45,598; Burke, (Dem.,) 15,953. Prouty's plurality, 29,645.

Mr. Watson, in a statement to-day, said the reduction in the Republican plurality was "a rebuke to the Republican machine in Vermont rather than due to any dissatisfaction with National policies. Frankness and fidelity to the truth compel me to say that I believe the tariff had very little influence in the result."

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 7.—Complete returns from 289 election districts in New Hampshire show that the Republicans yesterday nominated Robert P. Bass, progressive, for Governor by a vote of 19,577 to 10,273 for Col. Bertram Ellis, regular.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—Late returns indicate that Senator La Follette's plurality for renomination is 40,000. La Follette ran at least 20,000 votes ahead of the State ticket, which is accounted for by the fact that there were several candidates for the Gubernatorial nomination.

The pluralities of McGovern and the other members of the La Follette State ticket, with the exception of Tucker, (deceased,) are estimated at 20,000. Tucker's plurality, presumably because of his death, was cut to 10,000.

The "insurgent" Congressmen were renominated and added to their strength by the nomination of Henry C. Cochems, the former Wisconsin University football star. Cochems defeated Stafford for renomination in the Fifth District. Cochems is the man who placed La Follette in nomination for President at the last Republican National Convention.

VOTE AT OPPONENT'S PRIMARY

Six Thousand Democrats Help Name Republican Candidate in Detroit.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Sept. 7.—As the count of the ballots cast in yesterday's primary progressed to-day it became evident that the Democrats had found a way to use the primary elections very effectively. About 6,000 of them, the estimate being based on the difference between the Republican enrollment and the last Republican vote, enrolled as Republicans and forced the nomination for Mayor of Proctor Owens over Mayor Breitmeyer. Owens is regarded as a weak candidate. With him at the head of the Republican city ticket the Democrats think they will have an easy time at the election.

It is now believed that a part of the big Townsend victory in Detroit was due to these same Democrats in the enemy's camp. Their object was different, however. They sought in that case to kill off Burrows.

Indications to-day are that Townsend's majority over United States Senator Burrows will exceed 25,000.

HUNT FOR A KNOT TYER.

Philadelphia Couple Finally Married in Port Chester, N. Y.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Beatrice Behrens and Julius Brill, both of whom gave their home address as 1,500 Montgomery Avenue, Philadelphia, were married here early to-day by Justice William A. Davidson.

Acting on misinformation as to license laws, they went first to Greenwich, Conn., to be married. Some one told them that that was easily done in the city across the Byran River, but was impossible in New York or New Jersey, because they were non-residents. They traveled from New York through here to Greenwich on the paper train, and had Justice Talcott out of bed soon after daylight. He questioned them and found that under the laws of his State the girl was under age. He advised them to return here. They came to Clerk Stevens, who issued them a license.

The bride gave her age as 19 years, and said she was an orphan. Mr. Brill said he was 22 years old. The couple returned to Philadelphia.

GREAT PENNA. TUNNEL IN OPERATION TO-DAY

General Manager of the Metropolitan said that in the morning and evening rush hours there would be a headway of only 20 seconds on the Thirty-fourth Street crosstown line, a minute and one-half headway on Seventh Avenue, and a twenty-five-second headway in Eighth Avenue.

Pretty much all Long Island will give itself over to rejoicing to-day over the beginning of the new service into Manhattan. Celebrations, with speeches and feasts, are to be held in a dozen or more towns. The various town committees will leave the terminal here at 9 o'clock this morning.

The first and, perhaps, most important stop will be made at Jamaica, which spent much of yesterday in decorating for today's ceremonies. These will be held in King Park. Alfred Eno will preside, and among the speakers on the programme are Timothy L. Woodruff, Congressman W. W. Cocks, Col. William M. Griffiths, Justice Garretson, and Congressman Law.

In the evening a dinner is to be served in the Garden City Hotel, at which President Ralph Peters of the Long Island Railroad will be the guest of honor. Andrew McLean, editor of The Brooklyn Citizen, will make the principal address. There will be a big parade of school children in Freeport, and in other villages the local Fire Departments will turn out in honor of the occasion.

While the Port Washington and Whitestone branches along the north shore will not have direct connection with the tunnels for some time to come, but will be compelled to transfer to and from tunnel trains at Woodside, yet the villages of Woodside, Winfield, Elmhurst, Corona, Flushing, and on out to Whitestone and Port Washington propose to join in the general rejoicing of the day.

ENGLISHMAN MAKES FLIGHT FOR $10,000

33 MILES IN 40 MINUTES

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 7.—Claude Grahame-White in his Blériot monoplane made the first attempt for The Boston Globe's $10,000 prize race around Boston Light this afternoon covering the 33 miles of the prescribed course in 40 minutes 1 3-5 seconds. In his lap toward the light he swung off toward Deer Island, north of his course. This detour took him some miles out of his course, and so lengthened his time.

It was about 4:30 o'clock when the announcement was made that White was about to start. The wind, which had been gusty and strong, had decreased to about eight miles an hour near the ground, blowing from the southwest.

The aviator appeared in his brown canvas aviation suit and head gear with ear flaps, and mounted his machine.

A second later the motor was started and Grahame-White's hand dropped the signal to the mechanicians to free the machine.

It rose in the air and whizzed over the starting line at a faster rate than the biplanes have been making. As he passed the grand stand the spectators broke out in wild cheering.

In the air, a speck against the blue, a Wright biplane hovered and climbed. Johnston, trying for altitude and duration, watched the monoplane buzz off for the big race. He was directly over Grahame-White. As Johnston lazily circled, Grahame-White cleaved the air on the first lap of the circular course. Then straightening out he headed for the Light, steering a little north of east.

At an elevation of approximately 1,000 feet his departure was signaled by sailors to a fleet of torpedo boats and destroyers. Immediately the Stringham, MacDonough, and Bailey took up a chase that rapidly proved unequal, the monoplane outdistancing the speedy warships.

Grahame-White turned the light in about ten minutes and flew back to the field, about 1,000 feet high, circled the Pylon, and was off again on the second lap before the thousands below had time to catch their breath. The second round of the course was done with the same precision and wonderful speed, and at 5:17 P. M. Grahame-White was back on the field.

While the crowds were still cheering the Englishman, Walter Brookins was sweeping skyward in graceful spirals for altitude. The sight spurred White to further endeavors, and remaining on earth only long enough to record his formal entry in the altitude contest, he shot after Brookins. Grahame-White swung to the south, reaching his highest mark several miles south of the field, while Brookins was more to the northward. The Englishman was the first to start downward, and he shot down out of the deep gray clouds behind the grand stand in a wonderful glide to the ground.

Johnstone completed his altitude flight, having made at the same time the best mark in duration for the meet, 1 hour 47 minutes and 24 2-5 seconds.

Glenn H. Curtiss put in a new mark in the accuracy event, near the close of the day, making a landing within 63 feet 10 inches of the mark, bettering White's performance by 100 feet. Curtiss made another essay at the get-away, but secured no mark, and Charles F. Willard made only one round of the course in an attempt at speed, which failed to secure a mark.

If Grahame-White's time of 40 minutes 1 3-5 seconds is not bettered before the meet closes next Tuesday night he will receive the $10,000 prize.

The following is a summary of the day's events:

Speed, distance, 5¼ miles—First, C. Grahame-White, 6 minutes 15 3-5 seconds; second, Glenn H. Curtiss, 6 minutes 29 3-5 seconds.

Duration—First, Ralph Johnstone, 1:47:24 2-5; second, White, 0:47:50; third, Brookins, 0:26:19 1-5.

Distance—First, Grahame-White, 33 miles; second, Johnstone, 31 miles 2,640 feet.

Slow Lap—First, (only entry,) Brookins, 0:13:48.

Accuracy—First, Curtiss, 63 feet 10 inches; second, Grahame-White, 162 feet 6 inches.

Globe prize flight to Boston Light, 33 miles—First, (one entry,) Grahame-White, 40:1 3-5.

Summary of points given in the first four events, speed, altitude, duration, and distance, to date:

Claude Grahame-White, 18; Ralph Johnstone, 9; Glenn H. Curtiss, 4; Charles F. Willard, 3; Walter H. Brookins, 2.

White established still another mark when he ascended 3,440 feet in the altitude test, the highest yet reached in the meet, making th position of the aviators thus:

Altitude—First, Grahame White, 3,440 feet; second, Johnstone, 2,875 feet; third, Brookins, 2,670 feet.

FOREIGN AVIATORS ENTERED.

Noted Airmen of Europe to Contest at Belmont Park Meet.

Foreign entries for the international aviation tournament at Belmont Park next month are beginning to come in, and if they continue for the next ten days at the rate they were received yesterday the managers of the meeting will have entered more contestants than are needed long before the opening of the show.

Two American aviators, J. Armstrong Drexel and Henry Weymann, both of whom are now in Europe, gave official notice to the committee yesterday that they will not only enter the elimination trials for the international speed trophy, but that they desire to be entered for all the events in the Belmont Park meet.

Henry Weymann, who yesterday flew in a Farman biplane from Buc to St. Imbert, in France, a distance of over 100 miles, has entered for the elimination trials for the Gordon Bennett trophy and in all the other events. He will use a Farman machine.

At the Rheims meeting Weymann was second in the totalization distance contests out of a group of forty-six contestants. His records at other European meetings have been equally brilliant.

J. Armstrong Drexel was the star at the Lanark aviation meeting in Scotland, and until lately held the world's altitude record. He will use a Blériot machine.

An application was received from Wilfred A. Dunn of London, who desires to take part in the general programme of the international meeting. He will use a Tellier monoplane. It was with Tellier's monoplane that Bonnet recently made the cross-country flight of 110 miles.

The International Committee yesterday received the official notification from the Royal Aero Club of Great Britain that Alec Ogilvie was selected as the third representative of England's international team. Mr. Ogilvie will take the place of F. W. McArdle, who is unable to come. The other members of the English team are Cecil Grahame-White and James Radley. The latter will take part in THE NEW YORK TIMES-Chicago Evening Post flight from Chicago to New York, Oct. 8 to 15, and it is not unlikely that Grahame-White and Ogilvie will also compete in this big event.

Two Austrian aviators whose flights in Austria have attracted considerable attention have also sent communications expressing their intention to take part in the Belmont Park meeting. They are Adolph Warchalowski, who recently made a flight over the imperial castle of Luxembourg, and Karl Illner, one of the foremost aviators of Central Europe. Warchalowski is a pupil of Henri Farman, and is noted for his daring performances. Application for these aviators has been made through Arthur Greenhut, an official of the Austrian Aero Club, who is now in this city.

Arrangements were completed yesterday by the Aviation Committee for bringing foreign aeroplanes into this country duty free.

J. C. McCoy, Chairman of the International Aviation Committee, said last night: "The international tournament is going to be the American classic, taking the same place in this country as the Rheims meeting holds in Europe, and I think it will be merely a question from now on of selecting such aviators as we want."

MOISSANT IS AFTER TIMES AIR PRIZE

Hero of the Paris-London Flight Hopes to Sail Soon for This Country.

WANTS POWERFUL MACHINE

Will Try to Induce Bleriot to Let Him Have the 100 Horse Power Monoplane That Le Blanc Used.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—John B. Moissant of Chicago, the hero of the Paris-London flight, whose pluck has made him a prime favorite with the British public, hopes to sail for America before long, his principal object being to try to win THE NEW YORK TIMES-Chicago Evening Post Chicago-New York race, which starts on Oct. 8.

The only thing likely to prevent this is the difficulty in obtaining a suitable aeroplane in time. However, Mr. Moissant is going to Paris in an effort to persuade M. Blériot to let him have the 100 horse power machine in which Le Blanc recently did 106 kilometers an hour.

I saw Mr. Moissant to-night at the Empire Theatre, where, on being recognized, he met with a great reception from the audience. He told me he was trying his utmost to make arrangements to leave for New York shortly, but explained that he did not want to fly in his own country until he was certain that he could make a good showing. The aeroplane on which he made his Paris-London flight is pretty badly damaged, and it will take some time to repair it, besides which he does not think it powerful enough.

"If I can get the machine I want I will certainly go," said Mr. Moissant, "but you can understand that I would not like to make a bad showing in my own country. The task is not a hard one, provided one has the right machine. If only I had a little more time my own machine—that is, the one I have invented myself—would be ready, and I am sure it would make a great showing. Wouldn't it be a great thing for me to win the prize on my own machine?

"You can bet I'll leave no stone unturned to be on the spot at the starting time."

Since Mr. Moissant reached London he has been the recipient of offers from everywhere soliciting his services at aviation meetings, but he assures me that if he can get the machine he wants he will sail straight away for America.

In the course of his talk Mr. Moissant said his experiments in aviation in the thirteen months during which he has been interested in it have cost him $50,000, and so far he has never won a prize. To-morrow he gets the first recognition of his feat in the form of the fifty-guinea cup presented by The Daily Mail.

NEW PLANES FOR WILCOX.

Columbia Student Said to be Planning to Build Two Machines.

Special to The New York Times.

AVIATION FIELD, HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Sept. 7.—Not much in the line of flights occurred to vary the monotony here to-day, though some interesting gossip was retailed. Harry S. Harkness went on his usual morning grass-cutting expedition and J. E. Delong took out a machine the motor of which refused to work. Joe Seymour completed his flights for a moving picture concern.

It was said here to-night that Philip Wilcox, the Columbia student who smashed a biplane of the Farman type not long ago, intends to build two new machines for the international meet. Dr. Waldron, who has just recovered from a serious accident, will endeavor to build another monoplane here. George J. Byrne was expected here to-day with his aeroplane.

AIR RECORD FOR AMERICA.

Weymann Fails to Win $20,000 Prize, but Makes a Notable Flight.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Weymann, the American aviator, started to-day in an attempt to win the special Michelin prize of $20,000, offered for the first aviator who, with a passenger, flies in six hours from Paris to the top of the Puy-de-Dome, after circling the steeple of the cathedral at Clermont-Ferrand.

The feat is considered the most difficult yet cut out for airmen. When M. Michelin offered the prize it was thought by some persons that he was joking.

Paulhan says he means to attempt to win the prize, but to Weymann falls the honor of the first try. He ascended this morning, and at 11:55 crossed the starting line above St. Cloud. He used a Farman biplane and carried a passenger.

The rules provide that the aviator must first turn a complete circle around the Arc de Triomphe in Paris and, arriving at Clermont-Ferrand, he must circle the spires of the cathedral and make a landing on the summit of the Puy-de-Dome. The Puy-de-Dome is a mountain 4,800 feet high near Clermont-Ferrand. The distance to be covered is 217 miles "as the crow flies."

CLERMONT-FERRAND, Sept. 7.—Weymann, who to-day attempted to win the Michelin prize of $20,000 for the first aeronaut who, with a passenger, flies in six hours from the French capital to the top of the Puy-de-Dome, was beaten by the elements when the trophy was almost within his grasp.

The airman followed the railroad track out of Paris, and everything was running smoothly until Mont Lucon was reached. Passing that town, Weymann ran into a fog and blinding rain, and although he reached Ancizes, which was within thirteen miles of his goal, at 5:30, he completely lost his bearings and wandered for an hour and three-quarters in the gloom, finally reaching Volvic at 7:15 o'clock. There he was obliged to descend on account of the darkness.

While he failed to win the Michelin prize, the American aviator made one of the most notable overland flights of the year. He smashed the world's record for a non-stop passenger run by flying 136.62 miles, and also beat the record for distance traveled within twenty-four hours. Although stops along the route were permitted, the aviator landed only four times. Twice he was absolutely forced to descend in order to find out what part of the country he was in.

Weymann describes the latter part of his flight as "waltzing over deep crevasses and precipices in the region of the Dome, where a landing was impossible, and buffeted by eddies." "It was," he says, "the most thrilling experience of my life."

The aviator hopes to make another attempt to win the Michelin prize next week if the weather is not too bad.

FIGHT ON BALDWIN FAILS.

Chief Opponent in Connecticut Convention to Support Him.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 7.—The Democratic State Convention to name a State ticket, a Congressman-at-Large, and to adopt a platform began its session in Music Hall to-night. John S. Seymour of Norwalk, Patent Commissioner under President Cleveland, who served as temporary Chairman, in an address to the delegates denounced Republicanism, the recent tariff revision, and arraigned the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad for its alleged domination in State affairs.

Mr. Seymour said the railroad company did not pay its just taxes, charged too much for freight carriage, discriminated against water routes, overcharged on its mileage books, and had the "antiquated notion that high rates mean large receipts and low rates low receipts."

"The company has held Legislatures in sessions for months," he went on, "maintained a lobby, and by its contempt toward the public and its needs and welfare reaped a harvest of well-founded hostility toward that style of railroading, and, worst of all, has made State pride and State patriotism a by-word. What the State needs and has a right to demand is scientific railroading."

He predicted the nomination and election of Judge Baldwin as Governor.

All opposition to the nomination of Judge Simeon E. Baldwin of this city for Governor seemed to have been swept away to-night when Mayor E. T. Buckingham of Bridgeport, who had been looked upon as a candidate for the office, consented to second the nomination in the convention to-morrow.

GERMANS WANT AEROPLANES.

French Progress is Making Even the Socialists Anxious.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—The report that France will have seventy-five aeroplanes at the disposal of its army by the end of November is attracting much attention in Germany.

Even the Socialist newspaper Vorwaerts now advocates the introduction of aeroplanes in the German Army.

The military authorities to-day announced a conditional offer of $6,250 as a prize to be awarded at the national aviation competition at Johannisthal, which will be held Oct. 9 to 16, inclusive.

JEROME SAYS SKENE WAS TAMMANY'S DUPE

Tells Jury Murphy Made O'Neil Engineer's Aid to Put the Screws on Contractors.

SKENE ON THE STAND

Jerome Admits Half the Road Contracts Were Raised, but Declares Skene Victim of a "Frame Up."

ALBANY, Sept. 7.—Former State Engineer Frederick Skene, who is on trial on charges of grand larceny in connection with the award of good roads contracts, testified to-day that H. F. Wineholz, his brother-in-law, advanced $8,000 to meet the protested note of the Russell Contracting Company. He said that as he was not to be renominated for State Engineer and was about to resume the practice of his profession, he did not want the existence of the note to become public property and thus connect a scandal with his administration. Mr. Skene swore that he did not know of the existence of the note until after it had become due and was protested in October, 1908. This is the note that Charles H. O'Neil, who was confidential assistant to Skene, swore was discounted for him at Troy and the money given to Skene.

Mr. Skene was on the stand the greater part of the day. He swore that after the note went to protest John B. Russell, President of the Russell Company, met him in New York and told him he was unable to meet it. Skene said he had a further talk with Russell the next day and gave him a letter to his brother-in-law, who advanced the money. Skene testified that Russell told him he had given the note to O'Neil after O'Neil had told him that Skene was to be renominated and the various contractors were contributing to a political assessment which was to be levied against Skene.

Under cross-examination by Attorney General O'Malley Skene said that after O'Neil and John J. Allen were suspended he changed the locks on all the office doors and office desks. In searching O'Neil's desk, he said, he found many important State papers which should have been filed months before and for which repeated searches had been made.

Mr. O'Malley brought out that the good roads proposal sheets used under Skene were different from those prepared by previous administrations, calling for bids by items instead of lump sums. Later Mr. Jerome showed that the forms used by Skene were similar to those received by the State Printing Board, of which Mr. O'Malley is a member.

The former State Engineer admitted it was possible for many of the good roads bids to be raised and that had heard rumors that they were. He declared that when these rumors reached him he went to Gov. Hughes and asked him to investigate the matter.

Several residents of Queens Borough were called by Mr. Jerome to testify as to the good character and standing of the accused in his home community.

Mr. Jerome, in addressing the jury on behalf of Mr. Skene, while admitting that at least 50 per cent. of the good roads contracts had been raised during the administration of Mr. Skene as State Engineer and Surveyor in 1907 and 1908, contended that Charles H. O'Neil was made confidential assistant to Skene by the power of Tammany Hall for the purpose of putting the screws to contractors. He gave it as his opinion that upward of $500,000 was demanded and received from these contractors by O'Neil as the "collector of Tammany."

"We admit," said Mr. Jerome in his opening, "that the Russell bid was raised $9,000. We do not deny that Allen and O'Neil were up to the muzzle in it. They did it without guilty knowledge on Skene's part. The only thing which connects Skene with this Russell crooked contract falls from the lips of O'Neil and Allen.

"When Skene became State Engineer the powers that nominated him demanded that he place O'Neil in office.

"I ask you to look at O'Neil's face as the principal exhibit in this case. We will endeavor to show that the power of Tammany Hall put him in Skene's office to put the screws to the contractors, and he began early by putting the screws to the Clinton Beckwith Company. We will show that Skene allowed O'Neil to run the clerical end of the office, and that O'Neil was put there by Charles Murphy to squeeze money out of the contractors. How much he got we don't know, but it must have been upward of $500,000, as O'Neil said that 50 per cent. of the bids had been raised, and that he never had been broke.

"We can show that in the Spring of 1908 there was a break between Skene and O'Neil, and Skene took from O'Neil practically all of his powers and wrote to the leader of Tammany Hall that he was going to discharge him. Request came back that he hold O'Neil until after election, and he consented. It was at this time that O'Neil started to gather in all available pickings, including his getting the cash on the $8,000 Russell note.

"Skene is simply the victim of a criminal conspiracy connected with the Democratic Party affiliated with crooks throughout the State of their own political making, and to use the words of O'Neil, Skene is the victim of a 'frame-up.'"

The case is expected to go to the jury to-morrow night.

Farmers are not an alien race with different habits and characteristics.

Farmers are simply Americans who live in the country. They like the same sort of things as the Americans who live in the city.

They have two strong characteristics in common with the city dwellers. They have money to spend, and they buy what they like.

There is no specific reason why a man who keeps a store or works in an office should more readily buy an automobile or a piano player than a man who keeps a farm for a living.

If you knew this as positively as we do, you would want to know about advertising in Farm and Fireside. We know it because we have investigated. We can show you the evidence.

READY FOR BATTLE AGAINST NEW RATES

Lawyers for Shippers Contest Every Point Railroads Make at Inter-State Hearing.

INQUIRY OPENS WITH B. & O.

Method of Balancing Increased Rates with Advance in Wages at Once Disputed—Sessions at Waldorf.

The Eastern branch of the great freight rate investigation which the Inter-State Commerce Commission is holding upon the complaint of shippers was put under way here yesterday in the Astor Gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria. This particular inquiry affects all of the railroads east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers, and involves freight rate increases broadly estimated by the shippers at not less than $50,000,000 or $40,000,000 a year.

Chief Examiner Brown of the Inter-State Commerce Commission had planned originally to have the hearings held in the Custom House, but there was no room there which began to meet the demands of the railroad and the shippers' organizations, so an adjournment was taken to the Assembly Hall of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, at 203 Broadway. It appeared, however, that this hall was inadequate to hold the crowd, and then arrangements were made for the use of the Astor Gallery in the Waldorf.

The interests of the shippers are in the hands of Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, who was counsel for Glavis in the Ballinger inquiry; Francis B. James of Cincinnati, and John H. Atwood of the same place. Mr. Brandeis represents the New England territory, Mr. James the National Industrial Traffic League and the Shippers' Association, organizations whose primary interests lie in the territory west of the Mississippi, and Mr. Atwood these same concerns, together with shippers east of the Mississippi and west of the New England line. Clifford Thorne of Washington, Iowa, is representing grain and live stock associations of that territory, and there are a host of other counsel who appear for individual shipping interests or for the railroads.

Lawyers Alert for Figures.

At yesterday's hearing a beginning only was made as to the situation on the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pennsylvania Railroads, but from the way the lawyers for the shipping associations went at the representatives of these roads who were called to the stand, armed with figures intended to justify the new rates, it could be easily gathered that the inquisition was to be a searching one before it was through. The railroads are on the defensive as the Inter-State Commerce Commission puts it up to them to justify their rate increases, then to stand cross-examination and finally to rebutt such evidence as the shippers may wish to introduce.

At the beginning of the session, Clyde Brown, attorney for the New York Central Railroad, made a brief introductory statement in which he said that the railroads would undertake to present first certain general facts indicative of the relationship between the freight rate increases and the recent increases in wages, and subsequently would present particular facts relating to their respective situations. Mr. Brown presented these figures as applying to the railroads in the country west of St. Louis and Chicago and north of the Ohio River:

Freight revenue, 1909	$742,327,785
Estimated revenue at new rates	769,355,230
Net increase in freight revenue	27,031,445
Increase in wages	34,756,519
Net deficit	7,725,075

As soon as J. T. Leary, auditor of the Baltimore & Ohio system, got on the witness stand, the lawyers for the shippers, under the lead of Mr. James, began to punch holes in this method of comparing freight rate with wage increases. Mr. Leary testified that if the increase of wages on his railroad, in effect during the first six months of 1910, had been effective during the entire calendar year of 1909, there would have been an increase of $2,073,233 in operating expenses. If, moreover, according to his figures, the proposed increase in freight rates had been in effect the Baltimore & Ohio would have realized an additional revenue aggregating $2,308,107.

Object to Comparisons.

The first thing that Mr. James brought out on cross-examination was that, whereas the wage increases used by Mr. Leary in his computations, applied to all the traffic on the road, both passenger and freight, the comparison was made with the revenue derived from freight rate increases only, as if the shippers were obliged to make up for the entire added expense in wages. Mr. Leary could not explain why he made his estimate in this way, nor why he applied his figures to the calendar year of 1909, instead of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1910.

When Mr. James brought out that the freight receipts in the supposedly typical weeks and the typical day taken as a basis of calculation by the auditor of the Baltimore & Ohio were computed on the basis merely of tonnage, irrespective of the division of freights into classes or of the varying class and commodity rates that must be imposed in actual operation, the witness was forced to admit that the figures which he presented for the information of the commission were made up irrespective of actual revenue to be derived from applying the various increases decreed by the railroad, to the actual shipments of freight by classes and by commodity in his so-called typical weeks and on his typical day.

Nor did Mr. Leary make any distinction as between State and inter-State traffic in his calculation; neither did he estimate the probable increase of traffic, and hence the probable additional revenue under the proposed rate increases in one or more years to come. Mr. James suggested that he run back five years in his estimates, and obtain an approximation for a similar period to come, but the witness did not think this was fair.

"And yet," remarked the lawyer, "you take one day in August, and ask us to accept an approximation based on the tonnage of that day as showing conclusively the results of these increases."

As to Cost of Materials.

Mr. James contended that, even accepting the figures of the railroad, there was a difference of $300,000 in favor of the road shown by the comparison of increased receipts under the proposed new freight rates and the wage increases applied to the year 1909. He wanted to know what became of that difference of approximately 15 per cent., and the witness said it went to make up the increased cost of material.

The lawyer for the shippers insisted that contracts and specifications showing the increased price of materials should be produced covering a series of years, against which General Counsel Bond protested vigorously, saying that it was an impossible task to furnish such evidence in the first place, and that a comparison of the prices paid per unit in various classes of materials would cover the situation better in the second place.

Examiner Brown remarked that he thought the price tabulation would do as a basis, and that, if any discrepancies appeared which attracted the attention of the counsel, they might then call for the original papers. Mr. James next took up the acquisition by the Baltimore & Ohio of its auxiliaries, and incidentally read into the record provisions of the contract between the Baltimore & Ohio and the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, whereby the Baltimore & Ohio agreed to provide $7,000,000 for improvement, and undertook, in addition, to guarantee $12,500,000 first mortgage bonds and $11,750 in notes; also, either to buy or to guarantee $20,000,000 Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton general mortgage bonds.

"What is the financial condition of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton?" demanded Mr. James.

"I don't know," said the witness.

"Do you know that it has been notoriously bankrupt for years?"

"I do not know," replied the witness.

"You know it is in the hands of a receiver?"

The witness replied in the affirmative.

Take Up Railroad Financing.

Mr. James brought out that in the last ten years the Baltimore & Ohio has charged against income $21,511,230 expenditures which were proper capital charges and might some day be made the subject of capital issues. He also rehearsed the existence of an $8,000,000 Car Trust, forcing the witness to admit that some part of the increased freight receipts would be used to pay off these Car Trust certificates and that the property, when acquired, would be subject to capitalization.

"How many notes," demanded Mr. James, "have been sold to realize money to pay dividends?"

"I do not know of any," the witness replied.

Then Mr. Leary was excused from the stand with a long list of demands for information which he promised he would endeavor to furnish, and he was succeeded by two Pennsylvania Railroad employes, one being Accountant Striker from the office of the Auditor of Disbursements and the other Frank C. Huff, Chief Accountant to the General Manager. Striker testified that he had been told by his superior to assume the wage increase of 8.15, recently granted by the road, applied to the October pay roll of 1909. With this assumption he calculated the wage increase based on an annual pay roll of $87,068,071, and figured an increased wage disbursement on the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburg of $7,096,047.

Several of the lawyers wanted to know why the month of October was selected, but Striker could not tell them, as he had done merely what he was instructed to do by his superiors. When Huff went on the stand, however, he said that he had selected the month of October, because it was the month of heaviest traffic, and in making up the figures which had been originally for the information of the Pennsylvania Directors he wanted to be on the safe side.

Huff explained that he obtained an estimate of the income from the proposed freight rate increases by selecting six representative weeks from the last calendar year—which happens to be the fiscal year on the Pennsylvania Road, and then selecting six typical days from these typical weeks. The way-bills for the six days were then taken out and rates calculated for classes and commodities of merchandise freight. Mr. Huff estimated that the increased rates on the Pennsylvania would net the road $3,064,579 annually on its lines east of Pittsburg.

The lawyers preferred to postpone cross-examination until they had had time to familiarize themselves in the record with this method of calculation, but they did bring out from Mr. Huff as from Mr. Leary that while the rate increases applied to freight merchandise traffic only, no effort had been made to apportion the wage increases between freight and passenger business.

The hearings will continue to-day.

SHIPPERS ARE REASSURED.

Commerce Commission Will Give Them and Roads Personal Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Both railroads and shippers will have ample opportunity to present personally to the Inter-State Commerce Commission all essential facts bearing on rate advances, it was stated by commission authorities to-day. The telegraphic correspondence between the Illinois Manufacturers' Association and President Taft, made public yesterday, had directed attention to the fact that the hearings in the important freight-advance cases were being conducted before examiners of the commission instead of before the Commissioners themselves.

Protests have been received heretofore by the commission against this arrangement, but the present proceedings are not only in accordance with the usual practice of the commission but in perfect accordance with a plan agreed upon by the commission, the carriers, and the interested shippers. The evidence submitted to the examiners in Chicago at the recent hearings of the Western rate cases was largely statistical and was based upon the regular reports made by the railroads to the commission.

The Chicago hearing will be continued, beginning on Sept. 19, when other roads will have opportunity to present their testimony in support of the proposed increases.

After the examiners have taken the preliminary testimony, it is the purpose of the commission to give both the railroads and the shippers an opportunity to submit to members of the commission testimony in analysis of questions that have previously been formulatd in the preliminary proceedings. Subsequently, the commission will hear the oral arguments of both sides and will receive briefs. Hearings by the commission itself probably will be held in both the East and the West on the features of the rates advances before the matters in issue are submitted to argument.

Bankrupt Convict to Testify.

J. Edward Boeck, a gem salesman, who is serving a term in Sing Sing prison, will be brought to this city to-day to testify in his bankruptcy proceedings. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against him on April 12, and the schedules showed liabilities of $193,367 and assets of $3,000. Attorneys for the trustees appeared before Judge Holt yesterday and obtained a writ of habeas corpus for Warden Frost to produce Boeck before Referee Thayer in Yonkers at the first meeting of creditors. Boeck is an heir to the estate of J. C. Lounsberry of St. Paul, and creditors are anxious to know what it will amount to.

Dead Man Out of Bankruptcy.

Judge Holt granted yesterday a discharge from bankruptcy to a dead man in the case of Samuel Williams, a clothing dealer of 144 Park Row, who died about two months ago after he had filed his application for a discharge. His relatives wished to have the estate discharged. The liabilities were $4,817.

SLOSSON'S CEILING FALLS, BURYING 20

Ex-Champion Billiardist, Who Hopes "to Come Back," Was Caught in the Wreckage.

ONLY THREE WERE INJURED

Tables Save Many in the Room from Serious Hurt—Firemen and Police Reserves There.

Friends of George F. Slosson, ex-champion billiard player of the world, were much worried last night lest the accidental falling in of the ceiling of his billiard hall at Broadway and Twenty-second Street might prove such a mental and nervous annoyance to him that he would be handicapped in his effort "to come back" in a contest with Willie Hoppe, the present champion, scheduled for the night of Nov. 2.

The ex-champion and fifty of his friends were busy at 12 o'clock yesterday afternoon when there was a crunching of the ceiling plaster overhead. Some of those least intent on the games started for the door. A minute later the entire ceiling crashed down, stripping every lath from the rafters and landing on top of the billiard tables and chairs.

Twenty men were caught in the débris, but most of them saved themselves from serious hurt by ducking under the tables and then crawling to safety after the dust had cleared away. Three were injured and one—the negro porter—got clear outside of the building before the crash occurred.

The injured were:

EICHENBERG, Dr., lacerations of face and arms; attended by surgeons from the New York Hospital and sent home.

NEWMAN, EDWARD, of 900 Broadway; general contusions of the body; taken home.

WHEELER, Major DUNHAM, architect, of 126 East Twenty-seventh Street; scalp wound and contusions; sent to the New York Hospital.

For a time it was thought that the twenty or more persons under the plaster blanket would turn out to be seriously hurt or dead. Five fire alrms were sent in in rapid succession, as persons in Broadway saw the window glass of the billiard room splinter and fall to the pavement, while clouds of what seemed to be smoke poured out of the openings.

The negro porter, Marshal Wilkins, employed in the billiard hall for twenty years, was first to carry word of the accident to the police. When he heard the first crunching of the ceiling beams he didn't stop to get to the doorway or look up to see what was happening. He saw an open window, with a fire escape outside leading down into Twenty-second Street, and people on that thoroughfare, glancing up at the moment of the crash, saw a terrorized negro porter clambering down the fire ladder.

At the Eighteenth Street corner, four blocks away, a puffing policeman managed to overhaul Wilkins and ask why he was running away. Wilkins offered positive assurances that twenty men were dead and buried and were being burned up in the place where he had come from. A police box was near by, and an alarm went in quickly for all the men that the four nearest stations could spare to undertake the work of rescue.

At first, as squad after squad of policemen arrived on the double quick they could make little or nothing out of their task. The air was filled with plaster dust and they couldn't tell if there was smoke mixed in with it. A strong odor of gas indicated that a pipe had burst and that added to their anxiety.

Soon a breeze blowing in at the windows began to make little zones of clear air and the policemen could see the bare rafters overhead and the ceiling lying flat across the tops of the billiard tables, leaving not a single one in the northern half of the large hall in sight.

A plaster-grimed man came out from under the wreckage at a point where a tall spectator's chair propped it up slightly just at the head of the stairs. The policemen welcomed him and found, when he had shaken the dust from his clothing enough to be recognizable, that he was A. G. Raff, the house's cashier. Raff said there were twenty more under the tables, and that some of them were hurt.

Three policemen finally got on top of the fallen ceiling and made their way across it to the southern edge, where an ante-room, connected by a grilled opening, afforded a place of refuge.

One by one the scared and plaster-coated players began to emerge at the edge and head for the open window with its fire escape. Two of them carried Major Wheeler out, stunned from the blow the plaster had struck him.

The firemen, quick with their apparatus so long as they thought the place afire, were disgusted when they found it was only plaster dust with which they had to deal. They refused to run up a ladder to the corpulent unfortunates who gathered in the open window above the fire escape and hesitated to go down it on account of its narrowness. Frank Butler, an old billiard devotee, was especially timid about tackling the narrow fire escape ladder which swung loose from the platform at the second story and ended above a deep areaway that forced one to jump for safety at the bottom.

He begged the firemen to lend him a ladder with some width to it, but they only laughed at him. No fireman helped those caught in the accident to gain the sidewalk or paid any attention to the wrecked second floor. A policeman who had detected the odor of gas shut off the supply. A mass of electric light wires above the ceiling fell with it and many bare ends were exposed. The shutting off of the current by a policeman eliminated danger from that source.

Slosson himself was one of those caught by the fall. He was only slightly injured, however, and as soon as he had brushed off his clothing and bought a fresh collar he started out to see the building inspectors.

The score of men who were with him repaired first to a haberdashery and then to a cafe, where they celebrated their lucky escape.

On the under side of the fallen plaster a corrugated tin coating was found. It had been tacked on with nails extending only into the plaster and had added much extra weight which, it was thought, had finally proved too much for the plaster to sustain. Men at work on the third floor making repairs in the rooms of the American Art Gallery are thought to have furnished the slight vibration to the rafters needed to jar the ceiling loose.

WILDE COMEDY WITHDRAWN.

"Diplomacy" Replaces "The Importance of Being Earnest."

The William A. Brady, Ltd., company announced yesterday that the advertised performance of Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" will not take place at Maxine Elliott's Theatre next Monday night, owing to objections offered by Charles Frohman, who maintains that he owns the rights to this comedy in the United States. Mr. Brady and the Shuberts have consented to withdraw the play, according to their announcement, and have substituted Sardou's "Diplomacy" instead. The company will be the same as was announced for the Wilde play.

In connection with this announcement it is stated that Mr. Brady and the Shuberts have determined to put into immediate effect a plan for a permanent stock company which will make revivals of old plays and productions of new ones. The plan is to have the company appear only in New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Brooklyn and to make frequent changes of bill. The nucleus of the organization will consist of Charles Richman, Charles Cherry, Theodore Roberts, Florence Roberts, Chrystal Herne, Mrs. Sarah Cowell Le Moyne, Effingham Pinto, Milton Sills, Frederick Esmelton, Marion Ballou, and Jewell Power.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR NORDICA.

Singer's Husband Has One Ready as She Lands from an Ocean Liner.

Mme. Lillian Nordica was a passenger on the White Star liner Majestic, which arrived last evening from Southampton. She was met by her husband, George W. Young, who had a special train ready in the Jersey Central Station in Jersey City to take them to their Summer home at Deal Beach, N. J.

Mme. Nordica said that she was in the best of health. She has been abroad two months taking the baths and also studying "Tristan" in French. In October she will return to Paris to fill an engagement. In January she will recross the Atlantic and sing in Boston and Chicago. Her engagement does not include New York.

Another arrival was Lord Percy, eldest son of the Duke of Northumberland. He is on his way to Quebec, having been appointed aid de camp to Earl Grey, Governor General of Canada.

Other voyagers were Major Blanton Winship, U. S. A., who has been spending his vacation abroad, Robert Wilkinson, and Robert Wilkinson, Jr.

EAST SIDERS AT NEW THEATRE

Discuss Plans for Distribution of Tickets for Low-Priced Performances.

A meeting of forty-five men and women, mostly from the east side, was held in the library of The New Theatre last night to discuss plans for the distribution of tickets for the projected low-priced subscription series of performances. After many suggestions had been made a committee of six was appointed to work with the Director, Winthrop Ames, and Julius Hopp, who will assist him, in formulating a plan by which the tickets will reach the persons for whom they are intended and not fall into the hands of speculators.

On this committee are Charles R. Richards, director of Cooper Union; Miss Leonora O'Reilly of the Woman's Trade Union, William Mailly of the Twentieth Century Magazine, B. Hollander of the Educational Alliance, Mrs. H. C. De Mille, the play broker, and D. Weinstein, organizer of the United Hebrew Trades.

During the meeting Mr. Ames suggested that if each New York manager would give one or two popular-priced performances of his best play during the season the people would be able to see fifteen or twenty plays at small cost.

It is Mr. Klaw's intention during this trip to complete arrangements already made for the building of theatres in Seattle, Spokane, Tacoma, Portland, Victoria, and Vancouver. Other points in the West will be visited by him before returning to New York.

HAS SPIRIT MESSAGE FROM PROF. JAMES

Bostonian Gives Out Text of Alleged Communication from Dead Psychologist.

DETAILS ARE A BIT HAZY

Hard to Manifest on Mortal Plane, It Says, and Promises Later Message to Prove Identity.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Prof. William James of Harvard, psychologist and psychical researcher, who died only a few days ago, has sent a message to his friends from the spirit world, according to M. S. Ayer, a Boston business man. Mr. Ayer says that the séance occurred at his home in Harwichport, and that the medium employed for the sitting was one who had served with the Temple Bond of Spirits, and one who could be relied on to obtain the best results.

"The medium is a healthy, splendidly trained, intellectual woman," declared Mr. Ayer, "and has devoted much of her life to the art of attuning herself mentally and spiritually to the lives of Temple Bond of Spirits."

Through this medium Prof. James is reported to have said:

> I am at peace, peace—with myself and all mankind. I have awakened to a life far beyond my highest conception while a denizen of earth.
>
> Tell my brother that I will transmit a message through this instrument that will prove my individuality when I can manifest more clearly than at this time. I did not realize how difficult it would be to manifest from this place of life to the mortal place.
> There is much for me to learn and many conditions to overcome.

"The above message," said Mr. Ayer, "is given by Prof. James. To us it means that in a short time Prof. James will be able to accustom himself to his surroundings to the extent that he will be able to give the world a much longer, clearer, and more satisfactory form of message."

"Like all who pass out," continued Mr. Ayer, "Prof. James was bewildered upon his awakening to the highest consciousness, and has not yet regained the conditions necessary to the execution of his clear purpose to enlighten the world in the matter of Spiritualism. This will come."

The séance is alleged to have taken place Monday at 8 P. M. Several Spiritualists of world-wide repute are reported to have been present.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick A. Wiggin, a Spiritualist and pastor of the Unity Church of Boston, Mass., announced last Sunday that for a week his control had been in touch with spiritual vibrations which he thought came from Prof. James. He said that his control was not in good working order because he had just returned from a vacation, during which he had not exercised his spiritualistic powers, but that he expected within a week to get a communication from Prof. James in such a form as to convince many materialists.

The previous Sunday, Dr. Wiggin said he had felt spiritualistic vibrations of high intensity and rapid rate, which indicated that the spirit wishing to communicate was a genius instead of a common soul. The vibrations had continued every night, he said, and had become plainer and plainer, as well as gaining in strength. They were not intelligible, however, he said, at that time. Dr. Wiggin said he had exerted his powers over his control to bring it into communication with Prof. James, and said he regarded it as more than certain that it was Prof. James who was trying to communicate with him, but had been balked by the imperfect action of his own control.

BRITISH VICTORY IN FISHERIES CASE

We Gain Five Points, but Award Is Against Us on the Two Most Important Issues.

NEWFOUNDLAND LAW HOLDS

And American Argument as to Three-Mile Limit Defeated—Way May Be Open for Reopening of Question.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 7.—In the gloomy little chamber of the Permanent Arbitration Court, beneath a large painting of Emperor Nicholas of Russia and portraits of the late John Hay and others whose names are associated with the cause of the world's peace, five Judges, who since the first of June have considered the Newfoundland fisheries dispute between the United States and Great Britain pronounced this afternoon the tribunal's verdict.

The decision rendered by the Arbitration Court gave to neither principal a clear-cut award, but of the seven questions decided the tribunal supports the United States in five instances and Great Britain in the other two.

Points 2, 3, 4, 6, and 7 were decided in favor of the United States. Great Britain won points 1 and 5.

This court will be memorable because it determines finally the disputes arising from the British-American treaty of 1818, which have caused continuous diplomatic controversies, and, incidentally, because of the six days' speech of Senator Elihu Root, chief of the American counsel, which all lawyers here regard as the greatest presentation of a case made at The Hague.

Mr. Root, receiving a Senator's salary, was barred from other compensation, and of the twenty-two persons mustered as counsel for Great Britain and the seven Americans he alone contributed gratuitously an effort which, if made for a private client, would have commanded an enormous fee.

Chandler P. Anderson, the agent of the United States; Samuel J. Elder of American counsel; Otis Cartwright, Secretary of the American Atlantic Fisheries Commission, and other Americans here are satisfied with the decision giving the United States a victory in five of the seven questions submitted to the court.

On one of the two questions decided in favor of England, No. 1, the United States has raised certain questions of equity, which will be submitted to a special commission for determination.

Englishmen are pleased with the award because the three-mile limit is based on headlands instead of following the sinuosities of the coast, and because of the saving of sovereignty rights by the confirmation of Great Britain's right to make "reasonable" fisheries regulations without the concurrence of the United States.

The decisions reached by the arbitrators were unanimous, with the exception of No. 5, the coast question, on which point Luis Drago, the member from Argentina, filed a dissenting opinion largely supporting the contentions of the United States.

The award provides that existing disputed fishing regulations shall be submitted to a commission composed of one expert from each country and Dr. Paulus Hoek, the fisheries adviser of the Netherlands, and recommends the organization of a similar permanent commission to consider future disputes as to the question of requiring ships to make entry or report at custom houses and to pay light and harbor dues.

The award holds that the requirement of entry or report at custom houses is not unreasonable, though it should not be made unless convenient opportunities are afforded to the officers of ships to report personally or telegraphically to custom house or other officials. But, the decision adds, "they should not be subjected to purely commercial formalities of report, entry, or clearance at a custom house, nor to light, harbor, and other dues not imposed upon Newfoundland fishermen."

The award holds that by the Treaty of 1818 permission is given to Americans to enter certain bays and harbors for shelter and repairs, and to take on board wood and water based upon the grounds of humanity. This should not be conditional upon the payment of dues and reporting to the custom houses, but ships remaining forty-eight hours should report to the officials if it is convenient and the opportunity arises.

Point one, upon which Great Britain was sustained, embodied the question of whether any local laws adopted by a British colony must be submitted for approval to any foreign power having a treaty on a similar subject with the Imperial Government. This point was considered of great importance by the British. Regarding the point, on which the American counsel have raised questions of equity resulting in the submission of the matter to a special commission, the Tribunal holds that the right of Great Britain is inherent in the former's sovereignty, but the regulations must not violate the Treaty of 1818 or be so framed as to give the local fishermen an advantage over the Americans. The regulations are necessary for the protection and preservation of the fisheries and the public order, but must not violate the treaty. The court states that the reasonableness of the regulations requires expert information for the proper settlement of disputes that may arise.

Summarizing Questions 2, 3, 4, 6, and 7 the arbitrators decided in favor of the United States. Americans consider that winning the right to an impartial commission to judge the present and future Newfoundland regulations is of high importance.

On Question 6, which presented the claim of Great Britain to exclude fishermen from the bays and harbors on the treaty coasts of Newfoundland and the Magdalen Islands, the tribunal declares without qualification in favor of America.

On Question 7 the court decides that fishing vessels are entitled to the commercial privileges accorded to other vessels, but cannot exercise them at the same time on the same voyage, while acting under the treaty liberties regulating fishing.

Point 5 was started in the form of this question:

"From where must be measured the three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbors referred to in Article I. of the American-British treaty of 1818?"

United States fishermen claimed the right to take the measure from any part of the British North American shore and therefore the liberty to fish in the middle of any Canadian bay or estuary having a radius of more than three miles. The British contention was that the limit should be measured from an imaginary line connecting the headlands.

The Peace Court sustained the British contention. The award recommends definite lines based upon certain enumerated coast points, and in giving his dissenting opinion on this point Dr. Drago holds that the scheme should be a part of the award instead of a recommendation.

In dealing with Question 5 the court followed the strict letter of the British-American treaty, whereby America renounced the right to fish in any bays on non-treaty coasts. The court holds that this renunciation applied to all bays irrespective of their size, instead of to small bays only, as was contended by the Americans.

The court finds that the claim of Great Britain to the right to prohibit American vessels from employing foreigners, and to impose light, harbor, customs, and other dues are unauthorized by the treaty of 1818.

The tribunal finds that the regulation of the manner, time, and implements of fishing which Great Britain or Newfoundland enforces must be reasonable and appropriate, but Great Britain cannot be the sole judge of their reasonableness. In case of disagreement the question must be determined by an impartial tribunal like The Hague, or a special commission.

The provisions of the award apply not only to future legislation by the Imperial Government and the Colonies, but require that the existing statutes and regulations to which the Americans have objected be submitted to a commission which shall judge of their reasonableness, necessity, and fairness in the light of the principles laid down by the tribunal.

In connection with its conclusion, that the reasonableness of the fishing regulations must be determined through expert information, the tribunal directs the appointment of a commission of specialists, calls upon America and Great Britain to designate their Commissioners within one month, and appoints as a third Commissioner Dr. Hoek. The commission is instructed to submit its report to The Hague Tribunal, which, if the decision is unanimous, will incorporate the same in its present award. If the commission fails of unanimity The Hague Tribunal will adjudicate the matter.

Baron Michiels van Verduynen, Secretary General of the Permanent Court of Arbitration, read the award, his task occupying two hours. The room was crowded with diplomats and ladies.

CASE MAY NOT BE SETTLED.

Way Open for Another Arbitration—The Points at Issue.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—A substantial victory for Great Britain on perhaps the two most important points, a consolatory triumph for the United States on the other five points, with the prospect of another arbitration later at the instance of the United States Government. This is the way the decision of The Hague Tribunal in the Newfoundland fisheries case is viewed here.

The decision eliminates the right of the United States to share in the making and enforcing of "reasonable" regulations governing the fisheries in the disputed territory, and it is that qualification "reasonable" that may permit this Government at some time to reopen the question of joint action as to the regulations.

The State Department has not been officially advised of the decision and, therefore, declines to comment upon it.

The treaty coasts involved are the southern and western coasts of Newfoundland from Rameau Island around by way of Cape Ray to Quirpon Island, the whole of Magdalene Island, and the Labrador coast from Mount Joli northward indefinitely. The treaty of 1818, around which the whole long-fought controversy revolves, declared the United States' right to "take, dry, and cure" fish on these coasts and to "dry and cure" only on any of the unsettled bays, harbors, and creeks on the rest of the Southern Newfoundland and Labrador coasts. Under the treaty Great Britain conceded the rights mentioned and the United States renounced any claim to take, cure, or dry fish within the three-mile limit not included in this specified territory, but American fishermen were to be permitted to enter British waters for shelter, &c.

The defeat of the Washington contentions on the first point, which includes regulations as to time and method of fishing, is especially deplored here. The other lost ground concerns the headland doctrine, wherein the British contention was that the three marine miles within which the United States agreed not to take, dry, or cure fish should be measured from an imaginary line drawn across the mouth of a bay from headland to headland.

The United States contended that the treaty referred only to bays not exceeding six miles in width, and that the coast line was to be taken across the entrance of those bays so as to give Great Britain a three-mile belt beyond their entrance line, but that in any larger bays the limit of territorial water followed the sinuosities of the bay's coast. The Washington claim apparently grew out of the migration of mackerel to the Bay of Fundy, where they were followed by United States fishermen.

On virtually all the other contentions the American side seems to have won.

The seven points involved in the arbitration, in brief, were as follows:

First—Must any reasonable regulations made by Great Britain, Canada, and Newfoundland in the form of municipal laws, ordinances, or rules (such regulations being appropriate or necessary for the preservation of the fisheries, desirable on grounds of public order and morals, equitable and fair as between local fishermen and inhabitants of the United States) be subject to the consent of the United States?

"Second—Have the inhabitants of the United States, while exercising the liberty to take fish on the treaty coasts, a right to employ as members of their fishing crews persons not inhabitants of the United States?

"Third—Can the liberties to take, dry, and cure fish in treaty designated places be subjected, without the consent of the United States, to the requirements of entry or report at Customs Houses or the payment of dues, or any similar conditions?

"Fourth—Can restrictions be imposed upon American fishermen making the exercise of the privileges granted to them by the treaty to enter certain bays or harbors for shelter, repairs, wood and water conditional upon the payment of light or harbor or other dues on entering or reporting at Custom Houses or any similar conditions?

"Fifth—What is a bay within the treaty's meaning?

"Sixth—Does the treaty give the inhabitants of the United States the same liberty to take fish in the bays, harbors, and creeks of Newfoundland as in Labrador?

"Seventh—Are the inhabitants of the United States whose vessels resort to the treaty coasts to exercise the liberties referred to in Article 1 of the treaty entitled to have for those vessels, when duly authorized by the United States on that behalf, the commercial privileges on the treaty coasts accorded by agreement or otherwise to United States trading vessels generally?"

GRATIFICATION IN ENGLAND.

Officials Say They Have Gained the Two Most Important Points.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 8.—The Colonial Office received the announcement of the Newfoundland fisheries decision at The Hague with considerable satisfaction.

The award in favor of this country on Question 1 is particularly gratifying, as the point involved was considered the most important of all those at issue, and specially important from the imperial viewpoint, as it is considered highly undesirable that the legislation of any British colony should have to be referred for approval to a foreign power.

The Colonial Office was somewhat surprised at obtaining a favorable verdict on the question of bays, No. 5.

"Great Britain gained the two most important contentions," was the view expressed at the Foreign Office yesterday. The officials thought that the decision would be satisfactory all around, though it was possible that some disappointment might be felt in Canada because the Imperial Government had lost on Point Four.

Apparently it had been believed at the Foreign Office that Senator Root's speech on Question Five had converted the whole tribunal, so the verdict thereon was a pleasant surprise.

Regret was expressed that the American counsel in arguing Point Two had raised the question whether Newfoundland had the right to forbid Newfoundlanders from engaging on American vessels, as it was felt that this question might possibly be a source of future misunderstandings.

Considerable diversity of opinion is expressed in this morning's newspapers regarding the award, although the decision is generally held to be a victory for Great Britain.

The Standard, which was a strong supporter of the Newfoundland case, after paying a tribute to the cleverness with which the American case was argued, says:

"Taken as a whole, the decision should give satisfaction to Newfoundland, Canada, Great Britain, and America. The main cause of friction has been removed, and it will not be the business of politicians to keep old sores open. It is unfortunate that Newfoundland holds waters subject to foreign easements, but we cannot give our fellow-subjects more than we hold ourselves."

The Graphic says:

"The award will be received with a solid sense of relief. It inflicts no unexpected or unreasonable hardship on either side. If Great Britain gains the most important points, America wins the largest number, and, as the distribution is rendered more acceptable by qualification, providing for the fullest equities, it removes the last serious issue which has divided the American and British peoples, thus crowning the work of reapproachment."

The Morning Post says:

"As usual, neither side can claim a complete victory. If the verdict was not as favorable to the British claims as could be hoped, the reason is found in the feeble character of the diplomacy of the Liberal Government when the controversy reached an acute stage."

The Daily Chronicle says: "The game was drawn, but in favor of Great Britain."

SATISFACTION IN CANADA.

Decision Regarded as Distinct Victory for British Case.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7.—The decision in the fisheries case at The Hague is generally regarded here as a distinct victory for the British case.

No official intimation has yet been received, but if Points One and Five have been decided in accordance with the British contentions the authorities here are thoroughly satisfied. The establishment of the claim of complete autonomy in framing regulations is regarded with extreme satisfaction, as well as the settlement of the historic question, "What is a bay?"

The judgment is, of course, likely to be viewed with more satisfaction in Canada than in Newfoundland.

The Ottawa Free Press to-night declares emphatically that the result is a distinct victory for Canada.

ST. JOHN'S Newfoundland, Sept. 7.—The decision of the International Court of Arbitration in the Newfoundland fisheries dispute is looked upon here as a substantial victory for the colony. The winning of Point 1 by Great Britain means, it is pointed out, that Newfoundland will have full power to control all fishery legislation.

In regard to Question 2, permitting American vessels to include foreigners among their crews, this does not affect Newfoundland's right to pass laws forbidding her own people to join American vessels outside territorial waters and to punish them for so doing.

GLOUCESTER NOT PLEASED.

Fear That the Fishing Interests Will Be Badly Hampered.

Special to The New York Times.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 7.—The decision of the International Court at The Hague in regard to the Newfoundland Fisheries dispute is not received with enthusiasm by the Gloucester fishermen.

Practically the questions involved in the decision concern almost exclusively the interests of Gloucester. The Gloucester people consider that the dispute came down to two main points, all the others being of minor importance. These two points were:

First—Have United States fishing vessels the right to ship crews anywhere on the treaty coast of Newfoundland?

Second—Have citizens of the United States the right to fish as they please, with seines or other fishing gear, on the treaty coast or is this matter subject to the laws of Newfoundland?

Since the Newfoundland Government, by the decision, is allowed to take measures to protect its fisheries in treaty waters, the fishing interests here are likely to be badly hampered. In case the Newfoundland Government should think it advisable for the preservation of its herring fishery to prohibit the taking of fish for a period in the Winter it would be "all off" with the herring fishing during that time.

Root Declines to be Interviewed.

Senator Elihu Root, who was the chief representative of the United States at the fisheries arbitration, sent word from his room at a hotel in this city yesterday that he declined absolutely to be interviewed on any subject. He sent a note to that effect after specific requests had been made for some comment on The Hague decision.

Gould and Miss Gloria Gould.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Representatives of foreign banks met to-day and discussed the demand of British and Continental banking houses that American bankers after Oct. 31 next guarantee all bills of lading on cotton. GERMAN STUDENTS FIND US IMPOLITE

HAD MANY ADVENTURES

Lost Their Hats Looking at the Scenery, and Once Their Train Sped Over Burning Bridge.

The twenty-eight students from the University of Commerce at Cologne, Germany, who arrived here a month ago to study the commercial development of this country, came back to town yesterday, after traveling 11,000 miles. When they reached the Hotel Plaza, which was their starting point, the majority of them went to bed to rest up after what they all said was the most strenuous trip of their lives.

During the four weeks of steady going, which took in nearly all of the big cities and manufacturing plants from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast, the party met with all sorts of adventures. They traveled in their own car, which became uncoupled and lost from their train once or twice. At one time they passed over a burning bridge, and for three days were forced to travel without any water in their car.

Most of the students lost their hats at one time or another. Some lost them by gazing at the scenery from the car windows, but the majority were left behind during the quick rushes made for luncheon while traveling west of the Mississippi. All hands suffered for a short time on account of drinking too much ice water, but quickly rallied.

They were all loaded down with souvenirs and mementos of their trip when they reached the hotel. One student had a big tomahawk which he had purchased from an Indian in New Mexico. Others carried bows and arrows. But all of them, including the four professors who accompanied them on their trip, were highly pleased with what they saw, and said last night they were returning to Germany overflowing with ideas of American development and commerce.

According to Prof. Hassert, Chicago bids fair to outclass New York in size and development. He said there was a great future in store for that city, and that the people there were greater hustlers than those in New York. He compared the scenery of the Rockies with that of the Swiss Alps, and declared that they were all going back filled with amazement over the immensity and the wonderful development of the country.

"I find that the people here are not as polite as they are in Germany," said one student. "I refer more especially to those with whom we came in contact while traveling. We were treated most hospitably at all of the big manufacturing concerns we visited, but the general run of people were not as polite as we expected. For one thing they stared at us because we wore tight trousers and pointed shoes, and passed remarks about them in our hearing."

Another student asserted that the men lead too strenuous a life here, especially in the West. "I feel very sorry for their wives," he said. "The men spend too little time at their homes, and they are continually rushing about on business."

The censensus of opinion was that Washington and San Francisco, outside of New York, were the most attractive cities. They found Pittsburg very dirty, and Boston coldly formal. They were all charmed with Los Angeles, and the hottest place they found was on the Columbia River. Chicago, with its big stock yards, made a distinct hit with their idea of American hustle.

While touring the country the party sent off nearly 6,000 post cards to their home folks in Germany, France, and Spain. One student alone sent over 300 illustrated cards to his mother.

Although the students are thoroughly tired out they will continue their investigation of business and commerce in this city until Saturday, when they will sail for home on the Hamburg-American liner Amerika. To-day they will visit the Metropolitan Life building and tower.

HURRICANE IN PORTO RICO.

Many Schooners Capsize—Three Lives Lost—Havoc at San Juan.

SAN JUAN, P. R., Sept. 7.—A hurricane, attended by a heavy downfall of rain, passed over this city last night, leaving much damage in its wake.

Many buildings suffered considerably and the trolley and electric light wires were torn down.

All communication was cut off for a time, but later advices indicate that the storm was confined within a radius of twenty miles of San Juan. The velocity of the wind was seventy-two miles and the precipitation five inches in one hour and a half, the heaviest ever recorded here.

The telephone and telegraph service is demoralized and communication with the inland towns is cut off.

Many schooners capsized in the bay and three persons lost their lives. The railroad companies are heavy losers.

The storm abated at 5 o'clock this morning.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—A tropical disturbance, centred in the Caribbean Sea, apparently south of Porto Rico, was reported by the Weather Bureau to-day. The first indications of its approach were noted yesterday. The Weather Bureau report says:

"The future path of the storm can not yet be definitely determined, but its course will probably be in a west by north direction. The principal ports along the Atlantic coast have been fully advised of the storm's development.

"The disturbance which passed over the Middle and Northern Atlantic States Tuesday is now moving into the Atlantic."

OLDEST POLICEMAN QUITS.

Saw Service in the Draft Riots, but Is Too Old to Patrol Now.

George Twine severed his connection with the Police Department last night. He is 72 years old and had nearly completed half a century's work on the force. For ten years he had been in the Tombs Court, and when the new Inferior Courts act went into force last Thursday he was transferred to patrol duty in the West Sixty-eighth Station.

On Thursday morning he reported sick and applied for retirement. He has been on sick leave ever since, and last night about 8 o'clock walked into the station and laying his shield on the desk before Lieut. Robert Quinn, said:

"Here's my shield. My retirement goes into effect at midnight."

After shaking hands with a few policemen in the station, he walked out a civilian, for the first time since June 30, 1861, when he joined the force. He has nine stripes on his arm and saw service in the draft riots of '63 and in the Orange riots. His wife is a cripple.

PECK ASSAILS MISS QUINN.

Denounces Character of the Woman Who Sued Him for Breach of Promise.

Asserting that is it necessary for him to amend his original answer to the $50,000 breach of promise suit brought by Miss Esther Quinn, Prof. Harry Thurston Peck of Columbia moved yesterday before Justice Bijur, in the Supreme Court, that the paper in question might be so added to as to include charges of "immorality, unchastity, and disreputable association with men, both prior and subsequent to Sept. 15, 1908," against the plaintiff.

Miss Quinn insists in her complaint that about Sept. 15, 1908, the professor promised to marry her, but so far forgot the understanding as to wed Miss Elizabeth H. Dubois in August, 1909, wherefore her suit for damages.

Daniel O'Reilly and H. D. Wilson, who appear for Miss Quinn, denied Prof. Peck's charges and opposed the motion, intimating that the substitution of counsel, which he contended made the amendment of his answer necessary, had been made only that reasonable ground for granting the amendment might be shown. Decision was reserved.

PAPAL ENVOY FAINTS AT BIG RECEPTION

Soon After Announces His Recovery—Is Induced to Retire to Episcopal Palace.

LOGUE TALKS IN GAELIC

To Please Irish Canadians Who Thronged Around Him—Archbishop Glennon Blesses 200 Women.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Sept. 7.—Cardinal Vannutelli, the aged representative of Pius X. at the Eucharistic Congress, fainted to-night in the midst of a brilliant reception given in his honor by the Canadian Government, when Sir Charles Murphy, Secretary of State, on behalf of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, his Government, and his people of the faith, tendered Canada's official greeting to His Eminence and the visiting dignitaries to the Eucharistic Congress.

One of the largest and most representative gatherings Montreal has ever known thronged the Windsor Hotel. When the four white horses drawing the Cardinal's carriage appeared near the hotel mounted police had to clear a passage through the crowd, and the Legate had to be escorted by police and soldiery through a back way to the great drawing room of the hotel.

There were 4,000 persons in the room when Sir Charles Murphy caused the announcement to be made that the prelate was unable to continue the reception. Half an hour later, however, the Legate said that he was quite himself again and wished to return to the drawing room. But Dr. Guerin, Mayor of the city, advised him to abandon the reception, and he was taken to the Episcopal Palace. Several physicians offered their services, but the prelate said in broken English:

"I am just tired, that is all. You wouldn't have a young man like me be frightened in the presence of my colleague, Cardinal Logue."

Cardinal Vannutelli had received perhaps 1,500 persons when he collapsed. He had intended to attend a night service at Notre Dame, and the structure was packed to its capacity—about 15,000 persons—and 5,000 more were gathered outside when word came that the Cardinal would not be present.

The social features of the Congress began this afternoon with a luncheon given by the Provincial Government at the Windsor Hotel. Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of the Province of Quebec, presided. Cardinal Vannutelli, Cardinal Logue, and Mgr. Bruchesi sat on a dais, and about them, arrayed in their purple robes, were Archbishops and Bishops from all parts of the world.

After the luncheon a crowd of men and women, among them laborers from the streets, broke the guard lines and interrupted the progress of the prelates from the main hall to the carriage entrance. The Papal Legate insisted on standing in the midst of the crowd. He spoke for about five minutes, shook hands with the laborers, and gave his blessing. When he had gone, the crowds turned their attention to the other visiting prelates.

Archbishop O'Connell was forced to make a speech in Italian, and when Cardinal Logue appeared the crowds thronged about him, and to please a group of Irish-Canadians the Irish prelate spoke in Gaelic.

The Papal Legate began a busy day by a jail visit at 7:30 in the morning. He celebrated mass for the male prisoners and spoke to them, afterward visiting the women's jail, whose inmates he also addressed.

Cardinal Vannutelli has been profoundly impressed by the extraordinary enthusiasm manifested toward the visitors to the Eucharistic Congress.

"I am almost overcome by the devotion and loyalty of the Catholics who have assembled here," he said, "and have noted the cordial attitude of those who are not of our faith. I shall not fail to make this known to the Holy Father."

Big Increase Over 1907 in First Class Rush to Europe—Steerage Voyagers Were Fewer.

385,[illegible]ENT THIS SEASON

Many Well-to-Do Folk Forced to Go Second Cabin for Lack of Better Accommodations.

The eastbound transatlantic cabin traffic for May, June, July, and August, the European rush months, has been greater by many thousands this year than in any Summer period since the panic of 1907, in the year following which this class of traffic reached the lowest ebb in the four years referred to. The eastbound steerage traffic, on the other hand, in the last four months has been, with the exception of the same period in 1909, the lightest in the last four years. This falling off is regarded an even better barometer than the increase in cabin traffic, showing that the present year is one of increased prosperity.

The saloon or first cabin traffic this Summer has shown a substantial gain over each of the three previous Summers. From May 1, when the annual rush to Europe gets under way, until Sept. 1, when it ends, 60,177 persons have crossed in the liners that have sailed from New York. Last year 52,999 went over in the same period, in 1908 there were 49,256, and in 1907, the year of the panic, 50,623 took the eastward voyage.

The approximate figures now available also show that the gain has been maintained in second cabin trade, this year about 65,938 persons going to Europe. In 1909 the number was 54,617, in 1908 it was 55,984, and in 1907 57,472. The big increase in the second cabin traffic this year and the falling off last year is accounted for by some on the theory that the moderately well to do, who have crossed in such large numbers this year, had not fully recovered from the effects of the panic until this year. Others argue that previous to this year there were fewer vessels in the transatlantic trade, and that many persons were unable to get away owing to the lack of accommodations.

Forced to go Second Class.

It is known that in the rush season that has just ended a great many people went second class who otherwise would have gone in the saloon had they been able to obtain sleeping space in those parts of the liners. Every liner that left New York in the latter part of May, June, and July, and the first week in August went away booked to capacity.

In the steerage records, where a falling off in the eastbound trade is considered a certain sign that there is plenty of work on hand in America, and that the times are good, the figures this year are over 250,000 less than in 1908, the year following the panic. In that year from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1 505,000 persons hurried back to Europe in the steerage of the ships that sailed out of New York, and of this number 244,781 left in the Summer months. The nearest approach to these figures was in the year of the panic, (1907,) when 258,268 left in the period between Jan. 1 and Sept. 1. In the four months that followed 100,000 more went away.

The figures for the steerage began to drop the moment that it was apparent that the hard times period had reached its zenith, and from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1, 1909, the total was 175,579. This year up to Sept. 1 the total is 208,645, which shows an increase of about 33,000 over the corresponding period of 1909.

Steamship men who have studied the situation believe that the increase is due solely to the fact that the aliens who have settled in America had made money in the last two years, and that an unusually large number of them went abroad this year to visit relatives and friends in the old countries, a pleasure that they were not able to afford in such great numbers last year.

The Number of Travelers.

In the following table the figures for three classes of passengers in the rush months of 1907, 1908, 1909, and 1910 are given:

	First Class.	Second Class.	Steerage.

1907	6,634	9,799	50,050

	First Class.	Second Class.	Steerage.
1910	88,933	87,505	208,645
1907	79,448	80,326	258,268

The passenger lists of the transatlantic liners that have arrived this week and the advance lists of those that are due in the next two months indicate that of the great number of travelers who have sailed from this port in the last four months they are either on the way or getting ready to start back home.

RAPS MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

League Says Its Work Now Amounts to "Allopathic Tyranny."

The first report of the National League for Medical Freedom, organized a few weeks ago to fight the proposed creation of a National Department of Health and the movement for further public control of the practice of medicine in various States, backed by the American Medical Association, is out and is full of bitter prophecies concerning the so-called "allopathic tyranny."

The main offices of the league are in this city, although the majority of the moving spirits in the organization are in other cities. B. O. Flower of Boston, founder of The Arena and editor of The Twentieth Century Magazine, is President of the league, and ex-Gov. John L. Bates of Massachusetts is general counsel. The membership is composed of believers and followers of homoeopaths, eclectics, osteopaths, Christian Scientists, and practioners of other schools of healing.

"From the evidence presented it seems to be clear that the American Medical Association is first behind these bills, and behind all persons who are advocating the passage of them, and urging that the substance of them become a law," says the report. "The American Medical Association is a gigantic organization of physicians belonging to the regular or allopathic school, who have for years been securing power politically and financially for the purpose of controlling medical legislation, medical practice, the medical journal trade, the medical book trade, and all avenues of profit in any manner relating to the doctor and looking to the aggrandizement and financial benefit of the doctor himself."

Cotton Weavers End Strike.

Special to The New York Times.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 7.—The strike declared by the weavers of the Arkwright Mills two weeks ago was called off to-day and nearly all the weavers returned to their looms. The weavers claimed that they were insufficiently paid for the cloth they turned off their looms.

SHANLEY WILL CASE SETTLED

Mrs. J. R. Shanley Formally Declines to be Trustee for Her Stepchildren.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 7.—By formally declining to act as guardian of the three children by his first wife and as testamentary trustee for the children, Mrs. Olga M. Shanley, second wife of the late James Roosevelt Shanley, to-day saved a contest of her husband's will. When counsel for Mrs. Shanley presented this formal declination to-day at a hearing before Judge Charles D. Lockwood of the Stamford Probate Court all opposition was withdrawn and the proceeding by which the will was admitted to probate went on uninterrupted. The estimated value of Mr. Shanley's estate is about $3,750,000. It consists chiefly of his interest in the estate of his father, the late Bernard Shanley, who left three-quarters of his estate to his sons, William C., James Roosevelt, and Bernard M., and one-quarter to his widow, the stepmother of James Roosevelt Shanley. The estate is not to be distributed until the stepmother dies.

Mrs. Olga M. Shanley appeared in court with a woman friend and her counsel, Judge Frederick Taylor of Stamford and William A. Hoar, of New York. The Shanley children by the first wife—James R. Shanley, 14 years old; Julia D. Shanley, aged 12, and Robert A. Shanley, 7 years old—were represented by Republican State Committee Chairman Michael Kenealy, his partner, John F. Keating, and Mr. Anabele of Nicholl, Anabele, Lindsay & Fuller of New York.

Mrs. Shanley qualified as executrix of the will, her husband having named her to act solely in that capacity. In the will Mr. Shanley requested that no bond be required, but Judge Lockwood required a bond to secure the creditors of the estate. The unsecured debts, according to Mrs. Shanley's counsel, are about $250,000. Judge Lockwood fixed the bond at $500,000. A surety company was accepted.

Mrs. Shanley said that she never had any desire to act as guardian or trustee for the children of the first Mrs. Shanley. She did not know of this provision in her husband's will, until after his death, she said. For the purpose of to-day's hearing, Mr. Kenealy was appointed guardian ad litem of the children. It is believed that their mother, Mrs. Clifford Bucknam of Belle Haven, with whom the children have been living since her divorce from Mr. Shanley, will be appointed. In his will Mr. Shanley directs that $5,000 be paid annually by the trustee toward the education and maintenance of the children.

BOMBARDED HER HUSBAND.

Jeweler Said She Was Extravagant—She Said She Had Too Many Rivals.

Attelio Pernacchio, a jeweler, of 529 Morris Avenue, who had quarreled yesterday afternoon with his wife, Cesaria, was cleaning his stock last evening. He had reproached her with being too extravagant in dress, and had left her in anger.

Suddenly he heard the click of a revolver trigger drawn back, and looking around beheld his wife's blue eyes along the barrel of an old revolver.

The jeweler dodged under his counter just as a bullet whizzed over it. A second bullet splintered the showcase, a third lodged in the wall, and a fourth hit the horn of a phonograph on the counter. Then Mrs. Pernacchio stalked out of the store.

Her husband telephoned to the Bronx Detective Bureau and Detectives Repetto and Buesser found the door of the jeweler's flat locked. Mrs. Pernacchio refused to let them in, so they broke it down, and on a charge of felonious assault took her and her seven months' old baby to the Morrisania Station. The revolver was found under a pillow in one of the bedrooms.

The Pernacchios have been married for nine years and have three children. The police said Mrs. Pernacchio charged her husband with being rfiendly with other women.

COURT OBJECTED TO ODORS.

Jail Keepers Removed Refuse to Save Themselves from the Workhouse.

Magistrate Appleton was hearing a case yesterday in Yorkville Court when he stopped and sniffed the air. Going to the window of a shaft in the rear of the room he sniffed again, then he called:

"Where's the janitor?"

The assistant who does night duty responded.

"Where is all this smell coming from? It smells like decaying vegetables," demanded the Magistrate.

The janitor said it was, that it was refuse from the jail.

"Why don't you take it away?"

"I've got nothing to do with it. That is up to the prison keeper."

"You tell him to take it away," said the Magistrate. He returned to the bench and resumed his work, but after ten minutes he sniffed some more.

"Get that janitor," he ordered.

"Did you tell the keeper what I said?" he asked when the janitor appeared.

"I did, Judge, and he said he'd take it away as soon as he could."

"Did he? Well you tell the people in the prison that if that stuff is not removed at once I'll send the whole of them to the workhouse."

The assistant hurried away. Five minutes later the Magistrate once more sniffed and settled back with a contented look. The odor had gone.

POPE'S WORKS FOR HARVARD.

J. P. Morgan Supposed to Have Donated the Lefferts Collection.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 7.—Through the generosity of an anonymous donor the Harvard University Library has come into possession of the highly-prized Lefferts collection of the works of Alexander Pope, which consists of upward of 500 volumes of books and pamphlets. The gift is an important one, as the collection is the most extensive brought together by any student, and includes some volumes not in the British Museum Library. Harvard already had some 150 volumes in addition to those given, so that its Pope collection is now unequaled in America.

While the name of the donor is withheld it is understood that he is J. Pierrepont Morgan.

CAN'T CHANGE HIS NAME.

Court Says Smolowitz Is Easy to Spell and to Pronounce.

In a very brief but pointed decision, Justice Finelite of the City Court refused yesterday to permit Mathias Smolowitz, an automobile dealer in West Fifty-first Street, to change his name to Seeman. He said:

"The petitioner admits that Smolowitz is his correct name, and he is married and has children known by that name. It is an honorable name, easy to pronounce and easy to spell. Application refused."

In his application Smolowitz said his name was hard to spell, and still harder to pronounce.

GATHERING THE EGGS DIVIDES THE FAMILY

Clerk in the New Domestic Relations Court Takes His Case to Another Tribunal.

THE WIFE WINS HER CASE

She Says Her Mother-in-Law Wouldn't Even Let Her Pluck a Rose in the Garden.

William R. McGuire, Jr., is clerk of Brooklyn's new Domestic Relations Court. He had a case before Supreme Court Justice Garretson, in Brooklyn, yesterday involving certain differences between him and his young wife. The right of the wife to gather the eggs laid by the family hens on the McGuire country place at Rockville Centre, her right to attend the annual Celtic dinner with her husband, instead of being shoved aside in favor of his mother—these considerations and the like entered into the case. But McGuire did not have his case in his own court, where many such differences are patched up daily.

The young man is the son of Water Register McGuire of Brooklyn. On April 10, 1907, he married Miss Kathryn H. Lawlor of 425 Metropolitan Avenue, Brooklyn. Twenty-eight months ago their first child, a son, was born, and fourteen months ago a girl came. At that time McGuire was a clerk in Brooklyn's Children's Court. The couple did not get along well together, as appears from the extensive bills of particulars furnished by each of them.

The young husband alleges that his wife now and then left his house and stayed at her parents' home; that when he wanted her to go to one theatre she would want to go to another, and that she would frequently sleep late in the morning and then leave her home and stay out nearly all night.

She alleges that he was often cruel to her. One time he caught her by the back of the neck and forced her face down into a cup of hot coffee, one of the results of which, the wife says, is that her second child has a brown birthmark on the back of its neck. It seemed to her, she says, that she was entitled to accompany her husband to the annual Celtic dinner, but he took his mother along instead. Moreover, he spends too many hours in a brewery near their first home in Williamsburg, she avers.

Now and then, the wife alleges further, he would take her to live with his parents in Throop Avenue, Brooklyn, but her mother-in-law made things so unpleasant for her that she had to leave. From time to time the differences were patched up and the couple would live together again.

Several months ago, according to the papers filed in the Supreme Court by Mrs. McGuire's attorney, the elder McGuire proposed that he buy a cottage at Rockville Centre, L. I., which the young couple and their children were to occupy, all except one room, which the older couple were to use when they liked. With some misgivings, the young wife agreed to the plan, and they all went out there in May.

They had hardly got settled, says young Mrs. McGuire, before the elder Mrs. McGuire forbade her to lay hands on the eggs laid by the family hens, frowned when she gathered a rose, and protested when she went into the vegetable garden. At the end of the month, when time came for settling the bills, all the McGuires adjourned upstairs, leaving the young wife out of consideration.

Wherefore she left the cottage on July 10 and went back to live with her parents in Williamsburg, taking the two children with her. McGuire said that one of the main reasons why she left was that she had agreed to take turn about with his mother in cooking, and that when her turn came she balked. Besides, he adds, she wanted to spend all of his $2,500 a year in the stores.

He went before Justice Garretson yesterday to ask for the possession of his children. He alleged that his wife's people live in an undesirable section of Brooklyn. Justice Garretson declared that the young wife seemed to have a good deal of right on her side in asking for a home away from her mother-in-law. He said that too much mother-in-law had been the cause of more family troubles than almost any other. She was entitled to support from her husband, he said, and he refused to issue the writ.

RAILROAD'S PADDED BILLS.

Witness Says He Added to Cost of Repairing Illinois Central Cars.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—When the hearing of criminal cases against Frank B. Harriman, Charles L. Ewing, and John M. Taylor, former Illinois Central officials, implicated in the car repair scandals, was taken up to-day F. H. Niles, former President of the now defunct Blue Island Car and Equipment Company, took the witness stand.

He declared that he had padded bills for repairing cars by adding from $35 to $45 to the cost of each car. In doing this, he said, he was acting under the instructions of Taylor, at that time general storekeeper of the Illinois Central.

Niles told of the organization of the car company and said that Harriman, Ewing, Taylor, Joseph E. Buker, and the late Ira G. Rawn held stock. The company later was dissolved and reorganized as the Blue Island Rolling Mill and Car Company.

LOST $2,300,000 IN STRIKE.

Philadelphia Transit Company Now Has a $1,300,000 Deficit.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—According to a report submitted to the Directors of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company this afternoon, the two months' strike of its men early this year cost the company $2,300,000.

The loss in fares was $1,500,000 and extraordinary expenses incurred because of the difficulty amounted to $800,000. A deficit of $1,300,000 for the last fiscal year is reported.

BOY KILLED BY BASEBALL.

Falls to Catch It When It Is Thrown by Brother.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—A blow from a baseball resulted in the death of Edward W. Hoge, aged 12 years, to-day. With his brother he was playing catch while awaiting a game with comrades.

A hard-thrown ball was missed by the boy and it struck him in the right temple, felling him. The fourteen-year-old brother rushed up, gathered him in his arms, and carried him home, where he died.

GALLAGHER BOTHERED METZ.

Wanted Bigger Pay—Ex-Controller's Experiences with Mayor's Assailant.

At a dinner given in his honor by the Kings County Democratic Club, at the organization's Schermerhorn Street headquarters, in Brooklyn, last night, ex-Controller Herman A. Metz described an experience he once had with James J. Gallagher, the discharged night watchman of the Dock Department who shot Mayor Gaynor.

"There is sentirely too much criticism of public officials nowadays by people who don't know what they are talking about," said Mr. Metz. "Take, for instance, that poor man Gallagher, who shot Mayor Gaynor. Gallagher came to my office several times while I was Controller. He headed a committee of night watchmen in the Dock Department. They wanted their pay raised from $2 to $2.50 a day. I investigated Gallagher's request carefully. I found that while a few of the department's night watchmen were getting $2.50, most of them were getting only $2. I couldn't see the justice of raising 190 men from $2 to $2.50 because a few others were being paid that and told Gallagher I couldn't do anything for him. Gallagher was very persistent, however, and I had to throw him out of my office."

Mr. Metz cited Gallagher as typical of the "man with a grievance." He also said that Mayor Gaynor had recently told him "how it felt to be hit by a bullet in the back of the head." He didn't repeat what the Mayor told him.

He referred vigorously to the threatening letter which had been mailed to him on the day that Gallagher shot the Mayor.

"While I was in office I did my duty," he said, "and I am perfectly willing to wait till the expiration of the ten days' leave of absence given me in that letter before I am to be shot."

Two hundred Brooklyn Democrats were present at the dinner, and there were speeches by Supreme Court Justice Putnam of Brooklyn, Borough President Gresser of Queens, Congressman Fitzgerald, and Edward M. Shepard. All eulogized the ex-Controller, but the only reference made to Mr. Metz's Gubernatorial chances was made by ex-Secretary of State Whalen, who said he "hoped the people would elect Mr. Metz to something higher than Controller."

"I am not seeking public office any more," said Metz himself.

BURGLAR ATTACKS OFFICER.

His Pal Escapes Pursuing Crowd and He Is Found in Hiding.

Abraham I. Abkovitz, upon returning home late last night, heard noises in his millinery shop on the first floor of 1,664 Madison Avenue, and found the door leading from the hall open. As he pushed into it a man rushed out of the store and past him, jumping down the half flight to the street at a single bound and darting up Madison Avenue.

Abkovitz, Leo Schwartz, his next door neighbor, and the whole membership of the Progressive Republican Club, who had been meeting above the store, rushed after the fleeing burglar, but he distanced them all and escaped.

A little later Policeman Isaac Kahn, the biggest man in the East 104th Street Station, was rummaging in the storeroom beneath the shop to find out whether anything had been stolen. In the darkness some one struck him, and in a moment he was in a scuffle. The fellow struggled vigorously, planting blow after blow in the policeman's face until Kahn drew his revolver and threatened to shoot. Then the other submitted.

At the station he said he was Sam Harris, a driver, of 65 Lenox Avenue. His face and hands were bleeding from many cuts, said by the police to have been suffered when he broke through a window on the rear of the store. He was attended by Dr. Fulton of the Harlem Hospital, and then locked up on a charge of burglary. The police say they know both him and his companion, and that both have criminal records.

President Lincoln Held in Quarantine.

The steamer President Lincoln, which arrived last night from Hamburg, Southampton, and Cherbourg, reported a case of smallpox in the steerage and was held for disinfection. The patient is a child of American birth, named Helena Golisczk, 2½ years old. She was removed to the hospital on Swinburne Island. Quarantine officers expected the President Lincoln might clear for her dock to-day at 7 o'clock.

MAN SHOT AS THIEF WHILE GOING HOME

Was Climbing the Fire Escape, Having Forgotten His Latch Key.

MISTAKEN FOR A BURGLAR

Sweetheart Whom He Had Just Left Hysterical in the Police Station—Neighbor Fired on Him.

The man who was shot and instantly killed on the fire escape of the tenement at 121-123 St. Mark's Place early yesterday by John Guarrato, a tenant, proved to have been, not a burglar, but a tenant of the house. The dead man was Samuel Davis, a carpenter, who lived with his sister and brother-in-law, Mrs. and Joseph Liebwicz, in an apartment on the second floor just below that of Guarrato.

Davis had gone to visit his sweetheart, who is ill, and in his haste had left his latch key at home. On returning to the tenement and finding himself locked out he had been unwilling to wake his family by ringing the bell. Thinking to get into his room by the fire escape he went to the roof of the tenement and was climbing down the ladder when Guarrato, who was awake in bed, with a pistol under his pillow, saw him outside the window, and taking him for a burglar shot him.

Davis's body was identified by Liebwicz, his brother-in-law, three-quarters of an hour after the shooting. After the panic following the shots Liebwicz, with other tenants, crowded into Guarrato's room. Davis's body was still hanging half in and half out of the window. Liebwicz pushed his way through the crowd surrounding the body and recognized his dead brother-in-law. Being able to speak little English he voiced what, to the crowd, was an unintelligible outburst of exclamations. Then he seized Policeman O'Connell by the arm and attempted to drag him out of the room. O'Connell thought the man had gone insane until a woman explained that Liebwicz was trying to say that the dead man was his brother-in-law.

O'Connell already had found a union card of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Local 309, bearing Davis's name, in the dead man's pocket. Liebwicz led him upstairs to Davis's home, where by papers and the forgotten key in the pocket of another coat he made the identification complete.

Both Liebwicz and his wife were beside themselves at the shooting of Davis, and his death deeply affected Pauline Cohen, the nineteen-year-old girl whom Davis was engaged to marry, and from whose house at 166 Allen Street he was returning when he was shot.

Davis left her at midnight and Miss Cohen retired. She was sleeping less than two hours later when she was roused by a pounding on her door.

"Sam Davis has been shot. They are going to take his body to the police station," the messenger told the dazed girl when she opened the door. Screaming with fright she threw a cloak over her nightdress and ran the dozen blocks to the St. Mark's Place tenement. Davis's body was being carried out of the house to the station by four policemen as she arrived. She followed it screaming all the way to the Fifth Street Station House.

Coroner Feinberg has started a rigid inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the shooting. What he particularly wants to know is whether or not Davis made any attempt to enter the bedroom of Guarrato from the fire escape before the latter began shooting. To the Coroner Guarrato said his home had been robbed several times, and he was very nervous.

"I was lying down," he said, "when I saw the man coming through the fire escape at about 12:30 o'clock. I jumped out of bed and commenced to shout. As he lifted up the window I emptied my revolver at him and reloaded again lest he come back with others. I never saw him before."

Coroner Feinberg remanded Guarrato to the Tombs for the inquest. The police are inclined not to believe Guarrato's story about Davis's having tried to open his window. Tuesday night was warm and they believe it must have been open already.

TRACED BY A BANK CHECK.

Man Wanted for Murder Arrested When He Tried to Use It.

Carlo Muschiani, wanted in Inwood, L. I., on a charge of murder, was arrested in this city yesterday through a check that he accepted from a neighbor. When he fled from Inwood on Sunday after Giovanni Sorrentino had been shot in a card game Muschiani hastened to Mariano Ritondo, a neighbor, and demanded $39 that Ritondo owed him.

Ritondo had no cash, but gave Muschiani a check on the bank at Lawrence, L. I. On Monday Muschiani bought $10 worth of groceries from an east side Italian and gave him the check. The grocer said he would deposit the check, and if it was all right he would give Muschiani the change.

The grocer sent the check to the Bowery Savings Bank yesterday and some one there telephoned to the bank at Lawrence. The cashier of the latter institution said that the Nassau County District Attorney had stopped payment and was looking for Muschiani.

The detective was notified and Muschiani was found. In the Tombs Court Magistrate Herbert remanded him to the custody of the Nassau County detectives.

LESSONS FROM ARGENTINA.

Its Training Schools Attracting the Attention of the World.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—An educational curriculum which teaches the young boy and girl how to do things through practical training in commercial, agricultural, and manual training schools is a feature of Argentina's school system which is compelling the attention of the world's teaching forces.

The immense success attending Argentina's new programme of agricultural education is a subject of forceful comment by Consul General Bartleman at Buenos Ayres in a special report to the Department of Commerce and Labor.

He asserts that the desire of children throughout that country to study scientifically some trade for their life work is so great that the existing schools are not sufficient to meet the demand. The regional schools train the youth in each province to develop the farm and forest products.

RECORD EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS

Seismographs at Washington and Cleveland Indicate Disturbances.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—An earthquake, believed to have been about 4,500 miles away, was recorded on the seismograph at Georgetown University early to-day.

The tremors, which lasted from 3:14 to 3:35 o'clock, were very slight, and in an easterly and westerly direction.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 7.—The seismograph at St. Ignatius College recorded two earthquake shocks to-day, the first lasting from 2:13 A. M. to 2:47 A. M., and the second from 4:57 A. M. to 5:21 A. M. Both shocks were too light to indicate distance or direction.

Big Enrolment at Seton Hall.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 7.—With its new $150,000 building ready for use, Seton Hall College will open to-morrow for its fifty-fifth year with a larger enrollment than ever before. In the Faculty the Rev. William T. Baird succeeds Dr. William T. McLaughlin as Vice President, and the Rev. James Cloherty, who has been Principal of the preparatory department, is now a professor in the college. The Rev. William A. Griffin succeeds Father Cloherty. Make the Publication Show Cause

No part of an advertising campaign is more vital than the selection of the list. To eliminate waste—to reach the greatest possible number of the kind of homes desired, for each hundred dollars expended—is the foremost business consideration.

Business Sense in Space-Buying

As the average magazine is sold to-day—75% of its edition through the news stands—it is, of course, impossible to establish any accurate and final basis on all mediums.

But by the expenditure of a reasonable amount of money in providing the necessary systems, every periodical could supply the following information—and would have to do so if advertisers applied the same simple business rules to space-buying that they apply to goods-buying:

1. Are the circulation books audited by public accountants, and can the audit be seen? (The commercial evidence of delivery.)

2. What is the actual net paid? (Not the "edition order.")

3. What percentage is in the form of subscriptions? (That advertising does the most good which reaches the most people over and over again. This is cumulative effect.)

4. What is the distribution by states, classes of cities and towns, etc.? (Should parallel trade.)

5. How are the subscribers divided, as to the number in each business or profession? (Shows purchasing power and class.)

6. Is the circulation increasing—and is the increase steady or in spurts produced by heavy advertising? (The true index of public appreciation.)

A Circulation Guarantee Should Mean Something

7. Do the publishers guarantee the circulation on which the rate is based? (You are entitled to know that the amount you pay for is delivered.)

8. Will this guarantee be backed with a cash refund in case of shortage? (Simply fair business honesty.)

Collier's is voluntarily answering all these questions to-day, with evidence that would be accepted by the Supreme Court. Its books and methods are open to advertisers and agents, who are courteously shown the perfected system whereby over 90% of its 550,000 yearly subscribers are tabulated by occupations.

Talks on Teeth BY G. GORDON MARTIN (INCORPORATED)

Comfortable Dentistry

There is no better time than during the month of September in which to have your dental work done, and there is no cooler or more comfortable place in New York City than our big, airy, cool offices.

We are up on the seventh floor on the corner of 5th Ave. and 32d St., and our offices are cool and clean, no matter how warm it may be on the street below us. Here is a letter from one of our out-of-town patients, for whom we did work last season:

Carlsville, Ky.

Mr. Gordon Martin (Inc.), N. Y. City.

Sirs:

The dental work you did for me is first class work and can recommend you very highly.

I am improving in health and eating is a pleasure. Before the work was done I simply swallowed without chewing. Yours truly, CLARENCE WRIGHT.

There is no uncertainty about testimony of this sort, and it should convince you of the superiority of our work.

Briefly, the Martinolar Method is this: If you have two or more teeth in either jaw, we will supply all that have been lost, and they will be as beautiful and as serviceable as your natural teeth were, or should have been, at their very best.

They will be firm and tight. We tighten loose teeth and cure sore gums. We don't bore or cut into the gums or cause you pain while the work is being done.

We invite you to call at our office for a free consultation and examination of your mouth and let us explain what we can do for you.

If you cannot call at once, send for our book, "Martinolar Dentistry." It is sent free on request.

The reading of this book has brought us patients from everywhere.

OBSERVATION AND FORECAST.

We have received from a correspondent of long experience, trained judgment, and tested trustworthiness the following statement of the political situation as he finds it:

> I am just finishing a long Western trip. I have been through Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee, and start from St. Louis to-night for Des Moines.
>
> I have been struck by the continued unpopularity of TAFT, the feeling against "regular" Republicanism, which includes Cannonism and Aldrichism, the objection to the tariff and to the lack of interest in the progressive legislation passed during the last session. "Regular" Republicanism is in the way of a sharp drubbing, and will pass away. ROOSEVELT'S speeches are tremendously popular, and there is general insistence that he again run for the Presidency. This includes Democrats as well as Republicans.
>
> You will be interested also in the fact that there is no longer any public outcry against the railroads. That stage has been passed. So far as corporations are concerned, the people are looking at them in a saner way. The advisability of the repeal of the Sherman anti-trust law is being seriously considered; and I believe, in the end, if effective Government regulation of corporations be arranged, the anti-trust law can be repealed without objection.

Assuming this forecast to be realized, we shall find a change of tone in those who are rushing to extremes only because they believe extremes to be demanded by the people.

THE SWING OF THE PENDULUM.

There were a number of primary elections and one State election on Tuesday with almost completely uniform tendency away from the Republican Party, or away from the regular wing of the Republican Party toward the Progressive wing. A few instances will show the extent and character of this tendency. Vermont gave the Republicans a plurality well below the traditional safety line of 20,000. The veteran Senator BURROWS, after thirty-three years in the National Legislature, was refused a renomination in Michigan. Senator LA FOLLETTE, the most extreme and least reasonable of the insurgents, was triumphantly nominated for the Senate. In California an indorsement of President TAFT was rejected and Mr. ROOSEVELT was acclaimed the National leader of his party. Plainly the opposition movement won all along the line.

Exactly what this movement is and whither it would carry us it is not easy to say. Unquestionably it expresses deep dissatisfaction with the ways of the Republican Party, but the causes of that dissatisfaction are many and are not all congruous. A very important element in it is the revolt against the corrupt methods and greedy aims of the framers or supporters of the Aldrich tariff, the sentiment of disgust thus aroused having more influence, probably, than the reasoned criticism of the tariff itself, though this has been singularly destructive. Uniting with this sentiment has been the more general one that the Republican Party has been under the control of private interests in other ways. This in its turn has been greatly strengthened by the disclosures of greed and indifference to the rights of the public on the part of some of the bigger corporations within the past decade. The feeling aroused has been fanned by demagogic appeals and devices, to which, we regret to say, Mr. ROOSEVELT has lent the aid of his immense popularity to an extent that has grieved his true friends.

It would be foolish, because this movement has been advocated by extremists or exploited by the selfish and ambitious, to deny that it has a sound and substantial reason for existence. The really wicked abuses of the tariff, the domination of private interests, their control of the legislative and executive branches of the Government, by open or by indirect influence, are no longer to be concealed or disputed. Like abuses in connection with corporations under State license have been more conspicuous and more easily understood by the general public. The feeling that there has been an unrighteous, grasping, unscrupulous set of forces at work in our public life is not without foundation, and against these forces this movement, with all its waywardness and excesses, is an inevitable reaction. It will run its course. It will necessarily bring with it disturbance, unrest, timidity of capital, check on enterprise, diminution of production and employment, temporary arrest of legitimate development and distress for millions who have no share in it directly and do not even comprehend its nature. But there is no possible doubt that in the long run it will do good, will purge the body politic of peccant humors and bring renewed and increased health and strength. Its faults and its dangers are inherent in the democratic system of public administration, but no reasonable mind doubts that that system is on the whole the best yet devised or evolved.

KING GEORGE AND THE CATHOLICS.

If there were no better reason for fairness and courtesy in matters religious, the fact that it pays would be adequate. On Tuesday the International Eucharistic Congress in Montreal sent to the King of England a message praying his Majesty "to accept their respectful homage of unswerving loyalty and their expression of profound gratitude for the modification made in the royal declaration"—this from "the Catholics of the Empire—Bishops, priests, laity," and the message was signed by the Papal Legate, Cardinal VANNUTELLI.

The modification in the royal declaration, which was sanctioned by a practically unanimous and wholly non-partisan vote of Parliament, consisted in omitting some fanatical phrases needlessly offensive to the Catholic subjects of the King. Their omission did not at all affect the security of the Protestant succession to which, under modern conditions, Catholics no longer make practical opposition. The incident is a happy proof of the dying out of that most bitter root of political passion, religious intolerance.

MAYOR GAYNOR'S BUSINESS.

The whole country will be gratified to know that Mayor GAYNOR is making it his first business now to get well. No one will deny that from the moment he took office down to his vacation, on the first day of which he was shot, he made the job of being Mayor of New York his business day and night. With just the same earnestness and unswerving purpose he is now giving up his whole time to getting back his strength. He is right. There is work, plenty of hard work for him to do, for which he will need to be a physically strong man. The Mayor remains at his country home at St. James, L. I., where he spends every day trudging over green fields or along country roads, or driving in his automobile, with an occasional yachting trip on the Sound out from Port Jefferson. He has not yet begun to read the newspapers or discuss current affairs, though he looks forward to both in ten days or so. To a reporter of THE TIMES who saw him yesterday he appeared to be in good health, though still weak and a little uncertain on his feet from his long confinement in the hospital. He sees few people and talks as little as possible under the doctor's orders. His voice is improving—is, in fact, almost normal, for he was always low spoken, and his enunciation is clear. Some of his St. James neighbors see him, but they do the talking, while he settles back in his chair and listens. He is putting politics and city affairs as far from him as possible. The most important business before him being to get well as speedily as possible, it will be very satisfying to the country, we think, to know that he is doing his best to that end.

THE INSULTED GOVERNORS.

Col. ROOSEVELT said things at the Conservation Congress at St. Paul Tuesday that decided the Western Governors present to pack their grips and start for their home capitals. The crowd howled approval while the Colonel pitched into them on the issue of State control of water power. "If it were not for the special interests," he said, "you would never have heard of the question of State as against National control."

The Governors of the West were denied a proper hearing. They and their plea were condemned beforehand. Yet in the West the people rule, if anywhere. They pass and enforce good laws. They elect strong Governors. The "Northwestern idea" concerns eleven States which contain the Federal public lands, and the forests, mineral wealth, and water powers therein. Hitherto the United States has held them, not as a perpetual proprietor, but as trustee for future holders in fee simple under the sovereignty and the taxing power of the States that protect them. Mr. ROOSEVELT'S plan would make the Federal Government the recipient forever of income from 144,000,000 acres of forest, from one-third of the country's coal, and the largest owner of oil and gas lands and of the power sites on 135 rivers in these eleven States.

Suppose the States of this Union were forty-eight sons, inheriting a property when they become of age—Statehood, and regular settlement on public lands. Thirty-seven, let us say, received their great heritage free and clear. The remaining eleven sons, having fulfilled some of the necessary conditions and showing themselves able and willing to fulfill the others, demand their inheritance from their avuncular guardian. Uncle Sam replies: "No, I shall keep your inheritance forever. Your brothers did not appreciate their share. They wasted much of it, they did not conserve it, they let wicked monopolists get much of it, they have been prodigal and dissipated and careless. Now I will take your share, not for you eleven, but for the whole family. Your brothers have treated their inheritance badly, now you must divide with them."

To which the eleven brothers, feeling the decision to be unjust, respond: "If you wish honestly that this property be conserved and protected, if you are not simply greedy of its revenues, give it over to our rightful use. Examine our acts, (laws,) not our brothers' acts, and learn from them whether we will handle it properly. We have profited by the warning of bad examples, we have already established safeguards. Let the property and its revenues come to us for our upbuilding, not to be divided among our prodigal brothers, excepting as they come to us and join with us in developing it. Let it be for our advancement, power, prosperity, and independence."

But have the Western States erected safeguards against the use of their water powers by monopolists? What Conservationist of the faith of Mr. ROOSEVELT and Mr. PINCHOT has troubled himself even to inquire? Idaho is a fair example. Here is Senator BORAH'S testimony given on the floor of the Senate June 20, 1910:

> Under the laws of Idaho you can not store and hold water. You can not buy water rights and permit them to remain in your possession against the rights of anybody who wants to use them. When water is not applied to a beneficial use, under the laws of my State it reverts back to the public and belongs to the State. No one can go upon the Snake River, in the State of Idaho, and purchase ten inches of water and hold it for sale until some one's necessity raises it to a higher price. When a person appropriates water in the State of Idaho he gets nothing but a license from the State to apply it to a beneficial use so long as he applies it to that use. If he has a power site, I may condemn it; if he has a water right which he is not using, I may compel him to turn it loose; if he does appropriate, he must apply it to a beneficial use or lose it; if he does apply it to a beneficial use, we fix the price he may charge for it.

States that enact and enforce such laws are States to be proud of. Their Governors are men to respect. They should not be insulted by a man who while President did not know, apparently, that a statute of the United States expressly permitted—as it still permits—the things with respect to monopoly of water powers which the laws of Idaho forbid.

RECORDED BIRTHS.

Is it the curse of race suicide, or is it the neglect of the doctors and midwives to record births, that makes the birth rate in this country almost approximate the death rate? The Survey notes that Health Commissioner LEDERLE'S plan of searching the birth records whenever a child's death certificate is filed, and warning recreant doctors that they will be prosecuted for their next failure to record a birth, has caused the birth rate of this city to rise surprisingly. Could a like result be obtained in other cities of the country?

It is a simple device, and effective; it would be worth trying everywhere. Most of the States are adopting child labor laws, and enforcing school attendance more rigorously. Children entering or quitting school require birth certificates. This expedient would assure their filing. It would result in more accurate computations of birth rates. New York is an immigrant city, but perhaps the native stock is also increasing.

GERMS THAT SPOIL SOIL.

The announcement by Drs. RUSSELL and CHITTENDEN before the British Association at Sheffield that they have discovered micro-organisms which poison the nitrifying bacteria essential to the fertility of the soil may modify profoundly the views of experts who have held that the trouble with "wheat-sick" and "cowpea sick" soils is due to poisonous root excretions. The toxic substances may not come from the roots of the plant euphorbias, which seems to hurt the growth of flax, or from tares and thistles, which are "antagonistic" to wheat and oats. The roots of these plants should be examined to see whether they are not infected with organisms that weaken or destroy the hundreds of species of fertilizing bacteria that attach themselves upon or near the roots of crops. The Duke of BEDFORD and Dr. PICKERING of the Royal Agricultural Society observed that young apple and pear trees were stunted by grass growing about their roots. They proved that the injury was not due to removal of stable nutrients. JONES and MORSE of Vermont found a "dead line" for the cinquefoil in the neighborhood of butternut trees. HUNT and CATES of Cornell discovered a like noxious influence proceeding from weeds in proximity with growing corn. It may now be determined that antagonistic bacteria killed off the nitrifying bacteria in each case noted, thus removing, not a fund, but a flow of fertilization from the atmosphere into the soil.

The study of the bacteria of fertilization has hardly more than begun. Dr. DAVID FAIRCHILD of the Bureau of Plant Industry at Washington found in his Michigan experiments that the nitrogen content of a crop of soy beans was 113.55 pounds to the acre for plants inoculated with the friendly bacteria, but only 75.98 pounds for those not inoculated. Cowpeas inoculated had 139.21 pounds of nitrogen, an excess of 21 pounds over an uninoculated acre, while the dry weight of Canadian field peas, inoculated, was seven times that of a crop unacquainted with the nitrogen bacteria. The value of properly inoculated crops for feeding purposes and for turning under for soil enrichment is apparent. No wonder the announcement at Sheffield of the discovery of hostile bacteria was called "the most important agricultural discovery in fifty years."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Offensive to the Public Eye.

Advertising by means of electric signs began in a modest and inoffensive way, and for years nobody minded, whatever some of us may have thought about the wisdom of those who used it in comparison with that displayed by advertisers who made their wares known in other ways. Indeed, the efficiency of the signs in supplementing the lights supplied at municipal expense and making the streets bright and cheerful at night was so generally recognized that the attainment of publicity in this manner has gone on without any sort of regulation. But the illuminated announcements and devices have slowly grown larger and larger in the struggle for conspicuousness among a multitude of ambitious rivals.

It is no longer considered sufficient to have signs, no matter of what size, that merely shine in various colors. Instead they must appear and disappear in alternations of brilliancy and darkness. This, by compelling attention instead of merely inviting it, is productive of mental irritation, and it is undoubtedly injurious as well as wearying to the eyes of all who have to watch it, which is the same as saying to the eyes of all whose business or pleasure brings them into the streets after nightfall. So, by slow degrees, the electric signs became what may be called a chronic nuisance, but now a step has been taken that makes the nuisance acute.

Hitherto the signs were placed on buildings designed to serve, and serving, other purposes that, in some degree at least, restrained the ingenuity and the ruthlessness of the street advertisers. But at present there is one building, erected where all New York and all our visitors must see it, that was constructed with a single end in view—that of being a foundation for electric signs. The brutal, the almost appalling, ugliness of that building is indicative of what will happen to the city unless prompt measures are taken to save it from duplicating hideousness of the same kind.

Just what the measures should be we do not assume to say, but there is a limit to what one may do with his own, and it seems to us that the limit is exceeded when builders abandon every pretense of what may be called architectural decency, and, instead of trying to improve the appearance of the city, deliberately endeavor, only too successfully, to make it unbeautiful.

Grieved for No Reason.

An irascible correspondent whose letter appeared on this page yesterday made an obviously sarcastic request to be informed why THE TIMES, among other papers, prints an occasional dispatch from Europe telling the latest rumors in circulation there about Miss ELKINS and the Duke of the ABRUZZI. These dispatches our critical friend seems to have read with a slowly growing impatience that finally moved him to deny, by implication, the right of a newspaper to give space to this particular matter or to other matter of the same kind.

This grievance seems to us both unreasonable and amusing. If the writer of the letter doesn't want to read the alternating denials and assertions that the daughter of an American Senator is going to marry into the royal family of Italy, why does he do it? Surely there is enough else in THE TIMES to give him the worth of his cent, or his two cents, as the case may be. We more than doubt that anybody reads everything in a paper prepared with a view to interesting and serving as many people as is THE TIMES, but are we to omit the real estate transfers because they are ignored by the man who wants quotations on beans or split peas? Must we drop baseball because some people play only golf, and must we stop reviewing books because for many the only real news is politics?

Our correspondent can see neither interest nor importance in the stories about an international marriage that may or may not take place. All right—he needn't. Lots and lots of people do see both, and if they are not scolding because we give him what he wants, why should he scold because the others get what they want? As for ourselves, while we would not claim that the Elkins-Abruzzi dispatches are important, we do think that they have a wholly innocent and legitimate interest for many readers of many kinds, and that therefore they are worth the rather large cable tolls paid for their transmission.

One cannot always be talking—or printing—the momentous and serious things of life. Probably we all incline to do that too much rather than too little, and life is not the happier, or even the better, as a result of it.

"MORPHINE AMENDMENT."

Better Class of Dsuggists Favor It, but Think It Too Broad.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial article in this morning's TIMES on the recent "Morphine Amendment" to the Sanitary Code appears to be open to criticism.

Your first statement is that the "great unwashed" is also the "great drugged." The "great unwashed" know little of proprietary medicines, the bulk of which are purchased by those who have sufficient education to know better. The "great unwashed" know of simple herbs, which their mothers or grandmothers gave them in the old countries. The small druggist, more than the large one, will welcome the opportunity to rid his shelves of patent medicines once and for all. They have been the curse of the little fellows for years and the rock on which many of them were wrecked because of their inability to compete in price-cutting with the bigger fellows.

The better class of druggists (not necessarily the large ones, as you suggest,) certainly are in accord with the spirit of the amendment. However, we are generous enough to hope that you yourself will not be the first victim who in attempting to alleviate an urgent distress calls upon the druggist to give him a dose of "cholera drops," and is refused because of this new amendment. Of course, you can get what you wish by digging down for one of the doctors who are so much in favor of the amendment and then presenting your newly-acquired prescription to the druggist who put the remedy up as a prescription, and will be obliged to charge a prescription price for it.

While the amendment is admirable in its intent to prevent the sale of morphine to habitues and the sale of infant narcotics, it is unjustifiably sweeping as now constructed in preventing the sale of medicines which are perfectly safe in the hands of sane adults.

JOSEPH REMINGTON WOOD.

New York, Sept. 5, 1910.

The Red Flag.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noticed in the splendid procession of Monday that one organization carried the red flag. Is there not a law which prohibits this? I spoke to a near-by policeman and was informed that it was against the law. Can any one give me an explanation just why this was allowed?

S. T. STEWART.

WATTERSON ADVISES GAYNOR

"Refuse Governorship and All Factions Will Unite on You for President."

From The Brooklyn Eagle.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 7.—"Refuse the nomination for Governor and continue making good as Mayor and you will be the choice of all Democratic factions for President in 1912."

This is the advice of Henry Watterson to Mayor William J. Gaynor. To The Eagle correspondent to-day Mr. Watterson said:

"The attempt on Gaynor's life makes him look like a man of destiny. It has certainly brought him to the knowledge of hundreds of thousands of people who have only considered him as the shadow of a name. So far as the next Presidency is concerned he stands in the line of a safe precedence, because since Polk, in 1844, two-thirds of the men who have been actually elected President were not heard of or thought of for President two years in advance of their nominations.

"The unexpected (sometimes it seems the impossible) has come to pass in the case of Polk, Taylor, Fillmore, Pierce, Lincoln, Garfield, Arthur, Cleveland, Harrison, and Roosevelt. Not one of them was dreamed of two years in advance of his nomination for President or Vice President.

"In my judgment, Gaynor will make a mistake if he accepts the nomination for Governor of New York. He will spread out much stronger from the City Hall than from the State House. If he goes on with his work as Mayor as successfully between now and 1912 as between the first of January last and now, and gets no black eye, it looks as though he will be the man upon whom all the factions of the Democratic Party will unite.

"Of course, everything as to 1912 is way up in the air. Many things will have to be reckoned with, but no thoughtful and experienced observer of affairs can doubt that the events of the last six months have placed Judge Gaynor right in the forefront and the centre of the line."

The statement that the Democratic factions may unite on Gaynor for President is of special significance, coming from a loyal Bryan supporter.

A PROPHECY FULFILLED.

Letter Written in 1819 Foretold the Results of New York Census.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this census year, with its revelation of New York's mammoth population, it may be interesting to hear a prophetic voice from the past. In 1818 my grandfather, Allen Melville, merchant, son of Thomas Melville of the Boston Tea Party, removed with his family to New York. Having previously traveled in the interests of his business in England, Scotland, and France, he wrote the appended letter to his friend, Lemuel Shaw, who, in subsequent years, became Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts. FLORENCE MELVILLE.

Pittsfield, Mass., Sept. 5, 1910.

New York, Jan. 16, 1819.

You must not, however, suppose me less grateful for the kind interest evinced in my new establishment, which is gradually taking root in a genial soil and climate, and will, I trust, in good time justify the preference I have given to New York as a place of business; it unquestionably enjoys pre-eminent local advantages, has fairly distanced its rivals, Philadelphia and Baltimore, and is fast acquiring the almost exclusive monopoly of most of the Southern and chief part of the Northern and Western trade; its inhabitants, composed of the most enterprising and industrious people from all parts of the country, especially from New England, and numerous valuable emigrants from Europe, appear disposed to make the best use of its resources, and all proudly concur in the opinion that New York, the Empress Queen of this vast continent, either as a port of trade or a personal residence, is, without contradiction, the very best of all cisatlantic cities, and will most unquestionably before the close of the present century equal London in area, commerce, and population, if not in arts, wealth, and splendor.

The Court for Women.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial article published in your columns on Sept. 3 you stated that as you understand it "the suffragists are protesting against the establishment of a separate Night Court for women." Not one word has been said by the women against having a separate court for women; on the contrary, they are warmly in favor of it. The point of objection is that the new law is an attempt to impose a hygienic measure upon one sex only. The point the women wish to make is that the law is not only unjust, in that it discriminates against women, but that it is also utterly worthless as a hygienic measure. This fact has already been sufficiently established on the Continent, where regulative measures have been in effect for over a hundred years.

It is most unfortunate that the idea should have been entertained for a moment that the establishment of the separate Night Court for women was at the root of the opposition. I think no one could be opposed to that, and when the ill-considered clause regarding the examination of the women is removed I am sure that the Page bill will meet with universal approval. A SUFFRAGIST.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 5, 1910.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the writer of the editorial article about quiet-shooting guns could have a personal session with an old Sharp or "Remington 45-100," such as won fame in the international matches in the '70s, with a "Remington 50-70," for a long time the arm of the N. G. N. Y., or even with some of the new high-power arms, like the Winchester .405, "the medicine gun for lions," he might reconstruct his notions about "flinching." That is a nervous disorder, caused by dread of noise and recoil. The green hand is apt to shut his eyes when pulling the trigger, and not always with the good luck of Mr. Tupman.

If the Maxim silencer helps the flincher, it has done a good work and marks a distinct advance in rifle shooting. I have not personally used one, but expect to, and if, when I go to buy one, there is a statute forbidding its sale to me or my use thereof, it will be an unwarranted interference with my rights.

STEWART.

Troy, N. Y., Sept. 5, 1910.

The Clinic for Italians.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of a clinic for Italian consumptives, as an Italian physician I was much interested in learning through "Medicus" that at 339 East 100th Street the Board of Health keeps a clinic for Italian consumptives. Notwithstanding three years' residence in New York City, I never had heard of it before, and it seems that my colleagues, the Italian Consul, and the Italian press had never heard of it. From what appears this clinic has been kept very secret and to "Medicus" goes the honor of having discovered it.

Allow me to ask what is the use of opening an institution for Italians if those who are most interested in it, the Italians, are not made cognizant of it?

Maeterlinck for East Side.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Philanthropy is certainly in the ascendant. The superb New Theatre is to be offered to the people of the east side to witness works of the best producers at the rate of 10 to 50 cents per head. I doubt if the building will be filled at any one performance. Moving pictures will cram the house, but Maurice Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird"! Is it possible that the futility of the idea is not apparent at once? I can scarcely believe that this project is to be attempted. Does Director Ames think that those whom he hopes to elevate will flock in masses to fill this finest of buildings erected to the cause of art? It will cost carfare to go and come. It would be well to arrange with the transit companies for free passage.

GLACE BAY WIRELESS NOW.

The Station Opens for Business Across the Atlantic.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Marconi wireless station at Glace Bay, N. S., is now open, and the company is sending and receiving messages between that point and the station at Clifden, Ireland. The opening of the high-power station has brought an increase in the commercial business handled in this country, Canada, and Great Britain. Commercial houses in this city and London have found that messages can be flashed across the Atlantic as accurately and as swiftly as by cable and cheaper, and they are now transacting important business by wireless. The rate for Atlantic messages is 17 cents a word, including land tolls.

The Glace Bay station covers 150 acres of ground, and the fan-shaped aerial wires are 6,000 feet long and about 1,000 feet wide. These wires are supported by thirty masts each 250 feet high. The instruments are of the most powerful make, having a radius of 3,000 miles. Across this space they can send and receive with surprising distinctiveness, although in communicating with the Clifden station the sound waves have only 1,700 miles to travel.

In a few months the Marconi Company will be prepared to receive and transmit messages to Continental Europe. Negotiations are under way with several foreign Governments with this end in view.

"The opening of the Glace Bay station has been a great step forward for the Marconi Company," said John Bottomley, Vice President of the company, yesterday. "Communication between Nova Scotia and Ireland is now carried on without a break. An increasing commercial business is being done, for business men are coming to appreciate that the service is trustworthy and at a less cost than cable messages.

"The sending of the bulk of the foreign news in last Sunday's TIMES was a splendid achievement."

The Marconi Company is soon to become a factor in the coastwise steamship business on this side of the Atlantic. Since the new law was passed requiring vessels carrying fifty passengers to be equipped with the wireless negotiations have been opened with several coastwise steamship lines for the equipment of between seventy and one hundred steamships. With the coming of this business the company proposes to establish land stations along the coast. One advantage of such a service would be that a coastwise passenger could send a message across the Atlantic without it having to travel over land wires here.

MELLEN FOR TRADE COURT.

Suggests One with Simple Procedure to Enforce Good Railway Service.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 7.—Agreeing that the railroad company of which he is the head can properly be held strictly to the performance of duties to the public and ought to be compelled to perform such duties, if it fails to do so, and suggesting the establishment of a court of commerce with simple, sensible, and speedy procedure for the trial of cases where complaint has been made against a public service company, President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, in a second letter to the Connecticut Editorial Association, made public to-night, replies further to the association's inquiry as to his views on the subject of a public utilities bill.

In his letter Mr. Mellen urges that legislation affecting railroads or other companies furnishing goods or service to the general public should receive the most careful consideration before being adopted, and further says:

"There will be no factious opposition from me or my associates to the enactment of any law regarding railroads which, after hearing all views, the thoughtful minds of this State shall approve."

Catching the Cheaters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial on "Foodmakers' Tricks" of to-day you say: "These things still go on." Of course they "go on," and will go on until the Government punishes the dishonest foodmaker more severely than by the absurd fines now imposed—sometimes as low as $1—on those its agents catch after laborious and costly investigation.

Why are not the names of the guilty manufacturers and their products widely published that we may thus know how to avoid them? This applies as well to the short weight and measure thieves.

Again, why does not some enterprising scale manufacturer give us a small but absolutely correct scale at a reasonable price that we may follow Commissioner Driscoll's excellent advice of weighing all of our purchases and report to him the offenders?

Unless he has assistance from the public in this way his good work will go for naught after the present agitation cools off.

The President's Statesmanship.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As you are aware, I am not in favor of Presidential peregrinations. But if they are ever to be condoned certainly this visit of President Taft to St. Paul is in that category. It was the right speech in the right place and at the right time. The views are sound and should have wide circulation. Brought into sharp contrast with the demagogic utterances of his predecessor, the statesmanship of the President shows clearly his calm, clear, convincing statements, bringing into strong relief the wild, vehement, disordered assertions of the ex-President.

For the utterances of the President just at this juncture the country should be grateful.

Fall Vacations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial article on the morning of Labor Day THE TIMES, in going over the subject of vacationists returning to the city, referred to September and October as being the very best months of the year.

It would be of a great deal of interest not only to myself, but I presume to a large number of other people who have had to defer their vacations until this period, to know a pleasing and profitable way of spending a vacation at this time of the year. H.

Gov. Hughes and Ohio Politics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The press dispatches report "an effort has been made to have Gov. Hughes of New York get into the Ohio fight. Since the Governor has been nominated and confirmed as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court he declined to enter a political campaign."

This is a most praiseworthy decision, and worthy of imitation by others. E. T. W.

THE FIRST BRIDAL.

This is the old world-wonder
  And this is tho mystery:
When the Lord of the Great Amphora
  Poured forth the Wind and the Sea,
The streams that parted asunder,
  They were thyself and me!

We were the First, the Beginning,
  The elements twain of the world!
Ere the stars looked forth from the Darkness,
  Or the hills from the deeps were uphurled!
Before the uttermost Daybreak
  Together we drew, and whirled

In a passion of hunger and yearning,
  In the mists of the world to be;
When the cry of the Wind in its wandering
  Answered the call of the Sea.
And we clung in that first embracing
  In the dawn of Eternity!

Is it then great the wonder,
  The bond 'twixt thee and me—
One from the far Beginning?
  How could it otherwise be,
Since thou art the Wind, beloved,
  And I am thy bride—the Sea!

POLAR BEAR FIGHT AT CLOSE RANGE

The Beothic Arrives Here with Moving Pictures of One Taken Five Feet Away.

BEARS RAGE IN THEIR CAGES

Going To-day with Tame Musk Oxen to Bronx Zoo—Photographs of Cook's Igloo, with Never a "Proof Showing."

Special to The New York Times.

GLEN COVE, L. I., Sept. 7.—Although the sealing steamer Beothic arrived here only last evening, work is under way already to send the arctic animals brought back by Paul Rainey and Harry Whitney from the Far North over to the Bronx Park. Early to-morrow morning the Beothic will steam over to City Island and there the animals will be lightered ashore and hauled on trucks in their cages to the Zoological Gardens.

All day the Beothic was the Mecca for friends of the hunters, and Mr. Rainey held receptions both morning and evening in his cabin, showing to his visitors his prizes, alive and dead. The New York Yacht Club's station was kept busy and automobiles lined the shore. One of the late afternoon visitors was Dr. William T. Hornaday of the Zoological Park. His interest in the trip was both personal and professional. After greeting Mr. Rainey and Dr. M. J. Johnson of Louisville, Ky., the surgeon of the party, he inspected the animals and accepted them in the name of the New York Zoological Society.

On deck, waiting to be transferred, are the two polar bears, Silver King and Queenie, the latter so named despite the fact that it is not a female. The two are in separate cages and they showed the effect of their long confinement by a display of temper whenever any one went near.

King, according to Dr. Hornaday, is the largest polar bear in captivity an dthe largest ever captured alive. He weighs close to 1,500 pounds and is nearly eight feet long. His haunches are four feet across when he is sitting and his front paws are each nearly a foot wide.

"He did give us a fine tussle, too," said Mr. Rainey. "We caught him on the south side of Kane Basin, at about 79 degrees north. We sighted him on the ice floes and started out in the launch with the idea of shooting him. When he saw us coming he dived into the sea and swam toward us. Then it was that I conceived the idea of capturing him alive.

"Making a lasso of the boat's painter we ran up on him, and after two or three attempts I succeeded in dropping the lasso over his neck. He fought and growled furiously, and two or three times tried to climb into the boat, but Capt. Bartlett, who was with me, beat him off with the boathook. He took punishment enough to have killed two ordinary bears, but it never feazed him.

"While all this was going on Harold Hemment, our photographer, was busy with the moving-picture machine. He obtained some beautiful films of the fight, taken within five feet of the bear.

"We towed the bear to the side of the Beothic, hoisted him over the side, and lowered him into the hold. There he was left for four or five days without food or water while the carpenter was making the cage for him. When this was finished it was lowered into the hold, with food. He entered the cage without fear, and we dropped the door behind him."

Two or three times on the trip south King nearly escaped from his cage. The inch-thick oak planks were torn through as though they had been so much paper. The cage was re-enforced, but again King's claws were too much for the wood. Finally sharp-pointed nails, six inches long, were driven through into the cage, and this effectively stopped King's efforts to return to the land of icebergs.

The capture of Queenie was effected in the same manner. He, too, was lassoed by Mr. Rainey while he was swimming from one ice floe to another. Queenies temper is even worse than King's, and it is dangerous for any one to aproach his cage. He flies at the stout iron bars, tearing at them with teeth and claws.

Probably the most interesting part of the menagerie, however, is the herd of six musk oxen. These have been quartered on the main deck, and have become very tame. Mr. Rainey is the only one who has fed them, and they now know their names and will come to him when he calls.

"These are not the only musk oxen in captivity," said Mr. Rainey, as he stood at the door of their pen, patting one of the animals, "but it is the largest herd in the world in captivity, and we hope that they will live and increase in number. All of them are young, the oldest being not yet a year old."

The animals are about three to four feet high, covered with a dense, dark brown coat. Their eyes are a mild turquoise blue, and they have all the natural inquisitiveness of animals of their tender age. Like the polar bears, the musk oxen were roped.

"Whitney and I pursued them for five miles," said Mr. Rainey. "I was bleeding at the mouth and nose from exertion before we caught them. We shot the cows and captured the calves alive. Most of them came from Baffin Land, there being very few on the Greenland side."

The pretty little animals are sure to attract attention at the zoo. Dr. Hornaday was delighted with them. Mr. Rainey said that at first he thought of sending them to his estate in Wheatley Hills, but changed his mind when Dr. Hornaday told him the care they would have in the zoo.

Other strange animals in this climate the hunters have brought back are two walrus. These are babies. They were captured on the ice after their mothers had been killed. Mr. Rainey said that walrus had been captured alive before, but had never lived in captivity. There were three on the Beothic when she left the furthest north, 79.2, and not 83 degrees latitude, as has been stated. The third died, but those he brought here are thriving.

Speaking of the fifteen Eskimos who accompanied the hunters, among whom was I-tuk-a-shoo, one of the youths who accompanied Dr. Cook on his wanderings in the arctic, Mr. Rainey said that I-tuk-a-shoo thought Dr. Cook's pretensions to having discovered the pole a fine joke. In his own language he told Mr. Rainey that Dr. Cook "lied like hell," to use Mr. Rainey's own translation.

Mr. Rainey said he had photographed the igloo-eeyah, built by Cook which they discovered at Sparbo, on the west side of Baffin's Bay. It was in this that Dr. Cook spent the Winter, during the days in which he said he was finding the pole. I-tuk-a-shoo drew a map for Rainey, showing the wanderings of their employer and himself and Ah-pe-lah. He said all would have starved had not food been brought to them by a member of the tribe, for Dr. Cook had none. Inside the igloo there was not a trace of any record to show who had occupied it, though it was carpeted with skins. As to the "proofs" Cook left, not a proof was to to be seen, according to Mr. Rainey. There were boxes there, but the instruments which the pole hunter said he had left were nowhere in sight. There was no trace of man or beast about the place, and it was evident that the hut had not been visited since Dr. Cook left it.

"I did not touch a thing there," said Mr. Rainey. "I don't want to be mixed up in any controversy, so I decided the best thing to do was to give it a wide berth. Capt. Bartlett refused to go ashore there, as he did not want to let the shadow of a suspicion rest on him. We left everything just as we found it."

The quantities of skins, horns, tusks, hides, and pelts brought back, Mr. Rainey said, he would present to his friends, for he thought the museums had all they needed. Should there be a rarity among them, however, he said it would go to the public.

FLAGSHIP ALOHA SAILS FOR EUROPE

Commodore James of New York Yacht Club in Command of His New Yacht.

MANY FRIENDS SEE PARTY OFF

Prominent Yachtsmen in Vice Commodore Blair's Diana Wish 6,000-Mile Voyagers Godspeed.

With a fine breeze from the westward filling all of her square and fore and aft sails, the bark-rigged auxiliary yacht Aloha, flagship of the New York Yacht Club, took her departure at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Ambrose Channel Lightship, on what will probably be a 6,000-mile cruise to Europe. Commodore Arthur Curtiss James, who is the owner and the navigator of the yacht, stood on the quarterdeck with Mrs. James and her companion, Miss Florence Sullivan, and his guests and waved farewells to the party of yachtsmen who went down the bay to see him off in Vice Commodore C. Ledyard Blair's steam yacht Diana.

It was to wish him Godspeed and "bon voyage" in an informal way that Vice Commodore Blair, who will be acting Commodore until the return of Commodore James in November, took a party of members down the bay in the Diana to see him off. They included these well-known yachtsmen: Rear Commodore Dallas B. Pratt, Secretary George A. Cormack, Treasurer Tarrant Putnam, Fleet Capt. Franklin Plummer, H. de B. Parsons of the Regatta Committee, Thomas A. Bronson, Hunter Wykes, and George Freeman of the House Committee; Henry T. Sloane, William Butler Duncan, Jr., Wilson Marshall, J. Fred Tams, Richard H. Halsted, and Col. Daniel Appleton. The Aloha and her convoy left the anchorage off East Twenty-third Street at 2 P. M., steaming through the East River down the bay to the lightship, where sail was made on the yacht.

Commodore James is accompanied by Charles A. Sherman, A. P. Alvord, and Dr. Arnold Knapp. He is an experienced navigator, having sailed 155,000 miles while cruising in his former auxiliary yacht Aloha. He takes command of his yacht upon leaving a harbor and navigates her from port to port.

His friends on board the Diana yesterday emphatically denied that he was crossing the Atlantic with a view of negotiating a race for the America's Cup. "He is simply doing what he has always done," said a close friend of his, "and that is to indulge himself in what he regards the greatest sport in the world—that of yachting, in which a man may sail in his own yacht and be master of her in every sense of the word. He will probably cruise about the English, Scotch, and Irish coasts, visiting all the principal ports, and returning in November to New York."

The Aloha, which was launched last March, from the Fore River Iron Works at Quincy, Mass., is a steel, bark-rigged auxiliary yacht, measuring 218 feet over all, 165 feet 10 inches water line, 35 feet 6 inches beam, and 16 feet draft. In addition to the full complement of sails required by a bark, she is equipped with a triple expansion engine with cylinders 12, 19 and 30 inches in diameter, respectively, and 24 inches stroke of piston, and two water-tube boilers. Her code signal letters are "L. B. K. S." Her Captain, who also assisted materially in designing the yacht, is Peleoman Bezanson; the chief officer, Melvin O'Brien; chief Engineer, F. M. Clifford, and Steward, John Palmer. She carries a crew of forty men, nearly all of whom served in the old Aloha.

'MOTHER'S' WOES WIN TEARS AT HACKETT

New Play by Jules Eckert Goodman in Which Emma Dunn Wins Special Favor.

HAS ONE POIGNANT MOMENT

A Blend Which May or May Not Be Interesting, Depending How One Views It.

MOTHER, a play in four acts, by Jules Eckert Goodman. Hackett Theatre.

Mrs. Katherine Wetherill	Emma Dunn
William Howard Wetherill	Frederick Perry
Walter Thompson Wetherill	Albert Latcha
James Bingham Wetherill	Master Arthur Ross
John Walton Wetherill	Master David Ross
Ardath Wetherill	Binette Barrett
Leonore Wetherill	Marion Capman
John Rufus Chase	James Brophy
Harry Lake	John Stokes
Elizabeth Terhune	Jane Corcoran
Agatha	Justine Cutting

There was a moment of rather poignant pathos in the new play "Mother" at the Hackett Theatre last night. It came at the end of the third act, when "Mother," very beautifully and artistically played by Miss Emma Dunn, clasped in her arms her oldest born, William, and exclaimed, "At last I have my boy again." Those may not have been the exact words. But they express the idea. And it is an idea that is at the beginning of things, and sometimes the root of the very deepest feelings.

As has been said, however, this was the end of the third act, and as plays go—or ought to do—that point isn't exactly the beginning. Before it was reached Mr. Jules Eckert Goodman had dabbled a good deal with a number of elemental things. He had, for instance, shown quite a lot of little happenings such as may occur in almost every home. But he forgot, perhaps, that because such things are realistic they are not always necessarily interesting to outsiders. And he had told practically the same story twice in one family before his play was much more than two acts old.

Brother Will had married an actress, who squandered his money and made it necessary for him to come to mother to borrow. He had embezzled from the firm he worked for. And mother, unsuspecting the real purpose of his visit, had been overjoyed to hear that after a four years absence from his home—the catty, selfish actress wife was at the bottom of the trouble—he was coming back.

But when he asked for $10,000 ar "Mother" realized that it would mean ruin to the whole family—to Will's two sisters as well as Walter, the second son, and the twins—Mother, on the advice of the family lawyer, who by and by turned out to have had something more than platonic intentions all the time, well, she refused to let him have the cash. And thereupon he had forged her name to a note and was in danger of going to jail unless Mother stood by the signature and the girls agreed to give up all they had. Which of course they did, though "Mother" alone seemed to be entirely unselfish about it. But that is the way of mothers. And, as everybody knows it, everybody was necessarily touched and had a great cry about it. And that is certainly one way for a lot of people to enjoy themselves at a play.

But "Mother" certainly didn't have a jolly time of it. Will had hardly had time to get himself and her in all sorts of trouble before Walter started in to make the same sort of mess. And most curious of all, the budding prima donna on whom the second son expected to spend all his money was sister to the first catty actress who had brought Will's disgrace on the family. However, mother had had her lesson. And she succeeded in deceiving the girl, who as soon as she believed that Walter hadn't a dollar in the world told him and his family to go—well, to a place that isn't mentioned in polite society.

That was the point of greatest laughter in the play helped along not a little by the vigorous way in which Miss Jane Corcoran delivered the impolite injunction. Miss Corcoran, like her character, was direct at any rate, and most of the others weren't, especially Agatha, the oldest daughter, who was persistently and perversely blind to her own interests. Harry Lake loved Agatha, but Agatha, for some reason in no sense conveyed, insisted upon believing that he loved her little sister Leonore. Even when he sent her flowers she turned them over to Sister Leonore. When he came to propose Agatha led Mother to think that it was Leonore he wanted. And poor, blind Mother never suspected, either. Agatha never would have been married if Harry hadn't finally induced her to elope, which brought a farce comedy scene to the otherwise serious proceedings.

You really couldn't help sympathizing with Mother, though you shared the lawyer's sentiments when he suggested tanning the hide off of Will.

"Mother," in short, is the type of play which is obviously written to please the eager public that likes sentiment in large doses. The thing has been more cleverly done at times, but it is at least to Mr. Goodman's credit that he has improved on "The Man Who Stood Still," his last play seen hereabout.

Of the players Miss Emma Dunn acted with much delicacy, great feeling, and an abundance of tenderness, suggested and expressed. She looks the little "Mother" to perfection. It is not her fault if the role is almost entirely on one level, as a result of which its blend of smiles and tears becomes a little tedious after a time. No one, however, could do more with it than Miss Dunn and the warm applause which rewarded her was a just tribute to a splendid artiste.

Next to her Frederick Perry, playing scapegrace number one, scored in a scene of frenzied emotion, played with much nervous energy, and Miss Corcoran made much of her one brief scene. Two youngsters, Arthur and David Ross, were amusing as the twins, and Marion Chapman, James Brophy, and John Stokes were agreeable enough. Miss Minette Barrett bleated rather fearfully.

W. HOLMAN-HUNT, NOTED ARTIST, DEAD

He Was One of the Three Founders of the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood—Aged 83.

MEMBER OF ORDER OF MERIT

High Honor Paid Him by King Edward—Some of His Celebrated Works.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—William Holman-Hunt, O. M., the painter who, with Rossetti and Millais, founded the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood, died to-day. He was born in London in 1827, and exhibited his first picture at the Royal Academy in 1846.

He had been in feeble health for some time, and his death was not unexpected.

With the death of William Holman-Hunt is snapped the last human link between the artists of to-day and that little brotherhood of the "Forties" which, meeting at first only with derision and abuse, was probably the greatest single influence in what is now coming to be known as the artistic Renaissance of the Victorian age.

William Holman-Hunt was born in London in 1827, and so was 83 years old at the time of his death. His parents were poor and wanted the boy to enter business life, but, by a fortunate chance, the auctioneer for whom Hunt became a clerk discovered the youth's artistic talent and encouraged it. Then came a period of stress. Young Hunt painted portraits for tiny remuneration and in his spare time drew at the British Museum. After two unsuccessful attempts, he was admitted as a student at the Royal Academy.

There he met Millais, whose people were well to do, and the two young men became close friends. Rossetti joined them later, and then came the foundation of the "P.-R. B." Every one has heard of the storm of denunciation that followed the exhibition of the brotherhood's first pictures, but despite this, Hunt sold his work, the "Rienzi," for £100. It is true that the purchaser thought so little of it that he put it into a garret and forgot all about it, but the money kept Hunt going, and his period of struggling did not last for long.

Then, soon afterward, came "The Light of the World"—the painting by which he has always been best known, and Hunt had little more hardship. His later life has been such a life as most men seek and very few are fortunate enough to attain. He worked, traveled in the Holy Land and elsewhere in connection with his work, sold his pictures, saw his fame grow from year to year. Among his best known paintings are "The Shadow of the Cross"—known through a hundred thousand engravings—"The Finding of Christ in the Temple," "The Triumph of the Innocents," and "The Scapegoat."

He never became an Academician, but a few years ago received a much higher honor—he was made one of the original members of the Order of Merit, the order founded by King Edward in 1902 for his most distinguished subjects.

Mr. Holman-Hunt had a house in that famous artistic thoroughfare in Kensington, the Melbury Road, and a country place in Berkshire.

Pliny Fisk.

Pliny Fisk, 83 years old, who was a special partner of the firm of Harvey Fisk & Sons, the bankers, up to twenty years ago, when he resigned, died yesterday at his home in Trenton, N. J., following an illness of only two days. A fall in his home really caused his death. Mr. Fisk at one time had large holdings in Pennsylvania coal lands. He leaves a widow and five children, William F. Fisk of Orange, N. J.; Mrs. C. E. Corwin of New Haven, Conn.; Horace Fisk of Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. William S. Rogers, and Miss Annie Hall Fisk of Trenton. The latter is engaged to be married to William E. Green, son of the late George Elmer Ewing Green of the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals.

Mr. Fisk went to Trenton fifty years ago. He first bought a pottery, later heavily interesting himself in the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad and in Pennsylvania coal fields. He was for years a special partner of Harvey Fisk & Sons.

The late Harvey Fisk, who was the founder of that firm and who gave it its name, was a brother of Pliny Fisk, as was also the late Richard Henry Fisk and Samuel Fisk, now of this city. Mr. Fisk was an uncle of Mayor Charles J. Fisk of Plainfield, N. J., and of Mrs. John Gould of New York City.

Sacrifice hit—Murray. Stolen bases—Shean, Devore, Doyle, Murray, Devlin. Left on bases—Boston, 4; New York, 7. First base on errors—Boston, 1; New York, 2. Double play—Sweeney, Shean, and Sharpe. Struck out—By Frock, 5; by Mathewson, 11. Bases on balls—Off Frock, 3. Time of game—One hour and thirty-five minutes. Umpires—Messrs. Klem and Kane.

If Shean of the Bostons hadn't made a colossal double error in the eighth inning at the Polo Grounds yesterday, the teams would probably have battled in a runless game until all the chickens had gone to roost. Shean made one grand spill of a pop fly and followed it up by a glass-arm peg, and the two transgressions let in the Giants' only runs. The score was 2 to 0. Any ball player can make an error, but listen, Hiram, it takes some speed to make two at once, so you see Shean leads the league in something anyway.

The Giants didn't slap Frock's benders much oftener than a clock strikes thirteen, and the Doves had about as much chance of hitting Matty as T. R. has of ducking the limelight. Matty fanned every lad on the Boston team except Collins, and some of them twice. Eleven of them churned the ozone. They got five hits, which were about as useful in promoting runs as a street car ventilator is valuable in producing ventilation.

No team that ever played has such an undisputed claim on the cellar position as the Bostons. If Charley Ebbets's 168 game bill had gone through, the Doves would be in danger of having the same percentage they had before the season started. In the first inning yesterday the Giants had to feed up three chances at double plays before they retired the side. Devore opened with a single, Doyle flied to Beck, Snodgrass poked a safety to left. Red Murray's easy roll said "Howdy" to Charley Herzog. All that he had to do was touch third and burn it to first. He took the other alternative and dropped the ball. The bases were filled.

Oh, sure. And just before that, when Doyle flied to Beck, Devore ran all the way to second and didn't have a Chinaman's chance of getting back, but Sharpe dropped the ball when Beck made a poor thrown-in, so there was another chance spilled. On the third try Boston came good. Bridwell rolled to Sweeney, who forced Murray by throwing to Shean, and Shean got it to first base in time to cut down Bridwell.

Occasionally some of the players of each team got on the cushions, and just as occasionally they stayed there. About 500 sat in and warmed the chairs. Not a sound was heard except the water splashing against the docks on the Harlem. Coogan's Bluff was deserted, which means that a Boston-Giant game at this season of the year is a deadhead's idea of no ball game at all.

Well, let's start the old graphophone and hear how the Giants got the brace of figures, then fold up the paper and bore into the breakfast. In the eighth Doyle stung a liner, which shot off the top of Frock's glove and went to centre field. Snodgrass pushed one along the dirt to Shean and beat it out. Murray sent them along a furlong wiath a sacrifice, Frock to Sharpe.

Something is about to happen. Bridwell got these instructions from McGraw, "Anything will do, Al." And that was the truest thing little Mac ever said. Brid shot a high pop fly over second base like a Roman candle. Shean, Collins, and Sweeney began to sing that beautiful dittty, "It's mine, I have it." It was fine harmony, but poor dope. Shean circled both hands about the ball, but out it bounced. Doyle raced home. Shean picked up the pill and fired it toward third. Not even close. The ball rolled to the stands and Snodgrass had time to creep home. Charley Herzog also made two errors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—For the first time since Jack Quinn broke into the big show as a member of the New York Yankees the Senators reached him for a 2 to 1 victory on the Florida Avenue patch this afternoon, mussing up his benders in the seventh and eighth innings for the required number of runs. Up to that time Quinn had only allowed a solitary hit, and but one National saw second base.

Walter Johnson, who has not lost a game for more than a month, was hardly in the best of shape, but the Yankees found him a mighty stumbling block, and would never have scored if Johnson's support had not crumbled in the opening round.

Both Johnson and Quinn allowed the same number of hits, but the locals bunched theirs in the seventh and eighth innings. Kid Elberfeld, a former Yankee, virtually won the game for Washington. His single paved the way for the run which tied things up, and later his hot grounder through Austin brought in the much needed tally. The Tabasco Kid was also strong on the defense, blocking off two men at third base, when a slip would have proved costly to the Nationals.

Manager McAleer gave the fans a chance to see catcher Ainsmith behind the bat, with Walter Johnson pitching, when Beckendorf was taken out of the game in the seventh inning to allow Lelivelt to bat for him. Ainsmith handled Johnson's terrific speed just as easily as he has the others, and demonstrated that no alarm need be felt if anything happens to Beckendorf.

Jack Knight had a busy day at short stop for New York, while Birdie Cree and Daniels covered a lot of ground in the outer garden.

The Yankees were lucky to score in the first inning. Daniels led off with a grounder, which Killifer slammed wildly to Unglaub. Wolter bunted, sending Daniels to the midway bag. On the hit and run signal Chase sent a slow roller, which McBride finally reached, but fumbled, and before the local shortstopper could recover the pill Daniels was across the plate with an exhibition of some of the best base running seen here in weeks.

Quinn was the same old puzzle until the seventh inning. For five innings nothing that even indicated a hit came the Senators' way. Milan led off in the sixth with a single and was sacrificed to second, but the succeeding batters flied to Wolter.

In the seventh inning, as it is the custom here, too, everybody stood up and rooted. Washington has won more games in this lucky inning than any other club in the league. McBride was an easy out—Austin to Chase—but Elberfield singled to center and Unlaub smashed the ball to deep right for a two-bagger. Lelivelt was nominated to do the pinch hitting and worked Quinn for a pass, filling the bases. This awoke the crowd, and a tremendous outburst greeted Walter Johnson as he stepped up to the bat. Quinn must have suffered from a case of rattles, for he could not locate the plate, and Johnson drew a ticket, forcing in Elberfeld. Milan struck out and Killifer forced Johnson at second.

With the score a tie, Conroy broke open the eighth inning with a vicious drive, which Austin knocked down, but could not hold. Gessler sacrificed. McBride went out, Knight to Chase, but on the play Conroy sneaked down to third. Kid Elberfeld won the game when his grounder got away from Austin. The latter was lucky to touch the ball, as the Kid met it squarely and it sailed along grass high with the velocity of a rifle bullet.

The only time the Yankees threatened to become dangerous was in the eighth inning, when, after Daniels had been disposed of, Wolter and Chase singled. Knight's grounder to McBride forced Wolter, and Gardner's hot one to Elberfeld retired Knight.

A double play in the Yankees' ninth turn at bat with a man on first killed any further chance the visitors had to score.

Naps Beat the Champions.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 7.—Cleveland defeated Detroit 4 to 3, bunching three singles, a double, two stolen bases, and a pass in the sixth inning. Lajoie had a perfect batting average, being passed twice, making a sacrifice, and a single. Score:

EASTERN LEAGUE.

Newark Beaten by Providence in Fourteen-Inning Game.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 7.—Providence broke even with Newark in this series by taking the last game of the series to-day, 3 to 2, in fourteen innings. Steele was the star of the day. Besides pitching gilt-edged ball all through he knocked out a two-bagger, a triple, and his hit in the fourteenth would have been a home run had the bases been clear. Rock, however, was on second base and scored, leaving Steele, with credit only for a two-bagger. Rube Waddell started the game for Newark, but at the end of the sixth inning he withdrew in favor of Lee. Newark's fielding was ragged and errors were largely responsible for defeat. The score:

Jersey City Loses in Eleventh.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 7.—In a game full of errors the Birds defeated Jersey City here to-day in a struggle of eleven innings. The locals had the Skeeters well in hand, but almost presented the game to the Jerseyites by errors. Nichols and Seymour were the chief offenders. In the eleventh inning the visitors forged ahead, but the Birds came back strong and sent three men across the pan, sufficient to win the game. The score:

TY COBB HAS EYE TROUBLE.

Inflammation Causes His Retirement from Game at Present.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 7.—That Tyrus Cobb, outfielder on the Detroit American League team, is in danger of losing the use of his right eye was the announcement made by Manager Hugh Jennings of the Detroit team to-day. Cobb did not come here with the Detroit team for the four-game series which opens to-day, but remained in Detroit to consult a specialist. If the specialist makes an adverse report Cobb will not play any more this year.

The Detroit management may send Cobb to New York to be examined by specialists there.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 7.—According to Tyrus Cobb's physician the present inflammation is but a trifling matter, but the player has been ordered to take a rest. A few days are expected to remove the trouble with proper rest and care. But an examination of Cobb's eyes disclosed that the famous batsman uses but one eye in batting. His left eye is normal, but the right is near-sighted, and is partly closed when he stands at the plate.

New Orleans Wins a Pennant.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 7.—As a result of yesterday's games in the Southern Association New Orleans has clinched the pennant, although the season will not close until Sept. 17. The New Orleans team obtained an early lead and has rarely been pressed, although three weeks ago it looked like Atlanta had a chance. The attendance throughout the season has caused complaint from a majority of club owners. The sale of players and those drafted also decreased compared with former years.

Brant will be at second, Cotter at third, and Kelleher and Gordon in the outfield.

ALTOONA, Penn., Sept. 7.—The Tri-State League baseball season closed to-day. Altoona won the pennant easily. Lancaster was second and Williamsport, Trenton, Johnstown, Harrisburg, Reading, and York finished in the order named.

Catskill Auto Run Postponed.

The Catskill reliability run and hill climb, scheduled to take place next Saturday, has been postponed. The reason given is that a number of autoists who wished to take part in new cars had been unable to get them. Rather than hold the race without a full list of those desiring to enter, the promoters decided to postpone the event until later in the year.

Wagner in Vanderbilt Race.

The report which recently gained considerable circulation that Louis Wagner, winner of the Vanderbilt Cup race of 1906, would not compete in the coming event has brought out a vigorous denial. Wagner denies that he has retired from the racing game and says he will positively start in the Vanderbilt race. He expects to take part in several other races as well.

MULFORD TO DRIVE IN VANDERBILT RACE

Winner of Elgin Trophy Brings Lozier Car Here for Cup Contest Oct. 1.

Ralph Mulford, who with his Lozier car won the Elgin (Ill.) road race trophy, will be a contestant for the William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Cup, which is to be competed for by the world's best drivers on Long Island, Oct. 1. The entry has just been made by C. A. Emise of New York. Mulford drove the car from Elgin to Chicago and then to New York, and he was accorded a reception all along the route.

Another Cole "30" has been entered in the Massapequa Sweepstakes, which, with the Wheatly Hills Sweepstakes, are to be run in conjunction with the Vanderbilt Cup race. The car was entered by the Colt-Stratton Company, and Louis Edmunds has been named to drive it. Edmunds was formerly the team mate of "Bill" Endicott, the driver of the other Cole entry. Endicott and Edmunds as team mates competed in several twenty-four-hour races, and last Spring they won several honors on the board track at Los Angeles.

A Marion car has been entered in the Wheatly Hills Sweepstakes by Charles E. Reiss of New York. Marcel Basle, an old-timer in the racing game, who has competed in contests held at Atlanta, Brighton Beach, Indianapolis, and elsewhere, has been selected to drive the car.

A. R. Pardington, assistant to W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., President of the Motor Cups Holding Company, has opened an office in the Long Acre Building, Broadway at Forty-third Street, for the accommodation of those interested in the Vanderbilt and Grand Prize races. All information as to boxes, seats, parking spaces, and entries can be had from there. The offices are connected with a telephone, (Bryant 588,) and will be open from 9 o'clock in the morning until midnight.

BONDS FOR ARREST CASES.

Automobile Owners' Association to Afford Protection to Members.

The Automobile Owners' Association, an organization incorporated a few months ago, with offices at 27 William Street, has taken over the bonding business of a leading surety company which formerly issued bail bonds for automobilists arrested for any cause. The association will furnish its members with an unlimited number of bail bonds for use in cases of arrest, and will furthermore furnish counsel to either defend its members or prosecute for them when necessary.

The bail bonds formerly issued were good in only this State, but the bonds issued by the association will be good in every State in the Union. Attorneys have already been engaged in every police court district in New York City, in every village on Long Island, and in sixty-five cities and villages up the State. These attorneys may be employed to defend clients in cases of arrest for violation of any automobile laws, such as overspeeding, operating without a license, or without proper registration.

They will also be required to defend in cases of alleged criminal negligence resulting in injury or death. In cases of collisions with automobiles or other vehicles these attorneys will defend a member or prosecute for him. In serious cases, involving special points, special counsel will be employed. The bail bonds issued by the association may be used by the owner, his chauffour, or any member of his family driving the car at the time of arrest.

TIMING AUTO RACES.

Contest Board Refuses to Recognize Records Unless Automatically Timed.

The Contest Board of the American Automobile Association yesterday issued a statement calling attention to the rules of the association regarding the records, which provides that the Contest Board shall pass upon all records and may decline to accept any claim which, in its opinion, would not promote the interests of the sport; that no claim for a record of one mile or under and up to five miles will be considered by the Contest Board unless the same is taken by an automatic electrical or mechanical timing device approved by the board; that no record will be recognized unless claim for same is made within ten days of its accomplishment unless the Contest Board consider that the circumstances warrant a delay, and that no claim for record will be considered unless the sworn statements of the referee, chief timer and surveyor of the track or course are presented to the Contest Board. The statement says:

It should be clearly understood that no performances of one mile or under and up to five miles which are timed by stop watches only will be accepted by the Contest Board or recognized as breaking existing records for such distances. It is a well-recognized fact that in the timing of cars at high speeds the personal equation of the individual watchholder is too variable a one to permit of the results so obtained being made the basis of award of speed supremacy when the dividing line between existing and new records is narrowed down to a few fifths of a second.

In addition a trophy will be given for each position.

COLLEGIANS IN TENNIS.

Princeton Racquet Wielders Lead in First Day's Play at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—Princeton's racquet wielders gained the major share of the honors in the opening rounds of the intercollegiate championship lawn tennis tournament at the Merion Cricket Club to-day, Princeton having three of the seven survivors at the close of the day's play to two for Yale and one each for Pennsylvania and Harvard.

The feature was the defeat of "Aleck" Thayer of Pennsylvania by J. Cote of Yale, a newcomer in the competition. R. A. Holden of Yale, Dean Mathey of Princeton, and A. Sweetser of Harvard, who are considered the most likely contenders for the singles championship, won their matches in easy style. The latter two will meet to-morrow in the third round. The summary:

ON LOCAL TENNIS COURTS.

Smashing in spectacular fashion overhead, T. L. Leventritt, the famous old Columbia lawn tennis player, paired with Benjamin M. Phillips of hockey fame, scored an upset in the semi-final of the New Rochelle Lawn Tennis Club doubles yesterday by defeating Clarence Hobart and Calhoun Cragin setless at 6-4, 6-3. The two pairs were going strongly, as each had arrived in the semi-finals by straight set wins, Hobart and Cragin defeating A. Dudley Britton and Alfred F. Lattimer, the Bronxville Athletic Association pair, 6-4, 6-1. Leventritt and Phillips had breezed through two sets, in which they had scored at 6-1 and 6-4 over Charles F. Porter and C. M. Smith. The summaries:

Willie Lewis's Chance to Fight Papke.

If Willie Lewis stops the Dixie Kid at the National Sporting Club on Friday night he will get a chance to met Billy Papke again. Dan McKetrick, Willie's manager, has received word from the Pacific Coast asking what his terms will be to meet the "Thunderbolt" in case he decisively beats the Dixie Kid.

"Willie will meet Papke for a shoestring if necessary," said McKetrick last night. "There is one man we want to get. Papke stopped Willie in Paris a few months ago, but it surely was a lucky wallop. Why, Willie had Papke apparently out, and was just timing the finishing blow when Papke made one last effort and it happened to catch Lewis clean on the jaw. Willie hadn't figured that Papke had a punch left and left himself unprotected. They say there never was a lucky knockout, but take it from me it was a lucky one that won for Papke."

KEOGH RALLIES IN POOL MATCH

Champion Defeats Hueston, 239 to 115, in Second Night's Play for the Title.

The second block of the 600-point pool match between Jerome Keogh, the world's champion, and Thomas Hueston, challenger for the title, was played at Doyle's Billiard Academy last night and resulted in a victory for Keogh, 239 to 115. The total score of the match is now 405 to 328 in favor of Keogh, Hueston having won the opening block Tuesday evening by the score of 213 to 166. The third and final block will be played to-night.

Last night's play differed greatly from that of the night before. Hueston played a far more cautious game, resorting often to safety play even when it necessitated scratching. Keogh, who fell down repeatedly Tuesday evening on combination shots, had an unerring aim for such plays last night, and four times he succeeded in clearing the table after spotting a possible combination and getting a most advantageous break. The feature shot of the evening came in the eleventh frame.

Hueston made a pretty break and left the balls closely bunched, with the cue ball at the lower end of the table, close to the rail. Keogh picked out a seven-ball combination and got his ball, at the same time making a break which enabled him to clean the table. In the next frame Keogh got a three-ball combination and break which put him in position for a run of thirteen. Fine shots on combinations at the opening of the seventeenth and eighteenth frames allowed the champion to make a run of thirty-one balls. Keogh played his usual slow, deliberate game, and his position play was excellent. Hueston's play was of a more rapid order, and resulted in his falling down on several easy shots.

Too much safety play resulted in the ninth frame being forfeited to Keogh. After the break Hueston scratched in order to make a safety shot, and Keogh did the same. Each repeated, and when Hueston followed up with his third scratch Keogh called the attention of Referee John Daly to the rule of a forfeited frame on three successive scratches. The fifteen balls were accordingly awarded to the champion. Hueston made only two clean sweeps during the evening, while Keogh won the entire frame nine times, not including the forfeit.

Hueston began the evening with a lead of forty-seven balls, and in the first four frames increased his advantage to sixty-three. Then Keogh began to pick up, and although he failed to get a ball in the sixth frame, he had reduced Hueston's lead to twenty points at the end of the ninth. Then he ran against his second shutout of the evening, but came back strong with fifteen, and with the assistance of two scratches was only eighteen points behind Hueston at the end of the eleventh. The seventeenth frame opened with Hueston leading, 308 to 290, but a run of thirty by the champion in the next two frames put him in the lead, and the nineteenth frame opened with Keogh leading, 320 to 308. Keogh increased his lead materially in the five succeeding frames with scores of 9, 10, 15, 10, and 15, and at the end of the twenty-third frame was in front, 379 to 324. Another clean sweep in the twenty-fourth and eleven balls in the twenty-fifth put Keogh five points beyond the 400 mark. The score by frames:

Keogh—9 3 4 6 15 0 14 15 15 0 15 8 10 7 15 2 15 15 9 10 15 10 15 15 11. Total—248. Scratches, 9.

Hueston—6 12 11 9 0 15 1 0 0 15 0 12 5 8 0 13 0 0 6 5 0 5 0 0 4. Total—127. Scratches, 12.

High runs—Keogh, 34, 31, 31; Hueston, 16, 15, 13.

SHEPPARD WINS THE "440."

Ramsdell Beaten in 220-Yard Dash in Games at Worcester.

Special to The New York Times.

WRCESTER, Mass., Sept. 7.—Arriving in Worcester at 8:45 to-night from New York Melvin W. Sheppard, the holder of many track records, defeated ten handicap opponents in a 440-yard dash, making the distance in 56 1-5 seconds. Although on the programme for several exhibition races against time Sheppard only appeared in the one event, which was the best 440-yard race ever held in Massachusetts.

With a field of ten opponents, including C. B. Baxter, the New England intercollegiate champion one-half-mile runner, and John Halfenstein of the Brooklyn Gym. A. A., holder of several records, Sheppard started at scratch. During the first lap the Irish-American A. C. runner was last man in the field, but with little difficulty in the last lap overtook his opponents and crossed the tape about three yards ahead of Halfenstein, who lead the field from the start and finished second; Baxter landed third prize.

In the 220-yard dash F. L. Ramsdell, the University of Pennsylvania star miler, fell to defeat, losing the race to H. P. Drew of the Springfield Y. M. C. A., but crossed the line a close second. Howard had a eleven-yard handicap on the mile, and held the lead from the start. Ramsdell, on a bad start, did not overtake his eight opponents until the last fifty yards of the race, and then gained but little on Howard, who finished in 22 4-5 seconds, with the crack miler 1-5 of a second behind.

The crack New York A. C. runner, W. C. Paull, who was scheduled as scratch man in the 880-yard dash and the one-mile run, did not put in an appearance.

Poor Bouts at Sharkey A. C.

The scheduled bout at the Sharkey Athletic Club between Connie Schmidt and Jimmy Howard of Chicago did not come off, as Schmidt evidently forgot the address of the club. Mickey McDonough went on in Schmidt's place and put up such a poor exhibition against Howard that the referee stopped the bout after a minute of fighting.

In the preliminaries Sailor Jack and Young Monday went through fifteen minutes of rough wrestling, in which Monday kicked, hit, and punched enough to save himself from a fall. Paddy Ryan shaded Mike Carroll in the second preliminary of four rounds. Mattie Flynn and Young White, a negro, went through four rounds of slashing work. In the fourth round White got the best of Flynn and floored him repeatedly. The fourth bout was between Mike Sheridan and Kid Alberts, and they furnished a very lively contest, ending in a draw.

The fifth bout was the best of the evening. Battling Jack Nelson and Young Dickson, a sailor, fought six rounds. Young Dixon had a crowd from the fleet to cheer him on, but Nelson just managed to hold him to a draw.

JOE BOY AND BIZA WIN.

Two Grand Circuit Races Held at Connecticut State Fair.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 7.—For the first time since the opening of the Connecticut State Fair on Monday weather conditions this afternoon made it possible to run off some of the Grand Circuit races at Charter Oak Park. The 2:12 pace and the 2:14 trot were won, respectively, by Joe Boy and Biza in straight heats. The other big feature, the biplane act of Frank Coffyn, proved a disappointment, owing to engine trouble.

If the track is in good condition tomorow, as is expected, Uhlan will try to break the track record driven to a wagon. In a workout mile late to-day Uhlan made the last half mile in 1:04½. Summaries:

Big Crowd at Interboro Fair.

The record crowd to date that gathered in the grand stand at the Interboro Fair at Dongan Hills, Staten Island, yesterday, witnessed much better sport than was seen on Tuesday. Two harness events and a running race made up the card, although only three horses started in the 2:25 pace, and the event was won in straight heats by Marion, and Peanut Boy took all three second places.

Six heats were necessary for the 2:19 trot, and all six were of exciting nature, but Charley B., a big bay gelding, carried off the purse by coming under the wire first in the third, fifth, and sixth heats.

Charley B. and Sassafras Boy divided honors for trotting the fastest heat, both covering a mile in 2:21¼, while the former trotted and won the last heat in 2:21⅛. The summaries:

Unknown Pacer Wins in Brooklyn.

Malboro, an unknown pacer to Brooklyn, captured the slow pacing race yesterday at the sixth matinee of the Pleasure Drivers' Association on the Brooklyn Speedway. Malboro defeated three of the best pacers in his class. The newcomer took the event in straight heats, defeating in the first Mack Franklin, driven by Mrs. Martin Gurau, the latest woman to compete in the races in Brooklyn. The fastest time of the meet was made by Bernard Cohen's Marion, which won the Class B trot in straight heats, the time being 1:06 and 1:08. The summaries:

Irma and Beaver Sonder Victors.

MARION, Mass., Sept. 7.—The Irma, owned and sailed by Guy Lowell of the Eastern Yacht Club, won the first sonder class yacht race today in the elimination trials for the selection of an American team for Germany. The yachts sailed over a triangular course in a light northwest breeze, with the last leg to windward.

The Peg led on the two reaches, closely followed by the Helen, but turning to windward the Irma and Beaver went out ahead and defeated the Buzzard's Bay Boats. The Bibelot was called back by the committee and did not complete the course.

A second race sailed in the afternoon over a course of three miles to leeward and return was fon by the Beaver, with the Irma second. The wind continued very light, varying from west to northwest. The races probably will be continued daily until heavier weather conditions obtain, as little idea of the ability of the yachts can be secured while the wind remains so light.

Six Teams for Twenty-Mile Race.

The twenty-mile professional team race which is to be held under the auspices of the Brooklyn Baseball Club at Washington Park, Brooklyn, Saturday night, should result in an exciting contest. Six teams will start, and the indications are that the record for that distance will be broken. The teams to run are Svanberg and Queal, Sellen and Roe, Crowley and Kohelmannen, Mat Maloney and Meadows, Crooks and Dineen, and Zanti and Blasi. Prior to the big race there will be a five-mile race between Jimmy Lee, Al Raines, Hans Holmer, Harvey Cohn, George Benfer, and others. The latter race will start at 8 o'clock. The park will be specially lighted for the occasion.

Allows Cordage to Dissolve.

Referee Jerome Hess, appointed to inquire into the affairs of the Standard Cordage Company, filed his report yesterday in the office of the County Clerk. He recommends that the corporation be permitted to go into voluntary dissolution, as petitioned by the company's Directors. The refere fixes the amount of th deficit and net loss of the corporation on Sept. 20, 1909, at $622,000.

SHOOTING AT SEA GIRT.

Capt. Casey of Connecticut Makes Ten Consecutive Bull's-Eyes.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 7.—The District of Columbia captured the McAlpin Trophy match to-day; the United States Infantry took the Hayes match; the honor in the Meany match went to Connecticut, and Ohio won the Pennsylvania long range match at 1,000 yards. It was the sixth day of the tri-State rifle tournament.

In the Meany match Capt. K. K. V. Casey of Connecticut, the well-known long range shot, made a "possible," or ten consecutive bull's-eyes, and then to clinch the match he fired another shot which was also a "five." His score was 50. Lieut. Bristol, United States Infantry, was second with 49, and Private Fehr, District of Columbia, third with 48.

It was late when the Pennsylvania long range match was begun. Lieut. Col. Winder of Ohio was first with a score of 49.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

A Small Reduction in the August Output Over July.

There was little reduction in the output of pig iron during August. The Iron Age says:

> The reduction in pig iron output in August was insignificant, the coke and anthracite furnaces producing 2,106,847 tons, against 2,148,442 tons in July. On Sept. 1 243 furnaces were in blast, with a daily capacity of 66,468 tons, against 258 furnaces, with 68,368 tons daily capacity, on Aug. 1. Production on Sept. 1 was at the rate of about 24,500,000 tons a year for all kinds of iron, charcoal iron included, whereas the record outputs were 25,781,361 tons in 1907, and 25,795,471 tons in 1909.
>
> Our pig iron production in August was smaller than in any month since July, 1909. The list of active furnaces at the opening of this month was 70 less than the maximum of 313, reached Feb. 1, and the yearly rate of production was 7,150,000 tons less than the February rate of 31,650,000 tons, a falling off of 22.5 per cent. in seven months.
>
> The basis of sales for 1911 is the chief matter of moment now. Sellers want from 50 cents to $1 advance from the low level, but buyers are not ready to pay an advance. In the Chicago district over 100,000 tons are involved in inquiries for 1911.
>
> Some good export business in rails is under negotiation, and is expected to be closed shortly. In other products also the export trade is quite satisfactory.

The Iron Trade Review's statistics show a greater reduction. It says:

> Pig iron production for August shows continuation of decline in output, which has been taking place for several months. During the past month the output of coke and anthracite furnaces amounted to 2,102,872 tons, against 2,158,124 tons in July. The daily average in August production was 67,818 tons, compared with 69,617 tons in July.
>
> In the Chicago district a steel plant has taken 10,000 tons of basic to be shipped by water from Toledo and Detroit furnaces. A St. Louis steel foundry is negotiating for 5,000 tons of basic. Ore shipments during August were 6,964,381 tons, an increase of 19,092 tons over the July movement. It is predicted that not more than 15,000,000 tons of ore will be moved during the balance of the season, which would make the total movement for the year about 44,000,000 tons.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Wheat prices again declined and final quotations were at the lowest at a net loss of ⅝ to 1c. The opening was fairly steady and following the opening there was some rally on the steadiness of the cables and on some covering of shorts. There was talk of smaller offerings of Spring wheat on account of the recent rains. Later, however, there was renewal of liquidation and the selling pressure became active in the afternoon, and the final prices were at the bottom. The decline met with very little resistance. The offerings were liberal, while the cash demand was poor and there continues an absence of export interest. Stocks are gaining steadily. The Chicago total stocks, public and private, gained 277,000 bushels for the week and is now 11,182,000 bushels, against 2,850,000 last year. Bradstreet's United States visible increased 1,576,000 bushels and the total is 36,994,000 bushels, against 15,608,000 bushels last year. The receipts for the day while slightly less than a week ago were again materially in excess of last year. Prices have declined so much, however, that there has been a good deal of profit taking by operators who have been consistently bearish. The export demand is still disappointing. Cash wheat quoted No. 2 red Winter, $1.04¼, elevator; No. 2 red spot, nominal, new, $1.04¼, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.21, nominal; No. 2 hard Winter, new, $1.07¼; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.14½.

Corn was fairly steady during the morning. The market was influenced by somewhat lower temperatures in the Canadian Northwest, and there was just a little apprehension of colder weather in the corn States. The temperatures, however, continue quite satisfactory, and the crop is making good progress. The Government report at 2:30 Thursday is expected to show a little loss in crop condition. Later the market sold off some with wheat, but steadied at the close. Bradstreet's visible increased 964,000 bushels, against 567,000 bushels decrease the previous week. Cash corn quoted No. 2 65¼c, nominal, elevator, to arrive, cost, insurance, freight, domestic basis. Sales were 40,000 bushels, No. 2, late Tuesday, for export.

Oats were quiet and easier. The receipts were large, and the visible supply showed an increase of 5,972,000 bushels, making an increase of 12,731,000 bushels in two weeks. The close was dull and rather heavy. The total visible supply is now 31,991,000 bushels, against 14,591,000 bushels last year. Cash oats were quoted: Standards, 38c; No. 2 white, 38½c; No. 3 white, 37½c; No. 4 white, 37½; natural white, 38¼@39½c; white clipped, 39@42c.

Provisions were fairly active and weaker. There seemed to be but little change in the hog movement, but the development of some selling pressure found very little resistance to the market, and prices declined easily, closing rather unsettled.

COTTON.

The cotton market was weak early, showing considerable activity and strength in the afternoon. The opening was influenced by the continuation of liquidation brought on by the sharp break of Tuesday, and there was considerable long cotton for sale. After the early pressure was over the market rallied, and when early buyers tried to cover there seemed to be but little cotton for sale. There was considerable buying attributed to Liverpool and the commision houses had good orders. The break in the market, which has carried prices below the 13c. line, has been accompanied by predictions of large receipts, improved crop reports, and there has been apprehension that the old cotton carried over by the bull speculators might come on the market. The actual receipts of cotton, which were free during August, have been showing some relative decrease recently, and there is not so much positive feeling regarding the size of the September movement as there was a short time ago. The weekly weather report was in the main favorable. It showed that the Texas sections have been relieved at fully half of the stations, and the rainfall was quite heavy at a number of points. Habersham King claims that the weather developments have been favorable the past week in full 90 per cent. of the belt. The first ginning report of the season will be Thursday morning at 10 A. M. Last year there was ginned of new cotton to Sept. 1, 388,242 bales, and the total Census Bureau crop was 10,386,209 bales. The receipts of new cotton during August have been 133,231 bales, against 70,050 bales last year.

Southern spot markets unchanged to ⅛c decline.

COFFEE.

The bull movement in coffee appeared to be gaining impetus and closing prices were steady at a net advance of 15@21 points, with sales reported of 40,500 bags. The strength of European markets, continued firmness in primary circles, and reduced estimates of the Rio crop, are factors behind the advance which has carried prices up about 1¼c per pound since early in July.

The market opened firm at an advance of 5@16 points. Havre closed at a net advance of 1@1¾ francs, and Hamburg was ¾@1 pfennig higher.

ELECTION OF LITTLE EFFECT

Outcome of Voting in Vermont and Elsewhere Hardly Market Factor —Exchange Down Again.

In addition to the great slump in the Republican vote in Vermont the stock market had before it for appraisement yesterday morning the decided victories of the insurgents in Michigan, Wisconsin, and New Hampshire, but in spite of anxiety, pretended and real, expressed by Wall Street over the political situation in recent weeks the only effect of the very obvious inferences of substantial successes by the Democrats at the polls this Fall which the Vermont outcome afforded, prices, after selling off moderately in the early dealings, grew firm and, developing strength slowly, finished the day with numerous small advances over Tuesday night's quotations. It is worth noting, apropos of the political situation and the use made of it on the Stock Exchange from day to day, that in more important financial quarters very little alarm is to be discovered over the prospect of Democratic victories. The truth is that in these circles the feeling is becoming general that a change, or at least a very decided readjustment, in the political control of the country's affairs is not altogether undesirable. To put it in another way, such a shifting of power has appealed to so many people throughout the country as holding out the promise of better things in many directions that the trial has come to seem well worth while. So far as the stock market proper is concerned, however, it is apparent that its movements from day to day upon a really trivial volume of business are only remotely concerned with such discussion; the endeavor of professional traders to scalp profits explains the minor changes in quotations, while the larger considerations, political and financial, account for the contracted business and the steadily waning outside interest in securities. An illustration of the participation of outright speculators in current Stock Exchange dealings was furnished yesterday by the severe break in the preferred shares of the American Hide and Leather Company upon the publication of an annual earning statement which threw blinding light upon the foolish reports of recent weeks regarding possible payment of the accumulated dividends on the preferred shares of the concern. The whole episode displays once more the periodical abuse of Stock Exchange machinery and suggests, too, one reason for the lack of outside interest and the antagonism of the public toward Wall Street. Aside from the publication of the usual Iron Age statistics on the country's monthly pig-iron production, this time for September, the month showing only insignificant changes, news developments, aside from those of a political kind, were negligible.

In the money situation the only novelty was supplied by the debit of the Sub-Treasury at the Clearing House—the first in some time. This was helpful in that it will serve to aid the banks in the retention of the surplus reported last week. Thus far the loss to the Government on routine transactions since Friday last has been only $1,300,000, as against $6,400,000 in the corresponding period a week ago. The receipt of $500,000 gold from Mexico was announced and demand sterling declined again, suggesting in connection with the quiet London money market the maintenance of the present discount rate by the Bank of England at to-day's meeting of the Directors.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Wednesday.

When the speculative movement in Hide and Leather preferred collapsed there was general selling by the traders on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, who jumped to the conclusion that the episode would unsettle the entire market. The strength displayed by Union Pacific, however, checked this bearish demonstration, and when it became evident that the market had had strong support extended to it a retreat of the shorts began, which continued to the close. Sales aggregated 65,039 shares, distributed among forty-three different stocks.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—Local stock changed hands the first hour in odd lots, and the volume continued to contract as the day advanced. United States Steel was the most active issue, and there was some trading in Reading, but these being arbitrage shares, the movements were not significant. In the bond division about the only feature of interest was a sudden demand for Lake Superior incomes, which were taken in fair sized blocks at a fractional gain.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Trading in Small Volume, with Irregular Price Movements on the Curb.

SOME COPPERS SELL OFF

Intercontinental Rubber Reacts After Declaration of Initial Dividend—Movements Narrow.

Curb stocks moved irregularly yesterday and trading was in diminished volume. There was a somewhat better tone among the mining issues, although several of the coppers showed fractional losses. Ray Consolidated, after selling up from 18¼ to 18½, closed at 18 after sales of 1,150. Ray Central declined ⅛ from the opening, and Miami sold down from 19 to 18⅞. Intercontinental Rubber, which had previously made continuous advances in anticipation of the initial dividend on the common, sold off yesterday from 33½ to 31⅞, and closed at 32½ after sales of 5,600.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Trading on the local Exchange was of minor importance at the outset. Only a few stocks interested the brokers. There was some renewed activity in McCrum-Howell, though there was no early news to support any especial interest in that security. Later it was said that the decision of the Federal district court sustaining rights to certain vacuum cleaning patents, nine in number, was the basis for the demand. The stock opened ⅝ higher. Match opened at a decline of ¼. A few trades in Swift's were made early at unchanged prices. Offerings of Sears were rather light, subsequently advancing to 155⅝. Bonds were utterly neglected early.

More Gold From Mexico.

Lazard Freres have engaged an additional $500,000 gold in Mexico, increasing to $4,500,000 tne amount of gold which these bankers have imported from Mexico since the movement from that quarter began. Exchange conditions have permitted the continuance of this Mexican movement much beyond the termination of the gold imports from Europe, which were checked by a rise in sterling exchange that removed any profit in the purchase of gold in London for shipment to New York. Following the last engagement of gold in London four weeks ago, there was a sharp rise in sterling exchange which carried it well above the mint parity, but there has been a considerable recession from this high figure, although the rates still rule at a figure which precludes any further gold engagement in London by our bankers at this time. As this additional gold comes in the demand for cash by interior banks continues and the banks here are making further shipments to inland points. Through the Sub-Theasury yesterday another transfer of $100,000 was made by telegraph to New Orleans. These transfers are being made free of charge, except for the cost of the telegram, under the arrangement for the free transfer of $2,000,000 between New York and New Orleans recently announced by the Treasury.

Europe's Cotton Buying.

In view of the attitude which has been taken by the concert of European bankers which recently announced that after Oct. 31 next bankers in England and on the Continent would accept only such cotton bills of lading as were fully guaranteed by bankers here, interest attaches to the experience, within the last few days, of a Southern cotton house which, after selling a lot of cotton to a concern in France, was notified that the purchasers of the cotton would require that the bill of lading be guaranteed by bankers here. The Southern firm replied that it would supply a bill of lading with a validation certificate such as was lately agreed upon by bankers here and the railroads, and if this was not acceptable the French firm could send its money here and pay for the cotton on the spot. With this alternative facing it, the French concern cabled to send the cotton along under a validated bill of lading. Our bankers are hopeful that this incident points the way to the course which all the European bankers will follow rather than adhere to the stand they have taken so far in respect to bill of lading guarantees. The bankers' committee held a meeting in London yesterday, but adjourned until to-day without announcing its decision regarding the validation plan which our bankers have proposed as a substitute for the plan previously demanded by the European bankers.

Hide and Leather's Bad Year.

It isn't often in these days that such a crude piece of work as the recent upward movement in American Hide and Leather preferred is witnessed on the Stock Exchange. When the stock started up a week or so ago under what was active trading for this sluggish issue rumors were industriously circulated of a coming preferred stock dividend. It was even hinted that something might be done toward starting payments on account of the 72 per cent. or so of accumulated back dividends on the issue. True, the officers of the company in reply to inquiries stated quite frankly that there was no prospect of dividend action at this season. Nevertheless, a little work in the market sufficed to send the issue up from 25 to 30, with a ten-fold increase in the stock's activity. The upward movement was continued right up to the eve of the annual meeting which was to show a deficit earned for the year. On sales of 4,400 on Tuesday the price was put to 32¾ and closed at 32, or 12 points above the low level of the year, reached on July 20, and within 16 points of the year's high level. Yesterday, when the annual report came out, with its sad showing of a deficit of $696,590, against the previous year's surplus of $1,404,211, the bottom fell out of the market for the shares, and the price slumped in jumps of from ½ to 2 points between sales, from 32½, the opening, to 24. The entire gain of the week or more during which the movement lasted was lost in one session and a point over, all on transactions of 7,600 shares. The rise was made in the face of a declining market, and with proper consistence, the slump occurred while the leading issues on the Exchange were making at least fractional gains.

South Rich from Cotton.

Notwithstanding the famine proportions of last year's cotton crop, the high prices, in which the planters shared largely, chiefly by reason of the early start of the bull movement on the Cotton Exchange, has brought more money into the South than cotton ever yielded before. The figures, which are those of Secretary Hester of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, put the value of the crop, not including cottonseed products, at $778,894,096. While the crop was 3,215,000 bales short of the previous year's picking, the money return was $95,099,601 greater. The value of the cottonseed is put at $124,000,000, which gives the cotton of 1909 a total valuation of $902,894,095.

Spring Wheat Estimate Grows.

Fulfilling the general prediction that the early reports of Spring wheat damage would prove greatly exaggerated as time went on, the private estimates since July have each been better than the last. The American Agriculturist now comes forward with a statement giving the Spring wheat condition as of Sept. 1 at 65.2, which is 5.7 better than the Aug. 1 report. This authority is confident that the final yield will prove even better than present indications, and predicts a crop which may easily exceed 225,000,000 bushels. Winter wheat is put at 88.2 at harvest, against the July figure of 81, and the yield is estimated at 445,000,000 bushels, which would make the total wheat crop 670,000,000 bushels.

Bingham & Garfield Railway Company

First Mortgage 6% Convertible Bonds

Guaranteed Principal and Interest by

UTAH COPPER COMPANY

Total Issue, $2,500,000. Dated July 1, 1910. Due July 1, 1920.

The first installment of 20% on this issue has been paid. The remaining installments of 20% each are payable October 1st and December 1st, 1910, and February 1st and April 1st, 1911.

Interest payable January and July. The Bonds are issued in denominations of $500 and $1,000, convertible during the period from July 1st, 1911, to July 1st, 1914, into stock of the Utah Copper Company at $50 a share. Subject to the right of the holders to convert into shares, the bonds are callable on any interest date after July 1st, 1913. Beginning January 1st, 1913, 80% of the net earnings of the Railway Company for the preceding calendar year, after all fixed charges and expenditures for renewals and improvements, shall be applied to the redemption of the bonds.

1. These bonds are a first mortgage on seventeen miles of railroad now under construction from the mines of the Utah Copper Company, in Bingham Canyon, to the reduction works in Garfield, Utah, with an assured traffic of 12,000 tons of copper ore a day.
2. They are guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Utah Copper Company, which has no bonded or other indebtedness. This company has on hand $5,000,000 in cash and current assets.
3. The net income of the guarantor Utah Copper Company available for interest charges on these bonds is at the rate of over $6,000,000 a year, or 40 times the interest on the bonds.
4. The net value of the ore reserves of the guarantor Utah Copper Company, including its equity in the Nevada Consolidated Copper Company through ownership of 950,476 shares out of a total of 2,000,000 shares of Nevada Consolidated Copper Company stock, at a conservative estimate based on prevailing prices for copper, is 80 times the par value of the total bond issue.
5. The dividends received by the Utah Copper Company on its holdings of Nevada Consolidated Copper Company shares amount to $1,425,714 a year, or nearly 10 times the interest charges.
6. These bonds mature in ten years, whereas the minimum life of the Utah Copper Company, based on the proved ore deposits, is thirty years.

We consider the above-named bonds safe as to principal and interest and very attractive from the speculative standpoint, owing to the privilege of conversion into Utah Copper Company shares.

GENERAL MOTORS CO. EFFECTS ECONOMIES

Postpones Extensions in Detroit and Saginaw Plants and Retrenches Elsewhere.

EASING UP ITS FINANCES

Wall Street Believes This Policy Is Due to Overproduction of Automobiles—Expansion Too Rapid.

The General Motors Company, the parent company of a large number of automobile manufacturing companies, in advance of entering upon a plan for a general retrenchment of expenditures of which Wall Street heard yesterday, carried through some important financing intended to put the company's affairs in a strong position. The steps taken are designed to fortify the company's position in respect to its capital obligations and at the same time to avoid any expenditures which are not imperatively called for. Among the particular items of retrenchment are the indefinite postponement of extensions to plants at Detroit, Saginaw, and one or two other points, and the cutting down of expenses wherever possible at the other plants of the company.

In the necessity which prompted the financial arrangements recently made and the decision to retrench the financial district sees the results of somewhat too rapid expansion in automobile manufacturing and proof of more or less overproduction. Concessions in prices for some of the cars manufactured by the General Motors Company's subsidiaries are looked upon as still another step intended to fortify the company and to place it in a comfortable position in respect to its finances, which owing to the size of the company's operations included heavy financing through banks in this and other cities. The action taken, therefore, is regarded with considerable satisfaction in the financial district, being regarded there as calculated to lessen the criticism which has lately been current that too great optimism had characterized the conduct of some of the largest manufacturers of automobiles. The financing done by the company in connection with its plan included the raising of $2,000,000 in additional cash.

Reports which gained currency in the financial district that the financing being arranged for by the company had some connection with a plan for a merger of the General Motors with the United States Motor Company were authoritatively stated yesterday to be entirely incorrect.

The General Motors Company has $9,352,000 preferred stock and $16,187,000 common stock. In July First Vice President Durant issued a circular to the company's shareholders advising them that the company had a plan to increase its capitalization in a way which would give the shareholders not less than five for one. The plan, he explained, was to capitalize the company in some proportion to its net earnings, which this year, he said, would approximate $12,000,000. The announcement was preceded by a decline in the price of the company's common stock from 125 to 103, and the decline continued after the announcement was made through a circular to the shareholders announcing that the cutting of a melon was in store for them.

The General Motors Company controls through stock ownership a number of automobile manufacturing companies. Among the cars manufactured under its control are the Buick, the Cadillac, the Oldsmobile, the Oakland, and the Elmore.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Money was easy to-day. Discount rates were quiet, as the market does not expect a change in the bank rate to-morrow.

The stock market was generally quiet, with the tendency of values uncertain. Kaffirs were easier, and home rails and rubber shares irregular, but gilt-edged securities, foreign stocks, and Mexican rails were steadily maintained.

American securities, after a quiet opening, declined under realizing. Later Wall Street buying caused a reaction and the market closed steadier.

Bar silver steady at 24⅝d per ounce.

Money, 1@1¼ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2⅞@3 per cent.; for three months' bills, 3 per cent.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: At Madrid, 7.40; at Lisbon, 5.00.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—After a heavy opening, prices on the Bourse recovered and closed firm to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 97f 70c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25c 23½c for checks.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—Prices were rather firm on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 44½ pfennigs for checks.

Money 3¼ per cent.

Private discount rate, 3⅜ per cent.

SPENCER COMPANY FAILS.

Receiver for Leasing Concern on Creditors' Petition in Bankruptcy.

The Spencer Leasing Company of New York, the Secretary and Treasurer of which, Edward W. Osann, was arrested in August charged with perjury in connection with a supplementary examination growing out of a judgment case against the concern, had a petition in bankruptcy filed against it yesterday by the Ald Realty Company, a creditor for $410; Ernest A. Turner, a creditor for $75, and Maurice Loeb, $75. Judge Holt appointed Robert G. Perry receiver and directed him to carry on the company's business of leasing hotels, dining rooms, and boarding houses for twenty days.

The Spencer Leasing Company came into being several years ago and immediately sent out a flood of circulars offering its stock at extremely low rates, considering the promise of dividends held out. The company took handsome offices at 34 East Twenty-eighth Street.

It did lease some dwellings and boarding houses, but according to the admissions of Mr. Osann last month, it apparently got into financial difficulties with some of its investments and was sold out of the house, five van loads of furniture being sent to a storage warehouse.

The supplementary proceedings in connection with which Osann got into trouble grew out of a judgment obtained by John G. Kloes, a provision dealer, for $343 for provisions furnished to houses of the company at 505 West 143d Street and 107 and 139 West Sixty-ninth Street.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Collar Supporters Pay Compound Rate —Tie Silks Are Taxed High.

The Board of United States General Appraisers has overruled a protest filed by H. Wolff & Co. of this city, in which it is alleged that Collector Loeb erred in the classification of so-called collar supporters imported by the firm. The supporters consist of narrow strips of celluloid about three-eighths of an inch wide and two and a half inches long, permanently attached to each end of these strips being a small brass pin, mounted with imitation pearls.

Appraiser Wanmaker reported to the Collector that the celluloid is the component material of chief value in the merchandise, and the Collector accordingly classified the supporters under the tariff provision for manufactures of celluloid, with a customs tax of 65 cents a pound and 25 per cent. ad valorem. The importers alleged that the pearls constituted the element of chief value in the articles, and that duty should be taken at the lower rate prevailing for imitation gems, which is 20 per cent. of the value of the goods. General Appraiser Sharretts, who writes the decision for the board, says that in the absence of proof to the contrary the Collector's assessment must be affirmed.

The board declined to reverse Collector Loeb's assessment of duty on necktie silks imported by Henry Stern of New York. They were returned for duty at the appropriate rates according to their weight, condition, &c. The importer failed to introduce any testimony in behalf of his contention, and the protest was overruled.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The tropical storm observed in the Caribbean Sea, south of Porto Rico, Tuesday has apparently moved westward and is now near the Island of Santo Domingo. The area of high pressure in the Northwest has increased in magnitude and is extending eastward and southward, causing unseasonably low temperatures, with indications of frost.

No important temperature changes occurred during the last twenty-four hours over the eastern half of the country.

Showery conditions in the Middle States will reach the Atlantic sections Thursday night or Friday, and the cool wave will bring much lower temperatures in the trans-Mississippi States Thursday and extend eastward over the Ohio Valley Thursday night and Friday.

Winds along the Atlantic Coast will be light variable. Steamships departing Thursday for European ports will have light, variable winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

Years Ago

the custom was, if one lost anything, to look in the paper to see if it was advertised as being "found."

Now people realize that the important thing to do is to advertise the lost article as soon as the loss is known. Promptness in advertising a lost valuable is essential—it aids recovery.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Studebakers Lease Their Building in Times Square Section—Bar Association Increases Holdings—Block Front Sold in Fort Washington for Apartments—$660,000 for New Lofts.

Further evidence of the rapid transformation of Times Square was revealed yesterday by the announcement that the Studebaker Brothers Company is about to remove its carriage and automobile business from its present building, Broadway and Forty-eighth Street, and seek new quarters further uptown. The building has been leased by the Studebakers for a long term of years to one tenant, and it is stated that under the new tenancy the structure, which is now ten stories in height, will be increased by three additional stories.

The leasing of the building, one of the biggest transactions for some time in the Times Square district, is likely to have a far-reaching effect upon the old automobile centre, as it shows very clearly the tendency, noticeable in recent years, of the large automobile concerns to seek quarters north of Fifty-ninth Street. Only a few years ago the blocks immediately above the Times Building were the centre of the automobile sales business. The Studebaker Building was erected nine years ago by the Astor estate, which gave a long leasehold of its land. Yet in that short space of time the present location is deemed by the concern to be too far down town for its special business.

The building, it was ascertained, will be used for something totally different from the purposes to which it is now put. No part of it, however, is to be utilized as a theatre. The Studebaker Company will remain in the building through the remainder of the season, and their removal may not take place until early next Spring.

The Studebaker Building is a high-class fire-proof structure, having a frontage on Forty-eighth Street of 104 feet, occupying the entire block front on the north side between Broadway and Seventh Avenue, the Broadway frontage being 113 feet.

Buys Block Front for Apartment.

That the high-class apartment house development on the upper west side has by no means reached the limit was indicated yesterday by the sale by Charles M. Rosenthal of the entire block front on the west side of Amsterdam Avenue, between 176th and 177th Streets, opposite High Bridge Park. The plot has a frontage of 200 feet and is 100 feet deep on both streets. The buyers are the Gingold Realty Company, and they propose to improve the property immediately by two six-story elevator apartments, each house to have seven families on a floor. The entire investment, when completed, will represent about $500,000, the consideration for the land being close to $200,000.

The locality is in the heart of the big building operations that have transformed the Fort Washington section within the last two years from great stretches of unimproved land into a populous community, and over twenty new apartments are being completed for occupancy this season. The Gingold Realty Company has just completed a large apartment on the southeast corner of Riverside Drive and 152d Street.

Bar Association Buys Russell Sage Stable.

The Bar Association has increased its holdings in Forty-third and Forty-fourth Streets by purchasing from Mrs. Margaret O. Sage the stable at 37 West Forty-third Street, on plot 22.6 by 100.5, which was the Russell Sage stable when the family residence was at 506 Fifth Avenue.

In addition to its own building on Forty-third Street, the Bar Association owns the private sanitarium property to the east at 39 and 41 West Forty-third Street and the clubhouse of the Phi Delta Gamma Club at 34 and 36 West Forty-fourth Street, the combined properties having a frontage of 97.6 feet on Forty-third Street and 130.2 feet on Forty-fourth Street. With the recent purchase the Forty-third Street frontage is now 120 feet.

$160,000 Lease Near Times Square.

The Fitch H. Medbury Company has leased for Judge William N. Cohen the property known as 117, 119, and 121 West Forty-seventh Street to Edward Margolies and Lew M. Fields for a long term of years, at an aggregate rental of $150,000. The property will be extensively altered for business purposes at once.

Deals in Greenwich Village.

Nathan Randall and Simon Zuchtmann have sold 129 Perry Street, a five-story tenement, on lot 25.1 by 98, between Greenwich and Washington Streets. Brooklyn property was taken in part payment.

James H. Cruikshank has bought from George H. Budke 767 Greenwich Street, a three-story dwelling, on plot 21 by 68. The old dwelling will be remodeled for business purposes. John H. Dyke & Co. were the brokers.

Buyer for Harlem Residence.

Louis Brandt has sold 154 West 120th Street, a three-story and basement dwelling, on plot 16.8 by 100.11, between Lenox and Seventh Avenues. The buyer is a Mr. Goldstein, who will occupy the premises.

Bronx Sale.

Luther C. Bissell has sold 873 Fairmount Place, a two-story frame dwelling, on lot 25 by 100. This is one of a row of four houses recently built by the Bremen Realty and Construction Company.

Buys Jersey Water Frontage.

The International Nickel Company has acquired a large water frontage on Staten Island Sound through the purchase of the E. S. Savage property of about 110 acres, for a consideration of $600,000. The land is in the town of Carteret, about four miles below Elizabeth, N. J., and is the last remaining available property along the Sound, which is being deepened by the United States Government to a depth of 24 feet. The property will be improved with factories.

Suburban Sale.

Arnold, Byrne & Baumann have sold for the Queen Mab Company to T. Heyward 104 St. Mark's Place, West Brighton, S. I., a three-story and basement dwelling on plot 45 by 175.

$660,000 for Centre Street Lofts.

Schwartz & Gross have filed with Rudolph P. Miller, Superintendent of the Bureau of Buildings, plans for two eight-story loft buildings, to occupy the entire westerly block front of Centre Street, between Walker and White Streets. These buildings are to be of the highest type of fireproof construction, and are to be erected by Israel Lippman, at a cost of $210,000 for the smaller building and $450,000 for the larger.

They are designed for the use of the hardware trade, being equipped with a sufficient number of elevators for the purpose of carrying heavy loads. The site of these buildings was recently sold by the city at auction, and the Centre Street subway will pass under a portion of them.

Building in 142d Street.

Plans have been filed for two six-story flats on the south side of 142d Street, 100 feet west of Lenox Avenue, for the Dutchess Construction Company, of which Joseph Bloch is President. The buildings will each have a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 86.11. There will be accommodations for thirty-one families in each building. The cost has been placed at $130,000 by the architect, John Hauser.

New Columbia Laboratory.

Plans have been filed by the Department of Buildings and Grounds of Columbia College for making over the storage house in the rear of the building occupied by the College of Physicians and Surgeons into a laboratory at a cost of $3,000. One story will be added to the building, which is 80 feet south of Sixtieth Street and 310 feet east of Amsterdam Avenue.

Car Shops for New York Central.

Plans are being prepared for the New York Central Railroad Company for the erection of a car shop at the Weehawken terminal. The new building will be of brick, one story in height, 25 by 200 feet, and of fireproof construction. The estimated cost is $30,000.

Notes.

William Whitman, Jr., is the buyer of 5 East Eightieth Street, sold recently by Bernard J. Ludwig through the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company.

The House and Real Estate Owners' Association will meet Friday at 8 P. M. at New York Turn Hall, Eighty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue.

Justice Hendrick of the Supreme Court has appointed Samuel Marx receiver of the rents of 2,180 and 2,188 Valentine Avenue, two three-family brick buildings, pending a suit brought by James A. Schappert to foreclose two second mortgages amounting to $5,000, made by Katharine Umsted and others.

Garden City
New York's Most Beautiful Suburb
MORE THAN A MILLION DOLLARS

is being expended this year in improvements at Garden City. Along with the improved transportation facilities has come a greatly increased demand for property in Garden City. The sales for the past six months amount to one million dollars. To supply this demand the Garden City Company has developed a tract of 640 acres lying just east of the Garden City Hotel. The improvements in this section are on a scale heretofore unattempted, designed not only to be a credit to the Garden City of to-day, but to make it more beautiful and more attractive than ever.

ROSENHEIMER HELD FOR KILLING GIRL

Criminally Negligent, Says a Coroner's Jury, When His Auto Hit Miss Hough's Buggy.

BAIL REFUSED; LOCKED UP

His Two Friends Also Held—Verdict Follows Jurors' Visit to Scene of the Fatal Crash.

A jury of Bronx business men, impaneled by Coroner Schwannecke, late yesterday afternoon found Edward T. Rosenheimer, the son of the late Julius Rosenheimer, the wealthy needle manufacturer, who was murdered three years ago, guilty of criminal negligence in causing the death of Miss Grace Hough, the nineteen-year-old daughter of former Policeman Walter Hough of 491 East 175th Street, on the night of Aug. 18, when the large automobile which Mr. Rosenheimer was driving crashed into a light buggy containing Miss Hough and two others on the Pelham Parkway.

Rosenheimer was held without bail, and last night he was locked up in the Harlem Prison. Milton Fleischer of 251 West 111th Street and Lewis Schurmann of 862 Kelly Street, who were in the automobile with Rosenheimer at the time of the accident, were held in $10,000 bail each as accessories after the fact. They were also locked up. Rosenheimer since the preliminary hearing in the case before Coroner Schwannecke has been at liberty under $25,000 bail.

The jury's action came after an all-day hearing before Coroner Schwannecke, in which the jury went in automobiles to the scene of the accident and personally inspected the roadway. The jury returned to the courtroom, examined a few more witnesses and then, after deliberating only a few moments, announced their verdict. Rosenheimer took the verdict coolly and joked with the detectives who had him in charge. His wife, however, who had heard all the testimony, fainted and had to be carried from the room.

The most important testimony brought out at the inquest was that of James Dean of 947 Amsterdam Avenue, who was the chauffeur of Charles Steinau's automobile, which gave chase to the Rosenheimer car and overhauled it a half mile from the accident. Dean testified that the three men in the machine he was after had stopped in the middle of the road and were trying to repair it when he came upon them. They threatened him, he said, when he informed them that they had run down a carriage, and he retreated after noting the number of their machine. He identified Rosenheimer, Schurmann, and Fleischer as the men he had spoken to.

Who the Jurors Were.

The small courtroom was crowded when the inquest was called at 10 o'clock. Rosenheimer had an array of counsel on hand, including James W. Osborne, George A. Knobloch, T. T. Haggerly, and Major E. Bryan. The District Attorney's office was represented by Robert W. Turnbull, who has charge of the Homicide Bureau. A jury was quickly selected. Charles S. Ogden of 420 East 159th Street, a dealer in plumbers' supplies, was chosen foreman.

The other members were John Bradley Carse of Riverdale, Robert L. Cannon of 2,344 Aqueduct Avenue, John B. Yates of 2,394 Grand Avenue, J. T. B. Jones of 227th Street, Spuyten Duyvil; M. J. Keith of Devoe Terrace, F. J. Baloutin of 1,747 Sedgwick Avenue, Joseph H. Cagney of 225th Street and Broadway, F. E. Graham of University Heights, M. W. Wales of 2,305 Andrews Avenue, C. C. Van Siglen of 2,511 Devoe Terrace, and James H. Grace of 2,550 Grand Avenue.

Before the taking of testimony began Dr. J. Louis Amster of 2,090 Bathgate Avenue stated that the condition of Miss Anna McCabe of 437 East 173d Street and George Feddon of 2,262 Bathgate Avenue, who were in the carriage with Miss Hough, was so critical that their appearance in court would be impossible for at least two months. Mrs. Rosenheimer, wife of the defendant, and her sister occupied front row seats. Rosenheimer frequently turned and smiled at them.

The first witness was Mounted Policeman Arnold Koster of the Westchester Station. While standing at East Chester Road and Pelham Parkway, about 8:30 o'clock on the night of the accident, he said, he was approached by Mr. Dolen, who informed him that an accident had occured about a mile up the Parkway. He said he called up his station and was instructed to proceed to the scene with all haste. He said he reached there within a few minutes and found a wrecked carriage of the runabout type and a girl lying in the road.

There were a number of automobiles already on the scene. He said he sent in an ambulance call to the Fordham Hospital and then inspected the wreck. Miss McCabe was sitting alongside the road and Fedden was wandering about in a dazed sort of way. When the ambulance surgeon arrived, he said, the physician pronounced the Hough girl dead and removed her body. Both Miss McCabe and Fedden were also taken to the hospital.

"After that I went over the road and found the body of the demolished vehicle scattered over an area of several yards," said Koster.

How the Auto Was Traced.

Mounted Policeman Patrick F. Brady of the City Island Police Station said he was standing at the corner of New Rochelle Road and City Island Avenue about 9 o'clock the same night when an automobile containing three men whizzed by. He said he yelled to the men to stop, but they paid no attention to him. A moment later, he said, another machine came whizzing along. When it slowed up, the chauffeur, James Dean, told the policeman that the fleeing automobile had smashed into a carriage and killed a girl.

Dean told the policeman that he had managed to get close enough to the machine ahead to get its number, which was 100,472. Brady said he called up his station and gave the number to the Lieutenant on duty. This information was communicated to the Bronx Detective Bureau and through it Detectives Tierney and Wickham were able to trace the automobile to the garage of Rosenheimer and arrest him.

Detective Wickham testified that while on the way to the station with Rosenheimer and Fleischer the latter said: "If I had been operating the machine it would not have happened." All Rosenheimer said on that occasion, the detective stated, was that he did not know an accident had happened, as all that he had felt was a slight bump. Wickham further stated that Policeman Koster had given him a button which he had picked up at the scene of the accident, and this button was similar to others on the rain hood of the Rosenheimer machine, and that one button was missing off the hood.

James Dean testified that he was driving the machine of his employer, Charles J. Steinau, of 530 Broadway, the night of the accident. Mr. Steinau was in the automobile. As he approached Pelham Parkway from Cleveland Avenue, he said, he heard a crash, and a moment later saw an automobile pass by at a terrific rate of speed. Turning into Pelham Parkway, he came upon the wrecked carriage and the body of Miss Hough. When he asked his employer if he would go after the machine Mr. Steinau replied: "By all means try and catch him."

Dean said he put on speed, and in a few minutes came upon the machine he was after. It was standing in the middle of the road, and its three occupants were working over it, evidently trying to fix one side of it.

Threatened Pursuing Chauffeur.

"I said to them," testified the witness, "'Do you know that there has been an accident back there?' and I got no response. I then asked them if they had run into anything, but they did not answer. Then the men climbed into their machine and started off. As they did so they threatened me if I should follow them. I called after them that if they were men they would turn back, but they paid no attention to me. Then I called to them that I had their number, but they sped on. I started after them again, but their machine was so much bigger and faster than mine that I was left far behind. Then I came upon a policeman and told him of the accident and gave him the number."

At this point Coroner Schwannecke asked Dean to identify the men who had got out of the car. He pointed to Rosenheimer, and after a little hesitation to Schurmann. Charles Steinau, the owner of the pursuing car, corroborated his chauffeur in every particular.

William Fleischer, Rosenheimer's friend, then took the stand. The Coroner asked him if he was with Rosenheimer on the night of the accident, but he refused to answer on the ground that it might tend to incriminate him. Dean then identified him as being with Rosenheimer. Schumann, on the advice of his lawyer, also refused to testify.

After luncheon the Coroner hired five automobiles, and the jury, the defendant's lawyers, and Assistant District Attorney Turnbull started on their trip of inspection. They went to the scene of the accident, then to the Morrisania police station, where the Rosenheimer automobile was inspected. It bore evidence of having been in a smash. The running-board was broken, as well as one of the lights. Then the party went to the Westchester police station and viewed what was left of the carriage in which Miss Hough and her companion were riding.

Easy to See the Parkway.

When the jury returned Dean was recalled to the stand and testified that with lamps on his machine similar to those Rosenheimer had he could see 300 yards ahead. Owen Dolan, who was driving a horse vehicle without lights along the parkway on the night of the accident, said that with the assistance of the parkway lights he could see a hundred yards ahead. Then Coroner Schwannecke summed up. Lawyer Osborne asked the Coroner to dwell upon certain facts, and when the Coroner refused and accused Mr. Osborne of trying to do the summing up himself there was a lively tilt.

When Foreman Ogden announced his verdict Mrs. Rosenheimer fell forward in a faint. She was cared for by her sister and court attendants. Lawyer Osborne made a plea that Rosenheimer be allowed to go on bail. After considerable argument the Coroner referred the lawyers to the District Attorney's office. The three prisoners will be taken there this morning, and the question of whether or not bail will be accepted will be decided then.

BANK EXAMINERS' SHAKE-UP.

Twenty Federal Officials Suddenly Transferred by Controller Murray.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Following out his policy of instituting changes in the administration of the National banking system, Controller of the Currency Lawrence O. Murray to-day ordered the transfer of twenty bank examiners to new fields. This means the shifting of about one-fifth of the examining force, and it is explained that the idea is to increase the efficiency of the men by putting them into new localities, where their duties will not be hampered by the personal relations they may have formed at their present posts. More changes may follow soon.

Following closely on the sudden call for statements of the condition of National banks, which was made on Sept. 2, and the announcement of the Controller that he would in the future personally pass upon the applications of banks which wished to hold reserves, the shake-up among the examiners is taken as another indication of the determination to enforce to the letter the provisions of the National Bank act.

Mr. Murray has been making many changes in the routine of the Controller's office. Last Summer he had schools of instruction for inspectors and examiners. All the changes have been made with a view to making the Treasury's supervision of the banks closer than ever.

Considerable comment was caused last week by the issue of the bank call so soon after the one preceding it, and it is thought here that this advance of the date for the call was made in response to criticism that bank calls came so regularly that bank officials could practically predict the date and arrange their affairs accordingly.

Bankers here are divided as to the wisdom of the present wholesale transfer of examiners. While most of them admit the possibility of the examiner forming entangling alliances in a district where he lives many years, many are also of opinion that rapid transfers prevent the examiner from getting that knowledge of local affairs which has been found so helpful to them in determining a bank's real condition.

TOOTHACHE CRIES TOO LOUD.

Dental Clinic's Head Appeals to Congressman Harrison to Help Stop Them

Toothaching small boys who have formed the habit of congregating of nights on the doorstep of the free dental clinic for children at 449 East 121st Street, and there uttering divers horrible groans and moans begotten of aching molars, thereby disturbing the slumbers of the Superintendent, Miss M. Clark, caused Congressional action last night, when Congressman Francis Burton Harrison of the Sixteenth Congressional District visited the East 126th Street Police Station and complained to Lieut. Baker about them.

Complaints had previously been made repeatedly by Miss Clark herself, but these failed to evoke action on the part of the police. On Tuesday Congressman Harrison, in company with Magistrate Barlow, visited the institution, and learning of the trouble, promised that he would see that the nuisance was stopped. He therefore called upon the police late last night. He was told that something would be done to quiet the symptoms of juvenile tooth anguish till decent daylight hours.

CITY BREVITIES.

Elsie Dortenstein, a 17-year-old clerk of 37 Sutton Street, Brooklyn, while boarding a Subway train yesterday afternoon at Fourteenth Street, fell between the station and car platforms and received contusions of the legs and arms. The space between cars and platform is quite wide at this station.

Trial of the members of the so-called Poultry Trust was adjourned indefinitely yesterday by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions on the application of William Rand, Jr., partner of ex-District Attorney Jerome, because of the continued illness of Samuel Werner, an important witness for the defense.

John A. Qualey and Harvey W. Corbett pleaded not guilty yesterday to indictments charging them with defrauding Leo Kresser of Brooklyn out of $3,000 after their counsel had withdrawn a demurrer to the indictment. He declined to withdraw similar demurrers to indictments charging the pair with having defrauded Mrs. Mary E. Bull out of $35,000. Argument on these indictments was adjourned.

ACCUSES STOVER OF PARK GRAFTING

Mirabeau L. Towns Makes the Charge in a Legal Fight Over a City Hall Stand.

SAYS $1,000 WAS DEMANDED

Commissioner Denies All and Calls on the Acting Mayor for an Investigation.

Mirabeau L. Towns of Brooklyn, as counsel for John D. Atonopulos, who seeks to have made permanent an injunction to prevent Park Commissioner Stover from ousting him from the stand under the stairs at the westerly approach to the Brooklyn Bridge, in the Supreme Court yesterday charged that "a certain man" had approached the proprietor of the stand and offered to "fix it" so that the permit for the stand would be renewed for two years if $1,000 was paid.

Justice Bijur refused to permit the telling of the story of the alleged attempt to graft, as he said it had nothing to do with the question before the court.

It became known later that the "certain man" was Park Commissioner Stover. He not only denies the charge, but last night he sent a letter to Acting Mayor Mitchel asking that an investigation into the affair be made and, if the facts justify it, a criminal action be started.

Antonopulos was ordered to vacate his stand on the ground that he had encroached upon park property in extending his stand, and by so doing had violated the terms of his contract with the city. He is now in possession under an injunction restraining his eviction granted by Justice Brady in the Supreme Court, and it was at a hearing to make permanent this injunction yesterday that the charge of an attempt to graft was made.

The original permit under which the Greek did business on city property was granted by then Park Commissioner Smith on July 1, 1908, at a rental of $8,400. The permit expired on Dec. 31 last. On the appointment of Commissioner Stover he was asked to renew it. He did not do so, and Antonopulos has been in possession on permits granted monthly at a rental of $700. He was ordered to get out on the first of the month, and since then has been fighting the case.

Mr. Towns, in spite of the admonitions of the court, told much of the attempt which he said had been made to force his client to pay $1,000. He said that the "certain man" had advised Antonopulos to see a man in Nassau Street and the latter would obtain a new permit for the fruit stand, but the renewal would cost $1,000. He also charged that his client had a verbal agreement with the Park Commissioner that he was to be allowed to continue business, and upon the strength of that agreement he had spent $7,500 in bettering his stand.

Not only does Park Commissioner Stover charge the fruit seller with breach of contract, but he denies the verbal agreement. Mr. Stover says that an attempt was made to bribe his secretary if the latter would assist in having the stand permit renewed. The Commissioner last night wrote this letter to the Acting Mayor:

> New York, Sept. 7, 1910.
>
> Hon. John Purroy Mitchel, Acting Mayor:
>
> Sir: In the suit entitled John D. Antonopulos vs. Myself, individually, and as Commissioner of Parks, and against the Borough President and the City of New York, brought to restrain the city authorities from interfering with the possession by Mr. Antonopulos of space which the city authorities allege he is occupying without any right in City Hall Park, an affidavit was made by John D. Antonopulos stating that in the latter part of March, while I was at the premises which he occupies under the Brooklyn Bridge, I told him that he could go and see a man named Katz, who had an office at 132 Nassau Street, with respect to securing a permit; that he visited said Katz and told him that I had sent Antonopulos to see him; that Mr. Katz said he knew about it and would ring me up; that Mr. Katz then stated to Antonopulos: "Well, yes; I will fix it up for you, but what is it worth? I must be paid for my trouble."
>
> That said Katz thereafter told said Antonopulos that it would cost said Antonopulos $1,000, and that said Antonopulos would have no more expense and would be permitted to remain in the premises occupied by him for two years, and that I as Commissioner would not listen to any complaint from anybody. The affidavit further states that said Antonopulos later told me of this conversation.
>
> This is in effect a serious charge that some one authorized by me has demanded the payment of a sum of money in order to secure a permit from the Park Department. As a matter of fact I never told Antonopulos anything of the kind, and have never authorized anybody outside of the Park Department to deal with any applicant for privileges, but on the contrary have always told the applicants to come direct to me.
>
> Upon investigation I was advised that there were four brothers by the name of Katz who occupied an office with the name "Katz & Company" on the door, at 132 Nassau Street. Each of them has made an affidavit that he has never talked with Antonopulos about this or any other matter in his life.
>
> When this matter of the continued encroachment of Antonopulos in City Hall Park was first taken up, Mirabeau L. Towns appeared as his attorney, and in a conference at the Corporation Counsel's office told me that if this matter proceeded a charge of this kind would be brought up. Last night I was called up on the 'phone and told that if I would consent to an adjournment, thereby leaving Antonopulos in the possession of premises to which he has no right that this affidavit would be withdrawn.
>
> In court this morning Mr. Towns's representative asked the Assistant Corporation Counsel, who argued the matter for an adjournment of a week, which was refused. I was then again told that if this adjournment were granted the affidavit would be withdrawn. I instructed the Assistant Corporation Counsel not to grant one moment's adjournment, but to press the matter on to an immediate hearing, and that I was not afraid to meet any charge such as was made in the moving papers.
>
> In view of the fact that these affidavits are now public records, that I know absolutely that Antonopulos never mentioned any such matter to me, that I never sent him to anybody, and in view of the Katzs' explicit denial that they ever had any conversation with him, I beg to suggest to your Honor whether you should not order an investigation made of the charge by the Commissioner of Accounts, in order that the person making this unfounded charge and all other persons connected therewith, be examined under oath, and if the facts justify it, that the matter may be referred to the criminal authorities of the county for proper action. Yours respectfully,
>
> CHARLES B. STOVER,
> Commissioner of Parks, Boroughs of Manhattan and Bronx.

"The charges are utterly false," said Mr. Stover last night, "and I have affidavits to prove that I was told that they would be made unless I agreed to renew the permit for the stand in question. The permit gave Antonopulos a right to do business on 482 square feet of city property. I found that he had annexed 396 square feet more, and in addition stored things at Warren Street and Broadway, had a space at the fountain in City Hall Park, and on occasions sold goods in the driveway in front of the City Hall. For these reasons I was about to evict him."

In the case of the hearing to make permanent the injunction decision was reserved.

HIGGINBOTHAM HOLDS COURT

Presides in Brooklyn Despite Girl's Charges Against Him.

Police Magistrate Higginbotham of Brooklyn surprised Bedford Avenue Court attachés yesterday by appearing in court and disposing of the business in spite of the charge of attempted assault made against him by Miss Mary Hickey of 99 Bedford Avenue. The Magistrate didn't seem to be in the least disturbed over the trouble and he quickly got rid of a big calendar.

While he was in his own court Miss Hickey was in the Manhattan Avenue Court as complainant against her mother, Mrs. Winifred Hickey, whom she charged with being of intemperate habits and associating with vicious and disorderly persons.

Mrs. Hickey told Magistrate O'Reilly she had engaged counsel, but he was not on hand. She added that Timothy O'Sullivan would furnish any bail required.

Magistrate O'Reilly asked Miss Hickey if she knew O'Sullivan. The girl hesitated, and then as tears filled her eyes she replied:

"Yes, I know him to my sorrow. It was he who broke up our home. After my father died, fourteen years ago, he was in the habit of calling at my home and staying for a week or ten days at a time. It was on account of him that I left home and went to live with my aunt, with whom I now am living."

The Magistrate held Mrs. Hickey in $500 bail for a hearing to-morrow. The girl wanted her mother committed to the House of the Good Shepherd, but Magistrate O'Reilly refused to do so.

A SURPRISE IN LEATHER.

Deficit Instead of Dividends, and Down Goes the Rising Stock.

More than usual interest attached to the annual report of the American Hide and Leather Company's report for the year ended June 30, issued yesterday, by reason of a sharp rise in the preferred stock of the company for the last two weeks accompanying stock market rumors of a possible resumption of dividends on the issue. There were transactions of nearly 10,000 shares in the stock, usually inactive, last week and the price rose from 25 to 30. On Tuesday there were transactions of 4,400 shares and a rise of another two points.

Yesterday at the annual meeting in Jersey City stockholders learned that the company had a deficit of $696,590, after the payment of interest charges. This slump in business was all the more unaccountable to the stock market traders for the contrast it made with the showing of the previous year, when a surplus of $1,404,212 was earned. The effect of the announcement of the report figures was a break in the shares from 32 to 24. The slump brought out more than 7,000 shares, nearly one-half of the total appearing in the trading on the two weeks' rise.

Officers of the company had previously disclaimed any responsibility for the upward movement in the shares, and stated frankly last week that there was no prospect of any dividend action at the meeting. The company has $17,500,000 shares of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock outstanding, on which only three dividends of 1 per cent. each have been paid since organization. All three were paid in 1905, and nothing has been disbursed to stockholders since. In consequence there are some 73 per cent. of back dividends due, totaling about $9,000,000. The report has only this to say of the poor showing made during the last fiscal year:

> The unfavorable market conditions obtaining throughout the year have so far affected the company that the year's operations have resulted in a reduced trading profit of $314,287, which, after charging replacements, renewals and repairs, reserve for bad and doubtful debts, interest, and the usual sinking fund appropriation, is turned into a loss of $696,590.

In explanation of the "unfavorable market conditions" the report gives a comparative table of three years' income accounts with percentages appended for the purpose of making clear the statement that "the loss is mainly accounted for by the disparity between the increase in the cost of raw stock and the price obtainable for finished leather."

The amount of business done during the year was substantially larger than in 1909, totaling $18,271,117, against $17,448,301. The total cost of hides, &c., was $13,299,707, against $10,525,228.

FAILURES IN AUGUST.

Just Two More Than in August, 1909—Best Month This Year.

The total number of failures in August, according to the statistics compiled by Dun's Review, were 919, only two more than in the same month in 1909, and 280 less than in August, 1908. This is the best showing in point of numbers than in any other month this year, with the exception of May and June. Although in 1909 and 1908 the August failures were much larger in amount of defaulted indebtedness than in July of those years, last month's total liabilities of $12,442,063 were $1,348,690 less than those of July. Dun's says:

> The failure exhibit for August shows a striking difference between the record of defaults in the manufacturing and in the trading divisions. The number of August manufacturing failures was greater than in the corresponding month of the three preceding years, being 266 against 222 in 1909. The liabilities of these manufacturing failures amounted to $7,751,674, which is not only in excess of the July record, but also heavier than in August, 1909, although much less than in August, 1908; the manufacturing liabilities were in fact larger than in all but eight of the thirty preceding months. On the other hand, the trading liabilities of August amounted to $4,064,256 as compared with $4,554,995 in 1909 and $5,867,597 in 1908, and they were much less than in July of this year, when they aggregated $5,229,487. The trading liabilities of the month were less than in all except one of the preceding thirty months.

The largest increase in the manufacturing failures was in the class of "clothing and millinery," in which there were forty-three failures against thirty in August, 1909. "Lumber, carpenters, &c.," came next with thirty-one failures against twenty-one in the corresponding month last year.

STOCKS BETTER IN EUROPE.

Good Feeling There Toward American Securities, Mr. Halle Says.

Jacques S. Halle of the Stock Exchange firm of Halle & Steiglitz has returned from a four-months' trip in Europe with the belief that feeling on the other side is more hopeful toward American securities.

"The large interests over there," said Mr. Halle, "seem to think we are laying too much stress on the political situation here and they believe that after a short while this will be forgotten and all those factors which make for the ultimate prosperity of the country will cut more of a figure."

CARTRIDGES SEIZED BY HARBOR POLICE

Two Beach-Combers Caught in a Launch with 19,000 Rounds on the Way to a Ship.

NO LAW FOR SUCH A CASE

Ammunition Was Meant for the Clyde Liner Seminole, Which Sails for Porto Rico To-day.

Sergt. Van Tassel of Harbor Squad B, with a crew of five men in one of the police boats had been waiting for several hours with their lights extinguished beside a pier near the southern entrance to Buttermilk Channel early yesterday morning for any suspicious-looking craft when a little naphtha launch showing no lights, whose muffler very effectually silenced the chugging of the engine, stole around the pier head in the darkness on its way up the East River.

The Sergeant shouted for it to stop, but the only response was to put all power on, and as the police boat started in pursuit its searchlight showed the figures of two men on board, working over the engine in an attempt to get up enough speed to elude the policemen. When the police boat finally drew up and the Sergeant boarded the strange boat, the reason for its wishing to get away was immediately seen.

Stowed away under an old tarpaulin in the stern were nineteen wooden cases, containing 19,000 rounds of ammunition. One of the crew, now thoroughly frightened, told a vague tale of being hired to smuggle the cartridges on board a South American steamer.

Sergt. Van Tassel immediately scented a filibustering expedition and ordered the men to take their boat to the Battery landing place of his precinct, and the men were arraigned before the Lieutenant. They gave their names as Cesare Lombardo of 7 President Street and Frank Justi of 140 Hamilton Avenue, Brooklyn. Later they were taken before Magistrate Herbert in the Tombs Court, but he refused to hold them.

The two men, however, volunteered to tell the police all they knew, and Capt. Frederick J. Mott of Harbor Squad B, assisted by Detective Simonetti of the Italian branch of the Detective Bureau, took them to Brooklyn, where their story was investigated.

Lombardo and Justi told the police that on Tuesday afternoon they had been approached by Samuel Brown, a tailor at 21 Union Avenue, Brooklyn, who told them that he would have a cargo for them in a wagon at the mouth of Gowanus Creek, in the Erie Basin, and they were to take this to the steamship Seminole of the Clyde Line, anchored at Pier 35 in Brooklyn. They were to come up to the second hatch at 3 o'clock in the morning and would find waiting for them a fireman, who was present at the time the agreement was made. For their trouble they were to receive $2.

Capt. Mott and the detective went to the Union Street shop and found Brown's wife. She said that her husband had left in the morning. Then they went to the Clyde Line Pier and the Port Captain lined up the entire crew. Lombardi and Justi were told to try and pick out the fireman whom they had seen in Brown's shop, but were unable to identify him. Lombardo and Justi were allowed to go.

For an Aeroplane Flight

From Chicago to New York

THE NEW YORK TIMES and THE CHICAGO EVENING POST offer a prize of $25,000 to the winner of an aeroplane race from Chicago to New York under the following conditions:

1—Entries for the race will be open immediately on the publication of these conditions, [first published July 6, 1910,] and may be made by mail or telegraph, addressed to The New York Times or The Chicago Evening Post. Each entrant must state in his application that he accepts in full the conditions here published.

2—At least three competitors must start, or no race.

3—The start shall be made on Saturday, October 8, 1910, after 10 A. M., from a practicable field within the city limits of Chicago, to be designated by The Chicago Evening Post; and the finish shall be within the city limits of New York. Competitors shall start as nearly as possible simultaneously; intervals, however, will be allowed, if necessary or desirable; but in any case all must start on the same day. The start may be postponed from day to day, because of bad weather, but not beyond October 15, 1910.

4—Each competitor and his machine shall be in Chicago on, Monday, October 3, 1910, and, the weather and the condition of the machine permitting, shall make trial flights daily thereafter, between the hours of 2 P. M. and 7 P. M., until the day of the start.

5—The race must be completed within 168 hours, or seven days, after the start. No limit is placed on the number of stops.

6—Each entrant must have a record of one hour's continuous flight. Entrants not having such a record may qualify by flying one hour continuously in Chicago between October 3, 1910, and October 8, 1910, and complying with the terms of Section 4 of these conditions.

7—Each competitor must finish in the same machine in which he starts, but any repairs, such as re-covering planes, installing new motors, &c., may be made on the way, as required.

8—To win the prize of $25,000 the winner must cover the course before any flight of equal or greater distance has been made in this country.

9—If the competitors start simultaneously the winner shall be he who, fulfilling the conditions of the race, first lands in New York; if the competitors start at intervals, the intervals shall be taken into account in determining the winner.

10—Competitors must arrange for their own supplies and for the transportation of the same.

11—Each competitor agrees to make his flight upon his own responsibility and at his own risk and expense. The donors of the prize are to be responsible for nothing but its payment to the winner.

12—Three judges of the finish of the race shall be appointed, one by The New York Times, one by The Chicago Evening Post, and the third by the two judges thus appointed. These judges shall be in New York and shall determine the winner of the race. They shall also determine the award of any prizes that may be offered, besides the prize of $25,000, and from their decision there shall be no appeal.
